Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, the friends of the municipal court in Philadelphia do not feel that a motion such as made by the Senator from Phiadelphia, Mr. Farley, will do any thing but injury to their cause. The Senate and House have passed a bill creating five new judges in the City of Philadelphia. We have now five common pleas courts of three judges each. This bill would make four judges to each of those five courts. I confess that there is some difficulty in Philadelphia in disposing of our legal business properly and efficiently, but I do deny that the creation of these five new judges would help that situation any. We have now five courts, each acting independently of the other. What we need is one court of fifteen judges, and if we had that one court of fifteen judges we would not need any new judges in the common pleas courts. The situation now is a cumberous one and the delay is more due to the delays of the system than to any need of new judges. We only have two court rooms for each of the courts, so when we are having jury trials in Philadelphia we only have ten of the fifteen judges sitting. If we have five new judges we can only have ten of the twenty judges sitting. It is proposed that a new judicial building be built on the new parkway, but that is a matter of considerable size and consequence.

It will be absolutely impossible to have any new rooms for the new judges prior to the sitting of the next Legislature. At the next session of the Legislature it will be ample time for us to increase the number of judges in Philadelphia of the common pleas courts. I can safely say that there is almost no sentiment in Philadelphia for the five new judges. The judges themselves are opposed to it, and the leading members of the bar are opposed to it.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, the question here involved is a municipal court, not the five judges. That bill has been passed by the Legislature and the Senator is out of order.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, the one is linked to the other. John G. Johnson wrote a letter to the Governor yesterday protesting against the five new judges and recommending a municipal court. A large delegation of the most active members of the bar of non-political character were here yesterday for that purpose. What we need in Philadelphia is an intermediate Court such as they have in Allegheny County.

The Governor stated yesterday to this delegation of lawyers that last year in Allegheny County there were three thousand cases tried in the municipal court and they had only five appeals. A municipal court trying small cases with competent lawyers is efficient, simple and inexpensive. When the common pleas courts were founded fifty years ago we had a different class of business than we have today What we need in our municipalities is diversified courts and not more judges. It has worked admirably in Allegheny County, it works well in New York, it work well in Chicago, it works well wherever it has been tried. The public sentiment in Philadelphia demands a municipal court and not more judges, and if this motion of Senator Farley prevails to put on the Calendar, despite the recommendation, the Municipal Court Bill and it is defeated, it will be almost impossible for us to do anything further with this municipal court this session. The Governor now has before him the five judges bill, which he must sign before March 30th. He should have the privilege of having these two bills. There should be no haste in putting this bill on the Calendar and therefore I make this motion that the motion of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Farley, be laid upon the table, and when the Governor has acted upon the five judges bill then we can intelligently take up the question of a municipal court. It is not proper, it is not fair, to take up the question at this time, and therefore I ask you gentlemen to vote "aye" on this motion which is, that the motion of the Senator from Phiadelphia, Mr. Farley, be laid upon the table.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I hope the members of the Senate will not vote to lay this matter on the table. Both these court propositions have been fairly threshed out. Three-quarters of the members of the Phiadelphia bar are in favor of the five judges and passed a resolution to that effect. I presented the five judge court bill at the request of nearly all the leading members of the Philadlphia bar, and only yesterday, only last evening, before the Committee on Judiciary Special, Francis Shunk Brown, of Simpson and Brown, who probably have the largest and best law offices in Philadelphia and employ more assistants than any one else in Philadelphia, said that the proper way to supply the necessary judges for Philadelphia was by the five judges. He descirbed it along these lines. If a man has ample stalls, keeping a livery stable, and needs more horses he does not go and build another stable to put the horses in, he buys the horses and puts them in the stalls that are already there. Now we have the rooms, the light and the heat and the fixtures and clerks of court and all that sort of thing right in Philadelphia now unused. The five judge bill is now in the hands of the Governor. All that does is to supply the judges to use the rooms and help and light and so forth that are already there without any additional expense. Another objection is that if you divide the courts all over Philadelphia you will have the lawyers running from one end of the town to the other. As to the additional expense the municipal court would create I will read from a paper which I have here in front of me that I got from Henry Walton, who is Prothonotary of Philadelphia, as to what the additional expense of the municipal court would be aside from the buildings and other expenses. The judges' salaries would be $54,500, the prothonotary's $4,000, the deputy's $2,500, nine clerks $18,000, twenty-seven tipstaffs, $54,000, court stenographers $27,000, which means, gentlemen, if this municipal court bill should pass, you would have $160,000 of expense in addition to the building and other expenses, stationery, etc. Now the report of the municipal court of Chicago that they filed, they had it down there yesterday, was that they ran $450,000 last year behind making their expenses. We are not in financial condition in Philadelphia to run any $450,000 behind expenses when we can save all of that money and a whole lot of trouble for the lawyers. One of these lawyers whom Senator McIlhenny refers to as being non-political, had the nerve to stand up down there last night and say that the five judges would not help the situation very much if at all. Just think of that! He had the nerve to stand there and say that the five judges working down there would not relieve the conditions. It appears to me just as plain as the noonday sun. We have the rooms there and we can put the judges there without putting on the city extraordinary expense; in fact, no expense at all. That is the proper remedy for the evil. I hope the gentlemen of this Senate will vote down Senator McIlhenny's motion.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Vare.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Vare, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator from Philadelphia. Mr. Vare, if it is not a fact that there are only ten rooms now for the common pleas courts.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, no, there are fourteen.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, how many courts are there? There are five now.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, five.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, hasn't each court but two rooms?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, some of them have three. There are fourteen large rooms and fifteen judges.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, is it not a fact that there are only ten rooms used for jury trials?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, the rooms are there. The fact is there are only ten rooms used because we have not the judges to use them.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, we have fifteen judges and aren't we pressed for room, for more room in the City Hall of Philadelphia?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, we are not pressed for rooms, but for the judges for the courts.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I am perfectly willing if the Municipal Court Bill gets before the Senate to make an amendment that the prothonotary's work be done by Mr. Walton. I have always been in favor of that, but what we want is a municipal court, which is more flexible. It is the business men that want it, not only the lawyers. The newspapers of Philade phia without exception are in favor of this municipal court and against the five-judge bill. The people of Philadelphia want the municipal court. It is the kind of court they want and not more judges. The fees of the court itself would almost pay all the expenses of this court. We, a few years ago, established the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, an intermediate court that has done very valuable and efficient work, and what we need now is an intermediate court in the City of Phi'adelphia for the small cases for the business men of that city. There is no need of hurry to pass this motion to put this bill on the Calendar. We do not know what action will be taken on the five-judge bill and I hope the Senate will vote "aye" and put this motion on the table.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, just one more word. We found out before this committee yesterday that between eighty and eighty-five per cent. of the cases in Philadelphia are for $600 and under. If that is the case, the poorer and middle classes who have small cases are just as much entit'ed to good decisions and good judges as the larger cases, and I do not see any reason why when we have the rooms and the high class judges at so much less cost, I do not see any reason why we should take those cases away from the high class judges and put them before cheaper paid judges.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, just one word. If the Senators vote "aye" on my motion it does not settle the case, merely puts it over until the Governor can act on the five-judge bill.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to lay the motion of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Farley, on the table?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. McILHENNY and Mr. HEACOCK, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—15.

Heacock,	Judson,	McIlhenny,	Sensenich,
Hilton,	Knapp,	Miller,	Sheatz,
Hoke,	Kurtz,	Nulty,	Wasbers,
Jarrett,	Martin,	Powell,

Crow,	Homsher,	McNichol,	Stineman,
Endsley,	Huffman,	Moore,	Vare,

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring

Will the Senate agree to the motion that the bill be placed on the Calendar notwithstanding the negative recommendation of the committee?

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I ask all the Senators who are in favor of the municipal court and the relief of the business men of the City of Philadelphia to vote "aye" on this question. We can put it on the Calendar and the matter can be taken up next week finally as to whether this bill shall pass or not, but I say that any man who votes "no" on this question is voting against the best interests of the City of Philadelphia.

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, any Senator voting "no" on this proposition is voting to give the people the best kind of judges without any extra cost, and I think as I said before that the middle classes and the poor are just as much entitled to good judges as the rich. Small cases are just as important to them as large ones are to the rich. I therefore hope that you will vote to keep this bill off the calendar.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion that the bill be placed on the calendar notwithstanding the negative recommendation of the committee?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. McILHENNY and Mr. HERBST, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—12.

Alexander,	Hall,	Kurtz,	Salus,
Farley,	Herbst,	Martin,	Sensenich,

So the question was determined in the negative.

REASON FOR VOTE.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded and state in voting "no" on this motion that I do so only that I can move to reconsider the vote next week. I vote "no."

RECONSIDERATION OF HOUSE BILL NO. 883.

Mr. BUCKMAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 627, (House Bill No. 883), entitled:

A supplement to an act entitled "An Act for the government of cities of the second class" approved March seventh one thousand nine hundred and one providing for the creation of a pension fund for municipal employees was defeated on final passage on March 24th.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. BUCKMAN. Mr. President, I voted "no."

Mr. SONES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. SONES. Mr. President, I voted "no."

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. KLINE. Mr. President, I have grave fears that a majority of the Senators on Monday night voted under a misapprehension. They are naturally cautious in regard to any pension funds, pensioning blacksmiths, judges and other things, and rightfully so, but in this instance this is a bill that applies only to cities of the second class and is merely an enabling act, that the employes themselves if they so desire can create a pension fund, taking the money out of their own pay, may create a pension fund for their own benefit. Therefore, it is merely an enabling act.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—34.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. JONES, from the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 11, entitled:

An Act defining commodities, regulating the sale thereof, and providing penalties for violation hereof.

BILL RECOMMITTED.

Mr. HUFFMAN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 189, on third reading, entitled:

An Act authorizing the State Highway Department to take over all public roads within the Commonwealth located within or bordering upon the State forest reserves and to improve and maintain the same be recommitted to the Committee on Forestry.

Mr. WASBERS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 201, entitled:

MOTION TO RECOMMIT BILL.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 337, (House Bill No. 189), on second reading entitled:

An Act to repeal section ten of an act passed the fifth day of April Anno Dominj one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine entitled "An Act to vacate Long Lane in the county of Philadlephia in relation to promissory notes and counterfeit endorsements and for other purposes" be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary Special.

Mr. CROW. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, I would like to say that this act does not relate to Philadelphia at all. It was passed some time before the adoption of the Constitution, and while the title indicates that it was in relation to the vacation of Long Lane, as a matter of fact it relates only to promissory notes and it is an act that was overlooked in the repealing clause of the general Negotiable Instruments Act, and I trust the gentleman will withdraw his motion. There is absolutely no reference to Philadelphia at all except in the title, and it relates to one section of an old act in which a number of subjects were covered under one title. It is limited to one section in relation to promissory notes.

Mr. McNICHOL. With the explanation of the Senator from Allegheny, I withdraw my motion

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. CATLIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend section 1, line 6, by inserting after the word "beneath" the words "such cities and boroughs as may tend to prevent."

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendments to this bill to make it in accordance with the vinegar bill which has recently been passed by the Congress of the United States and approved, so that it makes the Pennsylvania law uniform with the National law on the subject.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. J. E. Wright, offered the following prayer:

O God, the forces of nature are at Thy disposal and under Thy control. Thou art the Sovereign and Lord and canst work Thy will according to Thy pleasure. As the Lord Christ restrained the rushing of the wind and the troubled waters at the word of His command, so Thou canst restrain these storms that are prevailing and that are working such distress. We humbly and earnestly ask for this if it be consistent with Thy will, and we pray that those who are in the grip of these disastrous conditions may have Thy pity, that they may be relieved from their distress and enabled to stay their hearts upon Thee. And now we commit ourselves to Thy care and keeping throughout this day. May we have rule over our own spirits; may we say no word which we shall regret; may we commit no action which we shall wish to recall; may the day be filled with useful and helpful activities, and when its hours are ended and the shades of night have gathered about us, may we close our eyes to untroubled sleep because the Lord is our keeper according to our prayers. And Thy name shall have the praise of it forever. Amen.

RESOLUTION NO. 34.

Mr. GEORGE A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up Resolution No. 34.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read by the Clerk.

The Resolution was twice read as follows:

Whereas, The General Assembly of Pennsylvania by act of Assembly, approved the thirtieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, appropriated the sum of three hundred thousand dollars for the purchase of a new site for the Western Penitentiary, and work done toward the erection of new buildings, and,

Whereas, Various large sums of money have been appropriated and expended in the maintenance of the present Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh; and,

Whereas, It is widely reported that the overhead expenses of said institution have been unnecessarily increased lately to the extent of thousand of dollars per annum, which the number of inmates there confined has decreased; and,

Whereas, In matters other than financial certain serious defects in the management of this institution have come to light, namely,

It has become a matter of public record in the courts of Allegheny county that unnatural crimes are frequently committed,

That it is the common practice of the Western Penitentiary to so distribute the prisoners received that those convicted of unnatural crimes and those who are afflicted with repulsive infectious and contagious diseases are assigned places among the other inmates the majority of whom are serving on their first conviction and are young men, thus giving opportunity for the continued commission of these unnatural crimes and necessarily injuring many young men as a resultant of forced association with such demoralizing influences, giving occasion to frequent quarrels among the men and tending to the spread of disease by reason of these men all being forced to eat at the same table and drink out of the same vessels et cetera.

That prisoners are brutally, cruelly and inhumanly punished in some instances out of all proportion to the offense complained of.

That the parole act is not properly administered and that injustice is often done in its partial administration causing much complaint and unrest among the prisoners, and,

Whereas, it is alleged that upon the published account of the report that a resolution was to be introduced in the House of Representatives asking for an investigation of all State institutions appearing in the Pittsburgh newspapers on January tenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirteenth, a department of accounts in the Western Penitentiary known as the Inventory Department which prior to that date had been maintained showing all purchases and disbursements of supplies and materials in detail was hastily discontinued and in the nighttime all records were taken therefrom and destroyed, and,

Whereas, It is essential that this House should have full knowledge of the operations and expenditures of this institution, to know whether or not the reports circulated and statements made that the financial conditions of the Western Penitentiary are in a very serious state and that a very considerable shortage exists, are true in order that it may be enabled to consider intelligently legislative matters affecting said institution, and,

Whereas, As a result of the statements which have been made and the reports circulated public sentiment imperatively demands that all the transactions connected with the management maintenance and conduct of said institution should be fully investigated.

Now, therefore, Be it Resolved, That the Speaker of House of Representatives be and he hereby is authorized and directed to at once appoint a committee of five no more than two of whom shall be members of any one political party to make a full investigation of all the circumstances and transactions connected with the conduct and management of said institution. That said investigation cover fully all matters pertaining to both the old institution in Pittsburgh and the new one located in Centre county, including all contracts let and the manner of letting said contracts, all moneys expended and the manner of expending said moneys, and such other matters pertaining to the conduct, management, construction, erection and furnishing both institutions as may to said committee seem pertinent. That said investigation cover fully all matters pertaining to to summon witnesses and for the purpose of this inquiry they are hereby authorized and empowered to issue subpoenas, administer oaths and compel the attendance of witnesses, and the production of all books, bills, cheques, cheque-books, papers, minutes, records letters and contracts and such other written and documentary evidence as may be pertinent to the inquiry. And the said committee shall make a full report in writing to the House of the result of their investigation with full findings of facts and recommendations not later than April fourteenth one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

Mr. GEORGE A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this resolution be referred to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. BLELOCH. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution?

Mr. GEORGE A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to have this resolution referred to the Committee on Judiciary General for the reason that I don't want to take up the time of the House for the discussion of this resolution and in addition to that, there are certain facts alleged in the resolution which I would not want to discuss on the floor of the House in the presence of the pages, at least, and certainly not in the presence of any ladies who might be on the floor of the House. The resolution charges, in the first place, that the overhead expenses of the penitentiary have been increased lately out of all proportion. Those expenses have been increased by increase of salaries, and certain officials placing men on the pay-roll who do practially nothing. Here is an instance that occurred within the last couple of months. In the case of a particular leader in Allegheny county who sent down a man to the penitentiary, who told the warden that a certain politician had told him to come down to take a place as a clerk. The warden said "I have nothing to do," but he said "Well, Mr. So and So told me to come here and that you would put me to work." Then the warden told somebody "Well, then give him a cap." And he was given a cap and placed at work. The report of the institution shows that notwithstanding the fact that the population of the penitentiary has decreased, the overhead expenses and salaries, etc., have been increased. Their own figures show that. There are certain other allegations made in the resolution with respect to the conditions among the inmates of the penitentiary. Within the last year a case was tried in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Allegheny county, in which one Beggs was the prosecutor and one Merrick, the Editor of a Socialist paper called "Justice" was the defendant. As I understand, Mr. Francies requested Beggs, one of the guards of the Penitentiary, to bring an action of libel against the editor of this paper. That action of libel was brought; the case came up in the proper courts of Allegheny County. The defendant had summoned some forty-seven witnesses, consisting of convicts in the penitentiary, convicts who had been discharged from the penitentiary and who had gone to all the surrounding states. Now when the prosecution had finished its testimony and when the defendant had called only seven of these forty-seven witnesses, the Commonwealth threw up its hands and dropped the case and the defendant was discharged. Now I don't want to discuss that testimony on the floor of this House. It is not fit to be discussed in public. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but it is charged in this resolution that prisoners who are suffering from tuberculosis and certain veneral diseases are permitted to associate in the penitentiary with those who are clean and unaffected. I could give you the names, if I desired to do so, of these men or some of them at least, who are permitted to associate with other prisoners in the way I have mentioned, I can give you the number of the convict who is permitted to wait on the table, who is suffering in the last stages of a certain veneral disease. Of course, it is impossible that such conditions of these could exist without the danger of these diseases being transmitted to all the other inmates of the penitentiary. I am told on reliable authority that two-thirds of the inmates of this penitentiary are suffering from veneral diseases of one kind or another, and that notwithstanding these facts the clean prisoners are permitted to circulate and mix with and be waited upon at the table by men who are afflicted with these diseases. Not only that, but I am reliably informed that cruel and unjust punishment was inflicted on prisoners. For instance, within the last year a certain prisoner was placed in a straight jacket and kept there for ninety-two hours—almost four days,—in hot weather, lying in his own filth, until the maggots were crawling all over him and into his eyes, ears, nose and rectum, and when he was released from the straight jacket his whole body was raw.

The resolution also charges that the parole laws of this Commonwealth are not honestly administered. I presume that all the members of the House know what the parole laws of the State are. They are administered under the parole act of 1909. These laws provide that a prisoner sentenced to a minimum and maximum term may make application to the Board of Inspectors of the prison after having served the minimum sentence, for release, and it is the duty of the authorities of the prison to transmit these requests to the Governor of the Commonwealth, as I recall the act, and if this application is not favorably acted upon, that the reason for such unfavorable action shall be stated. I am told that there are hundreds of convicts in the Western Penitentiary who are, under the act of 1909, entitled to be paroled and have made application for parole, whose applications have not been acted upon and no reasons have been assigned for the failure on the part of the proper authorities to act upon them.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that if these charges are true that they ought to be investigated. This resolution does not call for any appropriation. It will not cost the State one cent to make the proposed investigation. Not only do I ask for this investigation in behalf of the people of the Commonwealth who maintain this Penitentiary, and who furnish the funds to keep it up, but I see by this morning's Pittsburgh paper that the Board of Inspectors join in this request, and at a meeting held yesterday passed a resolution from which I quote:

"Whereas, The board of inspectors and the warden wishing the fullest investigation into all their acts and the acts of their subordinates, so that all matters relating to the institution may be placed before the legislative committee and the public;

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the Board of Inspectors be and he is hereby instructed to secure all books, bills, checks, check books, papers mintues, records, letters and contracts and have all indexed and ready to deliver to the committee when they call for the same; also he is instructed to advise the chairman of the committee that the board of inspectors and the warden are anxious to give every assistance possible so that the investigation may be complete and conclusive."

Just one other charge contained in this resolution before I sit down, that is, the charge that on the night of the 10th of January of this year a Department in the institution known as the auditing department or inventory department—the charge is that on the night of January 10th of this year that department was abruptly discontinued and all of the papers, books, vouchers and so on, records belonging to that department, were destroyed in the night time. Now if that is true that is a fact alone that ought to justify the appointment of the committee I asked for by this resolution.

I trust that the House will pass the resolution in view of the fact that the citizens of the Commonwealth are interested in knowing what is going on there, in view of the fact that things charged in this resolution are specific and definite and in view of the fact that the inspectors of the prison join in the request that the affairs of the instituion be investigated.

Mr. NORTH. Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House, in reply to what the gentleman from Beaver (Mr. Baldwin) has said relative to the conditions at the Western Penitentiary, I do not desire to take up the time of the House by way of any lengthly remarks on the question, but as a member of the Appropriation Committee in 1907, 1911 and 1913, I visited that institution and I think the members of the Committee that were with me on those various occasions will bear me out in the statement that we found conditions there in exceptionally good order, considering the conditions that they had to contend with, and owing to the fact that this institution is now in the course of being dismantled. I think it is very unwise to ask the State to go to the expense of any investigation relative to the conditions at this time and I hope the members of the House will vote this resolution down so unanimously that it will end, at least for the present session, investigations of this kind.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state for the information of the gentleman from Beaver and for the information of the House, the conditions under the parole act of 1909, supplemented by the Act of 1911 to cure some defects in the act of 1909. The Court fixes an indeterminate sentence, fixing both a minimum and maximum term and after the expiration of the minimum sentence the prisoner may make application to the Board of Prison Inspectors. Then the Board of Prison Inspectors pass upon his application. They absolutely decide and the only reason that record comes to Harrisburg is after the Board of Prison Inspectors decide or recommend the release of that particular defendant on parole, and then the record comes to Harrisburg, in order that the Executive Department may act on it. But the Board of Prison Inspectors, under the Act, are obliged to take upon themselves absolutely the responsibility as to when the man shall be discharged, either at the expiration of the minimum term or at such other time between the minimum and maximum period, and the prisoner is called before the Board and there states his case, and the question as to whether or not he should be paroled is decided upon by the Prison Inspectors.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, (Mr. Roney).

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if it is not a fact that the parole act of 1909 requires that in cases where application of the convict is not allowed that the reason be stated, by the Board of Prison Inspectors.

Mr. RONEY. Yes, sir, I want it plain to the House that the Board of Prison Inspectors are charged with that.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say to the House that so far as the report or resolution refers to unnatural crimes committed there, that any person who was in this House and had heard Mr. Francies in his plea to this House, asking that something be done, some relief be given to prevent just exactly that condition; that no person has ever stated conditions in the State of Pennsylvania more plainly more earnestly and I think more honestly than the keeper of that very institution. He went as far as language could be used to call the attention of the members of this House to such conditions in institutions of that character and be requested of the legislature, in the strongest and most earnest terms, to assist him in every way the legislature cou'd to prevent these conditions that are known under the name of unnatural crimes. So far as the commission of unnatural crimes is concerned, I do not see any reason for passing this resolution. So far as the other part of the resolution is concerned I do not think there is much in it. It appears to be newspaper reports. I believe all light possible should be turned on State institutions, but under the situation as I understand it and as Mr. Francies has told us: so far as unnatural crimes are concerned, every person appreciates the necessity, the absolute necessity, of doing everything we can to suppress that. I merely state this in defense of Mr. Francies, because I know he called the attention of the legislature heretofore to these conditions, and so far as the unnatural crimes are concerned, I do not see the necessity for investigation. So far as the other matters are concerned, they seemed to me to be indefinite, and I realize that this would be an expense to the State. I think it is fair to state to the House what I have said in regard to the unnatural crimes and I think the gentleman from Beaver will support me in that statement.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I heard the address of Mr. Francies delivered in this House two years ago, and I want to say that the matters referred to now have no bearing on the matters stated on that occasion. I want to state this in reply to what the gentleman has said in reference to newspaper reports: The newspaper reports have nothing to do with this investigation. I want to state that I am not in the habit of introducing resolutions which I am not willing to stand back of. I can say to the members of the House from information received that if this commission is appointed that information will be disclosed to the commission under oath. I ask that the yeas and nays be called.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, when a member of this House stands on his feet and says that he has information that he is willing to give to a committee of this House under oath about conditions existing in a penal institution in this State and this House refuses to give him the opportunity to do so, there will be a public disgrace that will fasten itself upon this session and go down into history. Every request for an investigation that has come before this House has been duly and properly referred to a committee and that committee in each case has given careful consideration and has advised the House what it ought to do. Sometimes the committee has advised the House that, under the conditions, there was no occasion for anything to be done. On other occasions it has advised that an investigation ought to be made. Committees have been appointed; they have worked hard. Now a member comes before us and charges the most grave dereliction upon an institution which, on account of the very nature of the institution, must have despotic power. An institution of this nature ought to be open to the most continuous and the most complete light and investigation. Now, I say, when such a responsible request comes from a member from information made of his own knowledge, and this body refuses even to send it to a committee, to my mind it is disgraceful; and the only way to correct the error which the House has already committed is to vote favorably upon this resolution.

Mr. STEIN. Mr. Speaker, replying to my friend from Philadelphia and also to my friend from Beaver, I wish to call the attention of the Gentlemen of this House to the fact that my friend from Beaver seems to be imbued with the idea that all the ills of society can be cured by a commission of investigation. Now, you gentlemen will remember that two years ago my good friend from Beaver had a commission to investigate the town of Harrisburg, and then, I believe, it went further, or some other person went further and wanted to investigate his own quiet little village of Rochester in the County of Beaver. Now, gentlemen, I am absolutely and unalterably opposed to this investigation, and I am so opposed because of an honest belief that it will not serve any honest purpose, because it will do nothing other than scandalize our city, which has already had too much scandal in the public press throughout the country, and because the resolution is not intended to serve any good purpose, notwithstanding the very eminent position of the sponsor of the bill. Now, gentlemen, let us be fair with all concerned. Let us assume that my friend from Beaver does have complaints from some person who is confined in the penitentiary. Well, my friends, isn't that the most natural thing in the world that a man who is in jail does not like the surroundings? Why, if the surroundings are so desirable and delectable, of course it would not be a jail. You all know the old saw: That no man ever felt the halter drawn with good opinion of the law. I say, of course every prisoner in the penitentiary feels that he is innocent and feels that he is the victim of persecution, and he feels that the warden is the greatest enemy known to civilization. But, gentlemen, isn't the same thing true of the Eastern Penitentiary? Isn't the same thing true of every workhouse? Isn't the same thing true of every penal institution in the State? Why, certainly, the prisoners therein do not like their surroundings. But, gentlemen, as I said, let us be fair to all concerned. The warden of that prison is a very reputable gentleman. Mr. John Francies was a member of this House, I think, for two or three sessions and some of the older gentlemen surely remember him with interest and with pleasure. As has been suggested by Mr. Baldwin, you men remember that last year Mr. Francies, himself, came here with an awful expose of conditions which he found and which he could not control, and because of those unspeakable conditions, he asked the assistance of this Legislature in furnishing him a new site in the middle part of the State. The last session in its wisdom did furnish such a site, and of course it is most unfortunate that in the State of Pennsylvania no public enterprise can go on unless some detractor of our State and our community is always at work seeking to scandalize every person who honestly sees his duty and fearlessly tries to carry it out. Now, in the case at hand, in this investigation, I remember very distinctly what my friend from Beaver refers to. It was tried in the courts of Allegheny County. I want to say to you gentlemen, as one who was present, listening to the proceedings, securing the information that the members of the House ought to have, that we certainly do not want to spread this thing all over the State of Pennsylvania, because it plainly appears that it is nothing more than a mean, factional fight of small peanut politicians and men who are interested for no honest purposes. And, furthermore, I want to say to my friend from Beaver, whose motives of course I do not question and who is surely honest and upright in his intentions, that if he will take the trouble to investigate for himself he will agree with my friend, Mr. North, in saying that it is one of the cleanest institutions of its kind, under the circumstances that any State can wish to have. The institution is managed by a board of inspectors, and only the night before last the Governor of this State reappointed five inspectors. They are all men of standing in our community, and my friend from Beaver, I have no doubt, knows most of them. Mr. Rook, the editor of the Dispatch, Mr. McCague, of the Steel Company, Mr. Foley, and two other gentlemen whose names I cannot just now remember. I want to call to the attention of the members of this House the fact that the warden has to be re-appointed every six months. His term of office for the current six months is about to expire. Let me ask you, gentlemen, if there were any foundation for the charges made by my friend, Mr. Baldwin, do you suppose the board of inspectors sitting on that question would for one moment consider the reappointment of Mr. Francies? If those conditions were really true and if my friend from Beaver will appear before this board with the charges made by him, I am sure that the board of inspectors will welcome this investigation. We are having nothing but investigations. We are running, it seems, a government by commission and investigation, and surely we have enough investigations in this session. Now, my friends, as I said before, to be fair, both to Mr. Baldwin, the organization and to ourselves, if Mr. Baldwin has any such information, I say to him, go to the board of inspectors and give them your information, and if you do not get an honest hearing, and if you do not get a square deal, then come to this House, and I am sure we will take pleasure in giving you what you ask for. But in common sense and decency, it seems to me we ought not to scandalize our community, we ought not to cast suspicion upon a former member of this House, and we ought not to serve the mean, selfish interests of a few narrow-minded and prejudiced men. I therefore ask you gentlemen to vote this resolution down.

Mr. McALEER. Mr. Speaker, during the last session of the House I listened with particular interest to every word that was said here by Mr. Francies and the talk that he gave us interested me so that I followed up what he said. I talked with him personally and I talked with the directors of other institutions of the same kind, and I came to the conclusion that in the Western Penitentiary he did the best that he could under the circumstances. Mr. Stein, the gentleman from Allegheny, in his talk told you that an investigation of that institution would scandalize his city. That is one argument in favor of passing this resolution. I honestly believe in Mr. Francies; I have every confidence in Mr. Francies; but I think it should be the duty of this House to vote unanimously in favor of this resolution. I believe we can rely upon the Speaker to send there a commission of men who will not go there so much to criticise as to help. I think this House should, in its wisdom devote most any reasonable amount of money to remedying this condition. I think this resolution should be voted in favor of unanimously by this House, and that the Speaker should carry out its intent. If a commission be sent there and if they find these conditions as stated, I am sure they will make their criticism as charitable as possible.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Francis might well to-day say, "Save me from my friends." Allegheny County has no claim alone upon John Francies. John Francies is not only a State character; with his advanced advocacy of penal instiutions he becomes a national character. The gentleman from Delaware refers to the address of John Francies here in the body of this House last session. That was the voice of a man who was advancing away beyond his period of legislation for penal institutions. He showed by his talk that he had devoted much time, that he was practically devoting his whole life to this subject. Of course, a man of the strong nature that John Francies has makes his enemies, and of course he advances new thoughts which makes enemies. He must anticipate that. He stands here to-day, possibly met by some enemies, but his worst enemies, Mr. Speaker, to-day, are his friends who ask this House to refuse to vote for an investigation that he, himself, and the worthy gentlemen who have confidence in him and who have selected him as warden of the Western Penitentiary also ask for. Now, Mr. Speaker, I think he ought not to be stopped in his great work by his friends who would send out to this community the fact that he was being protected from any wrong doing. Those of us who know him, and who heard him on the floor of this House, who heard his witty, strong arguments, have faith in him; and those of us who have faith in him want him to have this reputation kept clean as it has been in the past. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the friends of John Francies in this House, among whom I claim myself to be, do him a great harm when we vote down this motion that was made by the gentleman from Beaver to refer this resolution to the Judiciary General Committee. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, as one having faith in the man, as one having faith in the policies of the man, I move, Mr. Speaker, that the vote by which motion to refer this resolution to the Judiciary General Committee be reconsidered.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

It was not agreed to.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the Resolution?

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think this resolution ought to pass. In what position has John Francies placed himself? Did he wait until these accusations were made against him, or against the management of the Western Penitentiary before he came before this House and told of the conditions that prevailed? Didn't he two years ago, when there was not a scintilla of evidence against him or his management, or a single suspicion of anything being done in that institution that could not be given to the public without reserve, didn't he, without any accusation, without any suspicion on the part of any one come here and ask this House to accord him the opportunity to speak to the members of this House as men, and didn't he exclude from the halls of the House the page boys so that he could speak without reserve, and without any suspicion? He is an honest man, and having found those conditions prevailing there, he came here and told the gentleman of the House "It is a shame on the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that I just acknowledge to you to-day just what is being done in the institution over which I have the honor of presiding. Here are the conditions as I find them." And every one of us who sat here and listened to the very able address blushed with shame. He said, "My soul is burning with a desire to correct this. Give me the authority and means and opportunity, and I am going to do it." And we did. He told you most frankly, "I can never correct these conditions as long as you are going to confine me and the members of this institution within these four walls. Let me take these men into the central part of this State; give me land where I can work these men in a healthy vocation, and I will show you how I can improve the moral condition of this institution." And we did it, and he is at this very time engaged in carrying that into effect. I do not doubt it is true that the overhead expenses have increased. How could they fail to increase? What is the man doing to-day? He is managing the institution as it was before, and at the same time transferring the machinery and transferring everything that will be available for the building of the new institution from the old site to the new, and of course additional men are needed in supervising the erection of the new institution up in Centre County. Ought we at this time, after this man, without the finger of suspicion being pointed at him, who came before this House and told us just what conditions he found and told us that it was the passion of his life to correct it, and he is doing it now, should we not give him the opportunity of at least two years more to see whether he can do it or not. Do you believe that the newspapers will publish in connection with this investigation the fact that John Francies forewarned this Legislature and pleaded with them to give him the authority and opportunity to correct conditions existing in this institution. You know they will not. You know they will scandalize John Francies and all the penal institutions of the State, and I think this resolution should be voted down.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. GEORGE A. BALDWIN and Mr. SWIFT.

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment:

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Section 3, by inserting after line 29, the following: "As provided, further, That during weeks in which a legal or special holiday occurs, and is observed by an establishment, any female may be employed by such establishment during three of the five remaining days of such week, for a longer period of time than is allowed by this act, but no female shall be permitted to work more than two and one-half hours overtime during any one of such three days nor for more than the maximum number of hours per week specified in this act."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, the amendment, I believe, was asked for by the laundry interests. I believe there are two very good reasons against inserting it in the bill. The first reason is that it would increase the hours of labor of women from nine hours to eleven and one-half hours on certain days during weeks in which holidays occurred. The whole principle of this bill is based upon the proposition that extended hours of labor are injurious to the health of the working people, particularly of the women. The hours of labor are fixed at nine hours. This amendment will increase them to eleven an one half hours a day. Information received with reference to the laundry industry has shown that work in the laundry is of a particularly injurious character, and it appears to me to be a very unwise proposition to introduce an amendment of this sort, which can be taken advantage of by that particular industry, especially, and which will prevent the workers who are entitled to a holiday during a particular week from properly enjoying that week because of the increased hours of labor. Instead of making the whole holiday week a week to be looked forward to with anticipation, you will find that the holiday weeks are the most laborious weeks of the whole year. There is no single reason for protecting the laundry people in this bill. There are other industries which come in here with numerous complaints against this bill, against the particular provisions of the bill, whose complaints are based upon the fear of competition in other sections of the country where they maintain these particular conditions do not apply; but, in the case of the laundry industry, they cannot come in and say that there business will be interfered with by competition. There is no competition from outside of the boundaries of this State in the laundry industry. The laundry industry is a local industry absolutely, and it is merely a question as to whether or not the laundryman is going to be able to adapt himself to the new regulations. It is merely a question as to whether or not the consumer is going to change his methods, or the time of sending his laundry or wash to the laundry, in order to enable the laundryman to fit himself to the new conditions. I believe that in the interests of the worker this amendment ought to be voted down.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the House that I am heartily in sympathy with the proposition of dealing with the woman and child labor question. I want to do all that is practicable to assist them. I expect to vote for the bill and support it, but I realize most fully that there is a practical side to all of these questions. We must not entirely lose sight of practical proposition that confronts us when we are passing legislation of this character. Those who are engaged in business realize the difficulties of their business. Those who sit down to write out a theory to meet the labor conditions follow out a theory and oft-times lose entire sight of the practical side. Now, there are only, I think, eight legal holidays in the State of Pennsylvania. There are, taking out the Sundays, about three hundred and fifteen work days. This amendment will effect only eight days of the year. Now, any person who is engaged in an industry and in competition with others—and whether he be in competition or not—he does what is proper and produces his material or substance just as cheaply as possible, reserving for himself a reasonable profit. Now, if the time lost by this amendment in some of our industries means only eight days in a year that cannot be made up, unless that industry employ additional labor and that additional labor must be skilled labor, then we ought to stop and consider the proposition carefully whether we are not going backwards. Now, here is the laundry industry. I am well acquainted with the laundrymen of my county. I know the circumstances under which the business is carried on. I realize that they will lose valuable time and they are thrown back very much and hampered and probably the whole public will be dissatisfied—at least all of their patrons when they want their laundry delivered at a certain time. Now, is it not wiser to allow these only eight days a year, to increase the labor so as to make up the time, and not bring on that industry an impractical hardship. I realize the importance of this great proposition of relieving the girls and the women of this State. I think that our theorists back of this bill are a little unreasonable, and in particular this amendment ought to go in. I think, if you were to follow the subject out deeply, it is a question of whether or not that amendment does not react against the other people that they desire to relieve, because an industry must go on and the patrons must be satisfied. Now, if there were fifty holidays in a year, I would be absolutely opposed to this amendment, but there are but eight, and it is only to compensate for eight days service, when they would have, to some extent, to hire incompetent labor, which would disarrange and disorganize their whole system, because it requires a system to run a laundry. When you stop to think of the great number of patrons that a laundry has and that each and every person expects his laundry to be delivered at a certain time, you realize that to hire competent help would be very expensive, in order to help him to make good. Now, I do hope that the gentlemen will vote in favor of this bill. I do hope that the gentleman who is in favor of this bill will consent to this amendment asked for by the people who are so vitally interested. I do not believe that it is a step backward. I really believe that it will strengthen the bill. I think the House should allow this amendment to go into the bill. I am heartily in favor of what the bill stands for with reference to conditions regarding female child labor, but we ought not to go past the practical point. This amendment is practical. It is not a hardship, and I think it ought to go in. I hope the gentleman will withdraw his opposition to that amendment. This is a serious proposition.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I am a member of the Committee on Labor and Industry and attended the meetings because I am interested in this bill, and will give it my support. Representatives of the laundry interests came before the committee and put up their arguments to the committee, and their arguments appeared to have some merit. Unless this amendment were adopted it might resolve itself into this condition, and we could not get into the laundry before the holiday and it would mean that the laundry would be dragged back into the cellars of your homes where the servant, or if you were unfortunate enough not to have a servant your mothers and sisters would have to go back to the old kitchen washtub again. Notwithstanding the fact that two and one-half hours are added to the three days in any week in which a holiday occurs under this amendment no female would be permitted to work more than the required number of hours as provided in the rest of this bill. You gentlemen must realize that although overtime is allowed by this amendment that no employee will be permitted to work more than the required number of hours, and I cannot see how this is going to work a hardship on anyone. It does not affect the validity of the bill or the purpose of the bill but simply does, this: it meets little conditions that come up which cannot be met by the bill itself. At the hearing before the committee other manufacturers presented their side of the question but they did not appear to have merit. In a holiday week where the actual time of work is decreased by the holiday, they would not have time to get the work out unless this provision is inserted in the bill. Just before the holiday is the rush time when every one takes his laundry to the laundries. This amendment would give them the opportunity to make up that time and all the difficulties would be eliminated.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I cannot altogether agree with the gentlemen who are supporting this amendment. Neither one of them, to my mind, have spoken in favor of this amendment. Now the laundry industry, or those employed by the laundries, work about five days a week, and the proposition advocated in this amendment will enable laundries during eight more weeks of the year to employ the girls or women eleven and one-half hours instead of nine hours a day. You will practically, so far as the laundry interest is concerned, nullify the very principle of this act. We have heard a very strong plea for ourselves and for the gentlemen who want their shirts to come home on time, and you have heard the terrible threats advanced that possibly our shirts will not come home on the day we expect them. There is another side to the proposition, the side of the workingman, and that is the side we are considering presumptively at least in this bill. We ought to remember that the worker is entitled when a holiday week comes along to a reasonably good week. If you are going to insist that that worker becomes thoroughly exhausted by working three days of eleven and one-half hours each, you will destroy the whole principle upon which holidays were established. They have advanced one argument in favor of the amendment, and it is purely a selfish and individual one, and that is that we do not want to be hampered in the time of securing our wash from the laundry. I cannot see that that interest will be hurt in any way, there can be no competition for their work will always have to be done. In Illinois they have this same law without the amendment, and the manner in which they work will be similar to that in the State of Illinois. Heretofore laundries have been working more than ten hours a day under pressure. They think that there is no other way to work. I have in my desk now a letter from the Pilgrim Laundry Company in Philadelphia, and another large laundry company, stating that they are satisfied with the terms of the bill, and that they can readjust their hours, and the labor arrangements in their establishments in such a way without injury to ourselves or to the patrons of the laundry to get through with their work in a proper fashion and get it out on time. I can see no reason for the adoption of this amendment, and can see very valid reasons against the adoption of it.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it is the intention of the gentleman from Philadelphia to mislead the members of this House, but it strikes me that some members of the House may not understand that this two and one-half extra hours applies to three days in a week in which there is a legal holiday. During that week we would have the same total number of hours as in any other week. The number of hours in a week in no instance would exceed the maximum number of hours as required in this bill.

Mr. McALEER. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the gentlemen who oppose this amendment lose sight of the fact that the larger laundries use machinery in the production of their output, rather in the doing of their work, while some of the smaller laundries work by hand. Now if the hand laundries are compelled to practically work on short time during a given week, what it will mean will be that they will either have to go out of business, perhaps, and may be not, or they will have to find some means to providing themselves with labor saving machinery, such as is used by the Pilgrim Laundry Company of which the gentleman has just spoken. If the Pilgrim Laundry Company desires to put out more work, it simply means the buying of a new machine or two. I see no reason why this amendment should not prevail, because if it does not prevail it means throwing out of work perhaps lots of people who now get work in the smaller laundries. The smaller laundries will either have to provide themselves with machinery, or go out of business, which will throw lots of laborers out of work.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman who offered this amendment.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Erie permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KITTS. I will.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if the amendment if adopted would apply to every industry.

Mr. KITTS. It would. It does not apply strictly to laundries, but would apply to any industry.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Then it is a general amendment.

Mr. KITTS. Yes, sir.

And the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

A division having been called for, 90 voted in the affirmative and 61 in the negative, so the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was adopted.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section as amended?

Mr. LESLIE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a further amendment to this section.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read the amendment as follows:

Amend section 3 by inserting after line 44 the following: "And provided further that during weeks in which a legal or special holiday occurs and is observed by an establishment, any female may be employed by such establishment during three of the five remaining days of such week, for a longer period of time than is allowed by this Act, but no female shall be permitted to work more than 2½ hours overtime during any one of such three days nor for more than the maximum number of hours per week specified in this act.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. SPEISER. Mr. Speaker, it is not to be wondered at that this amendment is offered at this time. I am surprised that it was not offered at the same time as that of the gentleman from Erie. I had not intended to say anything on this bill this morning. I had no doubt that every man here favored the passage of this bill in its original form. I cannot see any reason why that should not be the case. I dare say there is no man on the floor of the House who does not know the merits of the bill, and no man who would not be in favor of it in its original form irrespective of any political affiliations he might have or any pledges he might have given to his constituency, nor when he was a candidate for the Assembly. Now, as the sponsor of this bill has very plainly said to you a few minutes ago, a holiday week would be something that would not be anticipated and looked forward by all the female employees that come within the purview of this act, and it strikes me as peculiar that we will deny to our own people, the people who earn their livelihood by manual labor, that little satisfaction of having a week come along in which they really have a true holiday in which they only work the ordinary hours as prescribed in other weeks, and get a day off. Are the commercial interests of Pennsylvania to be sacrificed by passing this bill in its original form. Is there a man in this room who questions for a moment that there can be any hurt to any business interest of any kind be it laundry or otherwise. The easiest way would be to engage more help, or have a little less output, and to my mind there is no question but that it is better to save the health of our women of this State who are the future mothers of future citizenship, than to increase the output, but it is a matter great enough to when it will put a greater burden upon a woman in a holiday week, when in the original form of the act she cannot be made to work more than nine hours a day while under this amendment she will be compelled to work eleven and one-half hours a day during the week in which there is a holiday. Giving her the time for her lunch, and the time occupied coming to and going from work, and you have that poor woman occupied fourteen hours a day during the week in which there is a holiday. What is the use of having holidays The work in that week is worse than the work in any other week. It is an unfair advantage to take of the women of this State, to ask them to do that. No woman can stand to work fourteen hours a day, and that is what you are doing here, and I ask you Gentlemen of the House to vote this amendment down. I am sorry that this bill could not have gone through with a clean bill of health irrespective of the minor desires of any one industry.

Mr. LESLIE. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, I wish to say that the very point that he raised is a point that this amendment tries to cover and that is to give the women a holiday. As I understand it, in the holiday week it increases the work of the laundry at least ten per cent. and decreases the hours of labor. Now this is only to laundries and establishments that observe the holidays. It is very easy for the laundry to say that you can have a holiday but you will have to work this extra day and get out the work, and this amendment is simply to provide that they will have one full holiday in every sense of the word.

Mr. ISLER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny and in speaking I want to concur in every word that the gentleman from Phladelphia has said. I say why not put on more girls? The laundry interests are making plenty of money and they have been making plenty of money and they are now about forming a trust out of it, that is air-tight, over in our city. For this reason, I think this amendment should be voted down.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I see very little reason for this argument. The idea is not to knock the girls out of a holiday or compel them to work on a holiday but to get the work out.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I think the members of the House principally miscomprehend the fundamental purpose of this bill. They have been listening here to a plea for the industry. There is no validity in that. Every one of these pleas, you and I myself know, are not well founded. They will continue to go on with the laundry business during a holiday week just as during any other week. We know the indunstry is not going to suffer. We know that if we are decent men at all that we are willing to waive some slight inconvenience ourselves in order to carry out the purpose of this bill. If there is any man here that believes that the interests are entitled to more consideration than the workers, he does not comprehend the purpose that was back of the movement during the last few years. He does not comprehend the whole movement that has been going on to secure better conditions for the employees and all the people who are at work, for all the workers. If he does not comprehend that he may properly vote for that amendment but if he does he will vote against this amendment. I call for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the adoption of the amendment. As the yeas and nays have been called for, the Clerk will call the roll. The roll will be verified.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendment not agreed to.

Mr. O'NEILL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following motion.

The SPEAKER. The motion will be read by the Clerk.

The motion was read by the Clerk as follows:

Moved that the vote by which the amendment to section three, after line 29, was adopted, be reconsidered

Mr. McALEER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. PIPER. I rise at this time asking every member of this House to-day to vote in favor of reconsidering this vote, that is vote in favor of the motion as it is now presented before the House.

Some two or three months ago labor held a conference here in Harrisburg, at which conference they favored this bill as it was presented at that time. The labor conference did not keep any one from attending that work. All organizations of labor or unorganized labor were invited to attend that conference, hear these bills read and pass views on these bills. I rise to-day, not because I want to do any injury to any particular industry, but as I believe that some of the industries feel that they are having an injustice done to them and are not taking a true conception of the bill. I feel that if they would consider that this thing will not take effect for some time, that they will be able to eventually find some way to comply with the law if we leave it as we now have it. I would ask that each and every member of the House vote aye on this motion.

On the question recurring,

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question now recurs to the adoption of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Erie, (Mr. Kitts) at the end of line 29. Is the House ready for the question?

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker I ask that the roll be called on this question.

Mr. PIPER. I second the call.

The SPEAKER. Do the gentlemen insist on their request for the calling of the roll?

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I will be satisfied with a rising vote.

A division having been called for nobody having voted in the affirmative and 118 in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment not adopted.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the third section?

It was agreed to.

The fourth section of the bill was then read as follows:

Night-Work Prohibition in Manufacturing Establishments

Section 4 No female shall be employed or permitted to work in any manufacturing establishment before the hour of six o'clock in the morning or after the hour of ten in the evening of any day provided That this section shall not apply to managers superintendents or persons doing clerical or stenographic work

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 4 line 4 by inserting after the word "ten" the word "o'clock."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The section as amended was then agreed to.

The fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth sections of the bill were then separately read and agreed to as follows:

The eleventh section of the bill was read as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 11 line 12 by striking out the word "forty" and inserting in place thereof the word "seventy-five"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, section 11 provides for certain sanitary arrangements in connection with factories and in the Committee, at the instance of the gentleman from Erie (Mr. Kitts) there was a reduction made or rather an increase made from 25 to 40; that is, there was to be a toilet for every 25 females in the original draft of the bill and that suggestion was changed so as to read "one toilet for every forty females." I understand that there has been some suggestion made as to the propriety of that change and for that reason I introduced this amendment which would place that bill back in its original state.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The twelfth section of the bill was then read and agreed to as follows:

Lunch Rooms in Certain Establishments

The thirteenth section of the bill was read as follows:

Exhaust Fans in Certain Establishments

Section 13 Any person who shall employ or permit any female to work in any establishment in which poisonous or dangerous dust fumes or gases shall be created by the machinery or material in process of manufacture shall provide proper hoods and pipes connected with exhaust fans of sufficient capacity to remove such dust fumes or gases at their point of origin and prevent them from mingling with the air in the room and such fans shall be kept running constantly while such dust fumes or gases shall be generated

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment:

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 13 line 3 by striking out the word "dangerous" and inserting in place thereof the word "injurious."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The section as amended was then agreed to.

The fourteenth section of the bill was then agreed to as follows:

The fifteenth section was read as follows:

The Chief Factory Inspector shall prepare the abstract of the provisions of this act and a form for the schedule of hours of labor required by this section Copies of such abstract and such form shall be printed in accordance with the laws of this Commonwealth regulating printing and publishing under the supervision of the Superintendent of Public Printing and Binding and the Chief Factory Inspector shall supply the same upon application to all persons required to post the abstract and schedule aforesaid

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 15, line 5, by inserting between the words "in" and "conspiciuous" the article "a"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The section as amended was then agreed to.

The sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth sections of the bill were read and agreed to as follows:

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

In line 20 after the word "machinery" insert "or in operating a moving picture machine"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. CONNIFF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

In Section 4, line 37, strike out the word "anthracite."
In Section 4, lines 38 and 39, strike out the following words: "or in any coal breaker, washery or in any of the outside workings of any mine."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. CONNIFF. Mr. Speaker, I am in hearty accord with the provisions of this bill, but it seems that its framers in drawing this bill made a mistake, and it is a serious mistake as far as the anthracite regions are concerned. The Mine and Mining Commission, both the minority and the majority have said that the age limit should be fixed at sixteen to enter the mines and at fourteen to enter the breakers. The breakers in the anthracite region form the chief industry for working boys, and most boys enter these breakers at the age of thirteen and it doesn't do them any harm. I, myself, worked in the breakers before the age of sixteen—at about fifteen, I believe—and it did not do me any harm. Most of my colleagues who have worked in the breakers began at the age of fourteen, some of them at an age less than that. It is all right to prohibit the boys from entering the mines at an age less than sixteen, but it is not proper to prohibit them from entering the breakers at an age less than sixteen, and it unfortunately happens in our anthracite regions that many widows depend upon the support of their boys at this age, at the ages of fourteen and fifteen. And I am telling you these facts, gentleman, candidly. The labor men have suggested to me that these amendments be offered. The labor men told me also that they are in hearty accord with the general provisions of this bill, but in the interests of those widows in the anthracite regions who depend upon the support of their boys at the ages of fourteen and fifteen, they ask for these amendments and ask you to support them.

Mr. REESE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CONNIFF. Yes, sir, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. REESE. You mean to change the age from sixteen to fourteen years?

Mr. CONNIFF. At the breakers.

Mr. REESE. Mr. Speaker, I am in accordance with the gentleman; it not only works a harship to the boys, but in many instances we have collieries and operations that are situated miles from town. It gives employment to these boys, and if the age of the breaker boys should be changed to sixteen, it would be impossible to do this work. I, myself, went in when I was nine years old. I never lost anything by it and I think that at fourteen it is proper, and I ask the members of the House to support the measure.

I would like to state, in answer to a question as to whether it is dangerous work, that those things are protected by the mine owners.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I want to state to the House the reasons for inserting this provision in the bill. We have classified here a number of industries. In the majority of industries it is permissible under the bill for a boy to go to work at the age of fourteen. In certain other industries which are classified as being extraordinarily hazaradous or being injurious to the health of the boy, we have raised the age to sixteen. We have classified breakers of the anthracite mines in the class of industries, in which the boy should be particularly protected. For that reason we have fixed the age limit for boys in the breakers at sixteen. The age limit for the boys who work in mines has also been fixed at sixteen,—fixed at sixteen in 1911. I understand that there has been no complaint from the bituminous mining regions. They would be affected by this provisions just as the anthracite regions are affected. The provision relative to boys being employed in connection with the working of mines on the outside—that provision would apply just as well to the bituminous as to the anthracite regions. I feel, gentlemen, that while I am not thoroughly acquainted with the character of the work in the breakers, the provisions have been inserted there upon the experience of people who know very much more about it than I do myself. I have spoken to a number of men who have labored in the breakers in the anthracite regions, and they tell me that this provision raising the limit to the age of sixteen in the case of the breakers was properly inserted in the bill.

Mr. CONNIFF. Mr. Speaker, I merely desire to inform the members of the House, in answer to Mr. Walnut's suggestion that no complaints come from the bituminous regions, the reason is that there are no breakers in the bituminous region.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The section as amended was then agreed to.

The fifth, sixth and seventh sections of the bill were read and agreed to as follows:

Work by Child Under Eighteen Prohibited In Extra-Hazardous Occupations

The eighth section was read as follows:

Night Work Children Under Sixteen

Section 8 No child under sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in or in connection with any establishment before the hours of seven o'clock in the morning or after the hour of six o'clock in the evening of any day

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer an amendment to this section.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read the amendment as follows:

Amend Section 8 by adding at the end of the section the following:

Excepting that where the process of manufacture or the nature of the business is of a kind that necessitates a continuous day and night employment male minors not under fourteen years of age may be employed day or night or partly day and partly night: Provided however that the parent or guardian of a boy or boys over fourteen years of age furnish the employer with an affidavit that wages earned by said boy are necessary for the maintainance of said boy or the family of which he is a member and that said parent or guardian is unable in any other manner to provide said maintainance and provided further that said employment shall not exceed nine hours during any twenty-four hours for minors under the age of sixteen years.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out to the House the seriousness of this amendment. It is an amendment that has been tacked on to the Child Labor Bill for a number of years in this State. It has been the intention of the legislation to prevent the working of boys at night between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, and our statute books present a very curious legislation, an act prohibiting the working of boys at night time. This amendment in addition to permitting the employment of children at night, would increase the hours of labor from eight to nine for boys between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years. This amendment, if passed, would nullify the whole bill. There would not be enough of the bill left scarcely to make it worthy of passage and I therefore ask you to vote this amendment down.

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, this amendment has been introduced at the request of the glass workers in my district, all union glass factories. Last fall at the settlement of the scale of wages the workers accepted a twenty per cent. reduction in order to compete with the machine made bottle plants. If this amendment is not attached to the bill, you will do away with one hour a day of the workman in the bottle factories who work piece work, and it will be reducing their wages just one hour per day more than they had to accept last fall in the settlement of the wages. I ask that this amendment go through. I do not think there is a man in this House who wants to reduce anybody's wages, and this bill in its original form will reduce the wages in the glass houses. The work is not hard, and the boys between the ages of fourteen and sixteen do not work hard, and it is sometimes necessary for them to work in order to provide the necessities of life for the family. If you do not vote for this amendment, you are going to vote to reduce the wages of the men who accepted a twenty-per cent cut, in order to compete with the machine plants.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to have any quarrels with my colleague from Allegheny, or Pittsburgh, but I am fearful of this amendment on the grounds that I am employed in a different industry from the industry that my colleague wants to benefit in his particular district. If I could be sure that this amendment would not open up the way for every other industry throughout the State of Pennsylvania, then I might feel somewhat inclined to help that particular industry. But as I can read this amendment, as I construe the amendment, I realize that by opening up the way for the glass workers of Pittsburgh, we are opening up the way for every other industry in the State of Pennsylvania. The textile industry in the city of Philadelphia may take advantage of this opening, and they may say that they will have to work their boys and say that it is necessary to do so and what evidence have we that it is not necessary? I have no great bad feeling towards the amendment, but I am going to ask in the interest of my own particular industry of this State that the amendment be not carried here today.

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, the provisions of this bill plainly state that where the Factory Inspector has decided that it does not necessitate continuous day or night work, the work shall not be carried on in that line, and this amendment specifically states that where it necessitates night work, it shall only be done where it is necessary. In the glass house, the glass must be worked when it is clear and melted. A boy has to go into a glass house when he is young to become a mechanic in order that they may be able to compete with the machine made glass plants. The work in a glass factory is not a hardship to the boys. Most of them who get through at three o'clock in the morning, stay around until daylight and will play a game of ball, so you can readily see that the work is not hard. If you do not want to reduce their wages any further than at the present time, vote for this amendment.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, in case that there may be no misunderstanding, I would like to call your attention to the fact that that glass-blowers association or glass manufacturers are objecting most strenuously to the bill as it now stands. They have advanced the plea that the industry is going to be seriously affected, and have also advanced the same proposition as the gentleman from Allegheny relative to the places where children are now engaged. A great deal of testimony has been secured after a careful investigation of the conditions in the very places that the gentleman has referred to, and from a medical observation has been determined that not only the children but the men as well but it is particularly injurious to the children, and this was so well recognized that every industry in every other state engaged in this business has enacted this very proposition that we propose to enact here. The industry would not be affected, nor would the glass blowers, but this bill would merely put Pennsylvania in her proper place by recognizing the needs of the children of the State.

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, the reason that it does not affect the other States is because they have machine plants, machine bottle plants, which they do not have in Pittsburgh, where they are all hand blown plants. The machine plants have all moved from that district because of the bonuses offered by the different cities to those plants to come and install the automatic machines for blowing glass.

Amend section 13, line 2, by striking out the word "ten" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, section thirteen is the section covering street trades. In the original draft of the bill it provided that no boy under twelve years of age could engage in street trade. This provision was amended in committee to reduce the age from twelve to ten. The amendment I now introduce is to restore it to the original condition. The purpose of course of regulating street trades has not been recognized for a great many years. We have had a theory that a boy in a street trade is a sort of an independent tradesman and his business is to be encouraged. In the last ten or fifteen years we have come to the conclusion through a careful investigation of the conditions existing among the street traders that some regulation of their business should be enacted. As a result of that investigation, we find that among the street traders these little boys of the street are, the largest proportion of delinquents that exists among any group of boys in the community. By being placed on the street, the effect upon their character and habits of work is very serious and the effect also upon the morals has been determined also to be serious. For that reason we have introduced this regulation to prevent boys under twelve years of age from engaging in street trade. The amendment will restore the section to its original condition.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer an amendment to this section.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The amendment was read as follows:

Amend Section 25 by adding: "provided that this section in this act shall not apply to any boy or boys selling or distributing newspapers within this Comonwealth."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. LETZKUS. Mr. Speaker, my intention in introducing this amendment is to do away with the badge question. Where I reside we have something like fifty boys selling newspapers. They must be licensed under this bill. They must secure a badge and a lot of these boys sell papers between the hours of 4:15 and 5:30 in the evening, which is about one hour and fifteen minutes, and often times, there are times when these boys have some other work to do for their mothers or some other kind of work to do about the house and they don't carry the papers themselves on that evening but they delegate some other young chums of theirs to carry their papers for them. Under the provisions of this act that cannot be done: and they cannot do that unless they have badges. I don't believe in tagging boys for one hour and fifteen minutes a day only for distributing newspapers, and if they did not have a badge they could not do this work and they would be the sufferers. His customers would also suffer. Yet we all want our papers in the evening when we are accustomed to them and when we do not get them, we will be likely to heap comp'aint on the boy because he was not there. I ask that this amendment go through.

Mr. LOWERS. Mr. Speaker, I think we are rapidly becoming extremists. I believe in the general provisions of this bill but as a boy of ten I devoted a part of my spare time out of school hours to pedding newspapers. I don't think I am any worse for it and, as I said before, I believe we are depriving a boy of a natural outlet for the energy that is within him. I think we are drawing the line entirely too fine. We are inclined to make loafers out of boys by placing these restrictions on them. I think we ought to give the boys a chance for the outlet of that energy which is within them.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, there has been considerable discussion upon this question, on the matter of the wearing of badges of boys in the street trades. If we eliminate the question of badges of the regular boys who are engaged in work on the street trades, this measure is worthless; and there cannot be any force in this measure without it, because there is no means of telling what age the boy is and the only way we can identify him under this measure is by the badge as a trader on the street (which is the same as an employment certificate) provided for any boy between fourteen and sixteen years of age. There is no other way of determining this, so far as the boy between fourteen and sixteen is concerned, who is properly engaged in a street trade. There is no way of telling whether he is entitled to be there or whether he ought to be in school. If we are going to wipe out the badge provision we might as well wipe out the whole measure and defeat the whole bill. They have been doing it in Boston, New York and Buffalo and there they find it works no hardship on the boy or on the community .

Mr. WILDMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am in hearty sympathy with this measure but I believe that the idea of placing a badge upon a boy who is working for his livlihood, for himself and perhaps a widowed mother, is a matter that is ridiculous and absurd. I can see absolutely no good in placing this badge upon a boy. It makes it, to a certain extent, ridiculous and I hope that this amendment will pass.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALNUT and Mr. SWIFT.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WHITMAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to explain the purpose for which this bill was introduced. It applies only to counties of less than one hundred and fifty thousand population. It was introduced to correct a wrong existing in our county and it is duplicated in many counties of the State and to prove it, yesterday there was a meeting of the County Treasurers of different counties of the State held to protest against the passage of this bill.

In our county for years we have been asking the County Treasurer to deposit the county funds at fixed interest in some bank whereby the tax payers could profit by the proceeds. We have been refused this, saying that there was no act by the Legislature to do this. It was carried so far in some counties of the State that the Treasurer has deposited his fund in a bank and is drawing interest on it and in one conuty in the State the tax payers found that the Tresaurer had collected fifteen hundred dollars interest on the County funds. They intended to have the Treasurer pay this over but the judge decided that they had no power to force him to return the fifteen hundred dollars and that he was only controlling a lot of money that the county turned over to him and all that was demanded of him was that he account for the amount charged. I am asking the support of the House to pass this bill because it is intended to correct a condition that exists not alone in our county but in other counties.

The question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, a number of gentlemen of the House have asked me concerning this bill. I desire to state at this time, for the benefit of those who may desire to ask something more in regard to the bill that this is nothing more or less than a codification and amendment of the laws affecting the Sanitary Board, which by the experience of seventeen years, has been found to be necessary in order to perfect the organization of this Board. There are but very few changes from the old law. There are a few duties enjoined, and only a few, so that the State Veterinarian and the Secretary are simply one office. There is one material change in the last section of the bill which I know some of the members of the House will be interested in, specially the farmers, and that is in regard to pasterurizing or hearting the skimmed milk to 175 degrees Fahrenheit. Some might question the expense of that. I have spoken with some fifteen or twenty men of my county; I have also spoken with the members of the Sanitary Board in regard to this expense. If they were obliged to put in the compelte pasteurizing equipment, it might cost five or six hundred dollars, but that, I find, is not necessary. That can simply be done by passing steam through a pipe into the milk, and will not delay the farmers in waiting for their milk more than ten minutes, and by that means they will wipe away all danger of inoculation which may affect the hogs and the pigs and that is about the purpose of the bill, simply to perfect the purposes of the Board for the last seventeen years.

Mr. E. G. M. KUHNS. Mr. Speaker, I quite agree with the gentleman that the material changes in this bill are very few, but I wish to call the attention of the members of the House to page 21 of the bill, Section 38, which reads: "The Secretary of the State Livestock Sanitary Board shall render a report annually to the Governor of the Commonwealth concerning the work of the State Livestock Sanitary Board. Such report shall be rendered oftener if so directed by the Governor," and so forth. Now, gentlemen, does the State Livestock Sanitary Board work for the Governor of this Commonwealth, or does this Board work for the general public? Does the Governor of this Commonwealth have any animals to be inspected? Does the Governor of this Commonwealth need any inspection as to his sanitary condition? If so, I think Section 38 is all right. If not, I do not agree with the section, and I doubt whether the members on the floor of the House can agree with that section. If his State Livestock Sanitary Board is to look after the general public's affairs, why not have the annaul report go to the general public ,instead of to the Governor? Further, I agree with the gentlemen that the material changes of the bill are mighty few, because I cannot find hardly any changes except a salary increaser. increasing the salary of the Secretary of the State Livestock Sanitary Board to five thousand dollars and the Deputy from one to four thousand dollars. Now, gentlemen, I have a resolution in my hand that I received from an organization during the week, a class of people who are interested in the work of the State Livestock Sanitary Board, who are unalterably opposed to this salary increase. They cannot see the necessity for it. They think that those men get all the money for their services that they deserve. Now, since the material changes in the bill are so little that it is simply keeping away the report from the general public that belongs to the general public, and the salary increaser, I ask you members on the floor of the House to defeat the bill and leave the law as it is.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I am afraid that, in view of the fact that there has been a mistake made in the title, it should be amended. I therefore move the postponement of this bill for the present.

Mr. E. G. M. KUHNS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of H. R. Bill No. 34, entitled:

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. FRANK GRAY. Mr. Speaker, if the Clerk can read this bill, he can do more than I can. It seems that this bill is all mixed up.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not quite follow the gentleman.

Mr. FRANK GRAY. Mr. Speaker, the bill is all mixed up. The title is in the middle.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state for the information of the gentleman that the Clerk has ordered another copy of this bill to be printed, by reason of errors which the printer has made in the bill which is on the desks; consequently, it might be well to simply pass this bill in its place until it is properly printed.

Agreeably to order.

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of H. R. bill No. 409, as follows:

The SPEAKER (George E. Alter) in the Chair.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. J. E. Wright, offered the following prayer:

O, God, with the light of this new day, we praise Thee and we thank Thee for the opportunities which Thous hast set before us. Thou hast refreshed us with sleep. Thou hast provided food and raiment for us. Thou hast exempted us from the pitiless storms which are elsewhere prevailing. Thou hast enriched us with homes and surrounded us with friends. Thou art giving to us the opportunity and privilege of daily work and for all this, we render to Thee our thanks. We ask now that Thou wouldst help us to do the work of this day honestly and earnestly and faithfully. Bless the people whom we represent . May they have a goodly measure of that virtue and prosperity and well-being and comfort and opportunity for honest work and the earning of an equitable wage which we are earnestly endeavoring to secure for them in our work here. We pray for those who are otherwise conditioned; who have been turned out from their homes and occupations and whose future is so uncertain. God pity and help them. We ask it in His name who has taught us to say: Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread and lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory, forever. Amen.

BILL ON SECOND READING.

The SPEAKER. When the House adjourned last night it had under consideration on Second Reading, House Bill No. 176, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of an act entitled "An Act to provide for the appointment of county and city inspectos of weights and measures providing for their compensation and expenses prescribing their duties prohibiting vendors from giving false or insufficient weight and fixing the penalties for the violation of the provisions hereof" approved the eleventh day of May Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven by vesting the appointment of inspectors of weights and measures in cities of the first class in the county commissioners on page 2 of yesterday's Calendar,

The question being,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading.

Mr. BLELOCH. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following motion:

The SPEAKER. The motion will be read by the Clerk.

The motion was read by the Clerk as follows:

Moved by Mr. Bleloch, seconded by Mr. Heidinger, that the vote by which the title to House Bill No. 176, file folio 2291, was agreed to on second reading, be reconsidered.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, last evening while other members of the House were asking unanimous consent to call up bills for the purpose of amendment I felt it was an opportune time for me to do likewise. At the particular time I do not believe there was a quorum of the House and the Speaker realized such was the fact and declared an adjournment. I would now, Mr. Speaker, request that the members do not consider this motion at this time, as I myself would far rather move to postpone further consideration of this bill at this time.

Mr. BLELOCH. Mr. Speaker, at the time the gentleman from Philadelphia arose last night and asked unanimous consent of the House to have House Bill No. 176 taken up on the second reading Calendar for the purpose of amendment, we had no objection to that because we had in mind some amendments to section one and also the title of that bill. Owing to the confusion of many men leaving the hall the Speaker, I am satisfied, did not see my efforts to attract his attention to the fact that I had amendments also to offer to the first section of that bill. Under the circumstances the gentleman from Philadelphia has already admitted that he is satisfied that there was no quorum in this House when that section one was agreed to and when the title was agreed to. Therefore I ask that the vote by which the title passed second reading be reconsidered and then I propose to ask that the vote by which section one was agreed to on second reading be also reconsidered, for the purpose of amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The Speaker declared the nays seem to have it.

Whereupon a division was called for, 46 voting in the affirmative and 6 in the negative.

And the question was determined in the negative.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, I move at this time that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. WILTBANK. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent of the House to call up at this time, on page 20 of yesterday's Calendar, bills on final passage. House Bill No. 1010, file folio 3529.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1010, entitled.

An Act relating to domestic animals and poultry providing methods of improving the quality thereof and of preventing controlling and eradicating diseases thereof imposing certain duties upon practitioners of veterinary medicine in Pennsylvania regulating the sale of tuberculin mal-lein, and other biological products for use in testing domestic animals and providing penalties for the violation of this act.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

Mr. MATHER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker. I ask the unanimous consent of the House to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read the amendment as follows:

Title: line 6: Insert after the word "animals" the following:
"defining the powers and duties of the State Livestock Sanitary Board and the officers and employes thereof; fixing the compensation of the State Veterinarian."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to the insertion of the amendment? Is there any objection? The Chair hears none, and the amendment will be inserted in accordance with the instructions of the House.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Claycomb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CLAYCOMB. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the sponsor of the bill explain its provisions to the House.

Mr. CLAYCOMB. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to prevent any one who has been disbarred and who has not taken an appeal to the Supreme Court to practice law, making it unlawful for him to practice before any alderman or justice of the peace or magistrate. For the reason, that should he be disbarred evidently there is some circumstance that would justify the people from being preyed upon by any one who unscrupulously would endeavor to hold himself up to practice law. It is evident that if a man should be disbarred that he is less worthy to be trusted before an alderman or a court of any kind than when he had even never been admitted. It simply protects the public from a man who is unworthy to practice law.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered. That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of H. R. Bill No. 1042, entitled:

An Act to amend section one thousand one hundred and twenty-five of an act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ULERICH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make an explanation of this bill. This little bill of mine provides for an amendment to section 1125 of the School Code. In that section it provides that the county commissioners of each county shall furnish suitable offices for the county superintendents. In the last sentence of that section it says: "they shall also provide for the use of such superintendents and assistant superintendents the necessary stationery, printing and blanks." I have added to that "and postage other than that connected with the annual county teachers' institute." I have made that exception for this reason, that the teachers' institute is paid for by the teachers themselvs, and by an appropriation made by the county commissioners of two hundred dollars to each county superintendent, so the county superintendent does not have to pay that postage. The average salary of county superintendents in this state is a little over twenty-three hundred dollars. There are forty-one county superintendents who are paid less than twenty-three hundred dollars. Out of his salary each county superintendent has to pay his traveling expenses and hotel bills and all other necessary expenses that are generally provided for for the other county officials, so that out of his salary he must pay at least thirty per cent. of his salary, and there is that percentage of it that he does not get any use of at all. Of one fourth of this expense is postage, writing to the teachers, directors and anybody who may ask for information, or in sending out Schools laws, etc. The county superintendent surely has no right to pay for postage of this kind since no other county official does so. Therefore, gentlemen, I ask you to support this measure.

The queston recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I want to say just a word in relation to this bill. The bill is more apt to apply to the larger cities than the smaller ones and this measure comes endorsed not only by the bar association of Allegheny but by the members of the bar of that county. It is brought about by these conditions: there are in that county as there are in all large centers, men of foreign nationality who have been admitted to the bar for the practice of law either in this country or at the bars of foreign countries; or represent themselves in some capacity as an attorney or otherwise and they impose upon the foreign element in these large centers by representing themselves as not only practitionrs of the local bar but in foreign lands and thereby there are able to extort large sums of money from people in these large centers where foreign nationalities are living who are compelled to get help and when they get these cases they are obliged to get local representatives to help them in the courts and thereby doubling up the fees. The purpose of the measure is the protection of clients and not the attorneys, in large centers in which we have these foreign settlements. This bill was drawn or prepared by the Allegheny Bar Association and has the endorsement of not only that Bar Association but the members of the bar and the Courts. I hope that every member will endorse this bill.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order.

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 41, entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the twenty-fifth day of June Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred ninety-five entitled "An Act dividing the cities of this State into three classes with respect to their population and designating the mode of ascertaining and changing the classification thereof in accordance therewith"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. KEEPORT. Mr. Speaker, this act applies to third class cities and there is but small change in it over the old act that all are operating under. The change is this: To permit cities of the third class passing ordinances to determine whether they have a hundred thousand population or not and if they have, they can apply to the Governor and get a charter granting the second class privileges. There are no other changes at all in the bill other than this. In section 2, line 34, it begins "or according to the last preceding census taken in pursuance of an ordinance of the proper city." That is all the change there is that the third c ass cities are operating under now.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

Brownlee,	Post,	Swift,	Trach,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered. That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order.

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of H. R. bill No. 1094, as follows:

An Act to validate receiver's sales of real estate held subsequent to the passage of an act entitled "An Act relating to receiver's sales approved the eleventh day of May Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven in all cases where notices of said sales have been mailed within the time specified in said act

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That in all cases where private sales of real estate have been held by receivers subsequent to the passage of an act entitled "An Act relating to receiver's sales passed the eleventh day of May Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven" where notices of the intention to present the petition for the said sale to the court has been mailed at least ten days prior to the presentation of such petition to all known creditors and other parties in interest at their last known addresses and an averment under oath of the mailing of such notices appears in the said proceedings the same shall be deemed to be good and valid for all purposes and a sufficient compliance with the conditions of the said act

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, just a word in relation to this bill and the next bill. Under the act of 1911 there was no provision made in relation to how service should be made where sales had been made by receivers. This bill simply cures defects in that law, making such sales valid where notice of the sale and the time of its confirmation is printed in the newspapers had been mailed to the creditors. I ask that this bill pass, as it only cures those defects. It is for no individual case, Mr. Speaker, it is a general law.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 696, entitled:

An Act regulating the employment of attorneys and other legal counsel to represent this Commonwealth or any department or bureau or branch thereof or any committee or commission authorized by law.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. CROW. Mr. President, by request of the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. Snyder, I move that the question together with the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, that motion not being seconded, I move that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President I second the motion of the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Crow.

Mr. CROW. Mr. President, I would say for the information of the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Powell, that Senator Snyder is detained at home on account of sickness, and it seems to me that this is a mere matter of courtesy to him, and inasmuch as it is his request I would ask the members of the Senate to vote for the motion to postpone.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, this bill should properly be entitled a bill to authorize the Attorney General to appoint everybody, and we consented to its going over in its order last Wednesday when Senator Snyder was outside of the door by about a foot and a half and was in by about fifty-six seconds after we consented to it going over in its order. It does seem to me that we ought to have some information on this bill and something ought to be done on it one way or the other. If we are going to get a postponed calendar here directly of fifteen or twenty bills or maybe fifty or sixty that simply means that any one who is interested in any one of these bills has to be here every minute of the time, and it does seem to me that the bill either ought to be on the calendar and acted upon or off the calendar, and I am very much interested that the bill do not go on the postponed calendar. Let us act on the bill one way or another. Senator Snyder was here on Wednesday last week, and we consented that the bill go over in its order, and it ought to go to the proper Committee and it being concerned with lawyers it ought to go to the Committee on Judiciary General and I move to amend the motion to place it on the postponed calendar by amending that the bill be referred to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of amendment.

Mr. KNAPP. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to amend?

Mr. HERBST. Mr. President I am certainly opposed to the bill, per se, but there has been always a good deal of senatorial courtesy and if Senator Snyder is home sick I do not think this amendment should carry. I shall vote against the bill whenever or at any time that it comes up but under these circumstances I think the motion of the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Crow, should prevail and the amendment should not prevail. It is merely a matter that there is no use trying to hit a man that is down. The Senate has never been in the habit of doing that. I think the bill is a bad one. I don't like it at all, but I think under the circumstances the postponed calendar is really a short one and this bill can never come up again until the Senator is here to call it up, and I think there will always be somebody on guard to watch him when he shall come I therefor hope the amendment will not prevail and the original motion will.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President. senatorial courtesy is the last thing for any of us to violate, but it seems to me that senatorial courtesy would have required from Senator Snyder that he call this bill up himself, or dispose of the motion when he was in here before the next bill was acted upon, and if we are going to allow senatorial courtesy to clutter our calendar up with bills which everybody admits are bad, merely because a member of the Senate is not here at the time it comes up on third reading then that is to provide that anybody who is absent for any reason may introduce in this Senate any vicious bill and put it on third reading and then be absent, and out of courtesy ask us to put it on the postponed calendar where it is always a potential vicious bill at least. If this bill is vicious there is but one thing to do with it, that is, dispose of it. I have talked this matter over with Senator Snyder. I would have made this motion if I had then known Senator Snyder was going to be absent to-night, but the arrangement was to come up one way or the other. Senator Snyder talked to me and I consented to have the bill go over. I told him I was against the bill and he at first told me the bill was only a "fun" bill, proposed in fun and no one took it seriously except myself and I said "I have gotten into the habit of taking all bills seriously when they are on the third reading calendar and I hope the other Senators get into the same habit. There is but one thing to do upon this bill and that is, act upon it now and refer it to the proper committee and get it off the calendar.

Mr. CROW. Mr. President, I have no personal interest whatever in this bill. My views of the merits of the bill are about the same as those of the Senator from Berks, but if a member of the Senate is not entitled to the protection that we have asked for Senator Snyder under these circumstances, then none of us will be safe. If I have legislation upon this calendar and members of the Senate would not extend me enough courtesy to allow me to be present when it is considered on final passage. I would regard myself as better off at home than here. I have no personal interest in this matter. I am asking this as a courtesy to a member of this Senate and I think it is a very small courtesy to grant under the circumstances and certainly hope the motion and not the amendment will prevail.

Mr. POWWELL. Mr. President, that this may not go any further I will call this matter to the attention of all the members who have spoken to-day to-morrow when I ask that woman suffrage be put on the postponed calendar on account of the absence of Senator Stineman and some others. I withdrew my motion.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, the chairman of the Committee on Law and Order.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, when did that committee meet for the consideration of Senate Bills Nos. 748, 771 and 772?

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, that committee did not meet. I went around and spoke to the members of the Committee and handed them the bill and asked them if they were satisfied for the bill to be reported. I did not speak to the Senator from Washington, Mr. Judson. I did ask Senator Sensenich and other members, handed them the three bills, and asked them whether or not they were satisfied for this bill to be reported out of committee. I met a majority of the men on the committee and they agreed. I do not believe I saw the Senator from Washington, Mr. Judson. Senator Sensenich spoke to me about it and wanted to know when the committee met, and then I reminded him of the fact that he had read over all three of the bills, and he will so tell the Senate. There was one other Senator who asked me about it.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, I want to enter my protest against bills being reported out of committee without the committee first being notified of a meeting and considering them in their regular order according to the rules.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I understand I have a perfect right to report a bill out if a sufficient number of the members agree that the bill shall be reported out without a meeting having been called. I understand I have that right under the rules.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, I do not so understand it. I understand that these bills come up first before the committee all together in regular order and action taken upon these bills by the committee. Therefore I object to any bills being reported out without having first been passed upon by the committee after notice of meeting.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, in order that there may be no misunderstanding in reference to this matter I would like the President to make a ruling on the question as to whether I was right or wrong.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair knows nothing whatever of the action of the committee, but the majority of the committee acting on a bill has a right to say as to what shall be done with the bill.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, I am a member of the committee and I would like to know when the committee meets and take part in its consideration and deliberation, especially when it is a matter in which I am interested.

The PRESIDENT. That is a question w[illegible] from Washington, Mr. Judson, will have to settle with the chairman of the committee.

Mr. JUDSON. Mr. President, that is the situation. I want to know about it.

Providing for the appointment of a joint committee of the House of Representatives and the Senate to investigate the workings of the Civil Service laws in the cities of the first class

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall appoint four members and the President pro tempore of the Senate shall appoint three

Senators who shall constitute a joint committee whose duty it shall be to investigate the workings of the civil service law or laws in the cities of the first class

Said committee shall have power to elect its own chairman to employ legal counsel and such other officers and employes as may be needed to enable it to properly perform its duties as aforesaid but its expenditures shall be limited to the amount of one thousand dollars which shall be appropriated in the general appropriation bill

Said committee shall also have power to issue subpoenas signed by its chairman requiring the attendance of persons and the production of books and papers as in its judgment will assist in the performance of its duties as aforesaid and shall report to the General Assembly not later than April twentieth one thousand nine hundred thirteen with recommendations as to the necessity of improving extending or repealing of the said civil service law or laws in the cities of the first class

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I would ask that the Speaker withdraw his decision on this question. The reason I did not attempt to attract the attention of the Speaker at the time was due to the fact that the sponsor of the bill was on his feet, and I thought the Speaker had noticed him. For that reason I did not attempt to attract the attention of the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has not yet made any decision on the question, and it appears that the reason advanced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Walnut, is a sufficient one, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Walnut.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I understand reasonably well the purpose of this resolution. We have in Philadelphia to-day a Civil Service Commission that has made a very great effort to enforce thoroughly and efficiently the Civil Service laws. Naturally any Civil Service Commission that does such a thing gets itself into considerable trouble, and generally is made the object of considerable antagonism. I have spoken to the Commissioners of Philadelphia in connection with this resolution, and while I do not believe that there is any reason for this resolution whatever, I would like it to pass, particularly as the members have stated to me that they would welcome this investigation, and that they have long wanted an opportunity to present their side of the case in a way that would receive popular recognition. For that reason, although I do not appreciate the purpose for which the resolution was introduced, and also I do not believe that there is any necessity for it, I am very glad to have the opportunity given to the Commission to have their side of the question presented. I, therefore, am perfectly ready and willing to support this resolution, and to assure you that you are doing a favor to the Philadelphia Civil Service in having this opportunity presented to them.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I am personally acquainted with each one of our Civil Service Commissioners of cities of the first class and I have the utmost confidence in each one of them. I know the difficulty of the work which they have to do because they are compelled, under the law, to define the deficiencies of hundreds of men who think they are competent to hold office and you can readily understand how unpopular and how difficult their position naturally is. They have been so unjustly and so often attacked, even before our Committee in the House, where all sorts of absurd attacks have been made upon them, and the attacks have been answered so absolutely from the records, that I believe the best thing that could be done for the furtherance of the reform of the Civil Service of the State is to have a responsible committee of the House with a right to hear everything within the control of the body, and I think if this is done it will be the opinion of all that the benefits of the Civil Service Commission will rise very much in the estimation of all men.

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, that is just my purpose. The Civil Service Commission welcomes the investigation. One of the Directors of Philadelphia, the Director of Public Works, spoke in Chicago a few days ago and he said to the people of Chicago that the Civil Service Commission's work in Philadelphia is among the best in the world. There is no other class that this investigation appeals to any more than the class that has been removed from that particular work. Down there in the County of Philadelphia the laboring classes are appealing to me for an investigation; they all want an investigation, and, still further, an act making it a State-wide examination for the whole State. I think when it comes back to this body, to the representatives of this body, in a manner so that when this act comes up for a State-wide Civil Service, the evidence will be so complete that they will judge very carefully whether we shall make that a State-wide Civil Service or not. I say that the laboring classes are all welcoming this investigation.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution?

It was agreed to.

RESOLUTION RECALLING HOUSE BILL NO. 170 FROM THE GOVERNOR.

Mr. JACKSON offered the following resolution, which was twice read and agreed to:

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That House Bill No. 170 file folio 269, entitled "An Act authorizing the Commissioner of Fisheries to sell the real estate upon which the fish hatchery at Spruce Creek Huntingdon county is located and providing for the disposition of the fund," be recalled from the Governor for the purpose of amendment.

RESOLUTION NO. 19.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up Resolution No. 19.

The SPEAKER. The resolution is not on the calendar.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, Resolution No. 19 was introduced at least a month ago. It was reported out of Committee last week.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia calls up Resolution No. 19, which was reported from the Committee on Rules with an affirmative recommendation and which the Clerk will read.

The resolution was read by the Clerk, as follows:

Resolved, That Rule thirty-three be amended by inserting after the word "bill" in line one, the words "and every resolution providing for an amendment to the Constitution;" by striking out in line two the words "on the bill," and insert the word "thereon," and insert on line three after the word "law" the words "and no such resolution shall be adopted."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, this amendment will merely prevent the amendment of our Constitution by a concurrent resolution or by an amendment to an amendment which I believe any man who is familiar with the careless manner of adopting concurrent resolution understands and will agree with me that it is not the proper manner in which to amend our Constitution. The amended section of the rule will merely read as follows: "Every bill shall be read at length on three different days," etc. That is the gist of the change in the section.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the resolution?

It was agreed to.

HOUSE BILL NO. 709 MADE A SPECIAL ORDER.

Kitts that House Bill No. 709, File Folio No. 2599, on page 54 of to-day's calendar, entitled "An Act regulating the sale or distribution of vinous spirituous malt or brewed liquors by any club society or organization formed for certain purposes and imposing penalties for violation of this act," be made a special order of business for second reading on Tuesday, April 1st, 1913, at 11 o'clock a. m., and a special order of business for third reading of Wednesday, April second, 1913, at 11 o'clock a. m., provided however that if the session usually held in the forenoon shall commence at one o'clock p. m. on the above named days then in that case the said special orders shall be set for two o'clock p. m. instead of 11 o'clock a. m.. as above noted.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of the House to the fact that this is Mr. S. B. Scott's bill and that Mr. Scott is the sponsor thereof.

Mr. SPEISER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman who introduced this motion amend it so as to strike out the special order for a third reading? I think that is a presumption on the prerogative of this House. I am not quite so sure that it is going to be on the calendar after second reading. There is just a possibility that it will not reach third reading. We had better prepare to meet the other contingency when it arises.

The SPEAKER. That will probably take care of itself.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILL PLACED ON CALENDAR.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a resolution.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read by the Clerk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Moved by E. L. Humes, seconded by W. L. Metzenbacher, that House Bill No. 200, entitled:

"An Act to amend an act approved the eleventh day of May one thousand nine hundred and one, entitled 'An Act to provide for the removal of judges of the Supreme Superior Common Pleas and Orphans' Courts permanently disqualified by reason of physical or mental disability to perform their judicial functions and duties with half pay for their unexpired terms and filling of vacancies caused by such removal,' as amended by an act approved the twenty-third day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven, entitled 'An Act to amend section one of an act entitled "An Act to provide for the removal of judges of the Supreme Superior Comomn Pleas and Orphans' Courts permanently disqualified by reason of physical or mental disability to perform their judicial functions and duties with half pay for their unexpired terms and the filling of vacancies caused by such removal," approved May eleventh one thousand nine hundred and one so as to allow them full pay during the balance of their terms of office and under certain conditions half pay during the remainder of their lives,'" be placed upon the calendar notwithstanding the negative recommendation of the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I want to call the attention of the House to the fact that this bill is a bill repealing the Judges' Pension Act of 1911. The repeal is in the nature of an amendment which restores the act of 1901 permitting the retirement of judges in the case of a physical disability. I think from the feeling that was manifested on the part of the people of the State during the last two years that that ought to be evidence that the people are not yet prepared for pension bills of this kind. I believe that there is a very general demand over the State that we should not establish any such precedence as this, for if this is continued on the statute books, there is no telling where the pension business will end. I hope that the House will vote to place this bill on the calendar in order that the advisability of the modification and repeal may be intelligently and seriously considered by this House as the people have a right to demand that it be well considered.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, as has just been said, the object of this is to repeal an act of 1911 known as the Judges' pension bill. This act passed in 1911 and has not been in force two years. It has not had a trial. It is impossible to say what will be the practical results of such an act. Any act that has passed this House after the deliberation and consideration which it must receive upon the floor of this House at any time, is entitled to a fair trial. I believe this act is a good act. I believe that if it is enforced long enough to show its practical working to the people of this State, there would be a unanimous demand for us to support the act. As it is now, the people of the State do not know how this act will work. I do not know of any opposition, either from the bar or from the people in any part of the State. I have heard of no opposition, except from the gentleman who has just spoken. I, therefore, ask the gentlemen of this House to vote this motion down.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER. Seventy-five gentlemen, or more than the number required by the rules, having voted in the affirmative, the bill will be placed upon the calendar.

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING THE PRINTING OF AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE UNLAWFUL USE OF THE AMERICAN FLAGS, APPROVED MAY 23, 1907.

Mr. GRAMLEY offered the following resolution, which was twice read and laid over under the rules:

Whereas, Many persons in this Commonwealth are not aware of the provisions of the act of May 23rd, 1907 (P. L. 225), prohibiting the unlawful use of the flags of the United States and of this State, therefore be it Resolved (if the Senate concur), That fifty thousand (50,000) copies of the above mentioned act be printed; twelve thousand copies (12,000) for the use of the House; eight thousand (8,000) copies for the use of the Senate and the remaining thirty thousand (30,000) copies for distribution by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

BILL PLACED ON CALENDAR.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill 146, entitled:

An Act to amend the tenth section of an act entitled "A supplement to the law relating to defrauding public officers," approved the twenty-first day of April one thousand eight hundred and forty-six by fixing the compensation of the auditor appointed by the court to settle the accounts of public officers in each county.

be placed upon the calendar, notwithstanding negative recommendation of the committee.

Mr. MORROW. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago there was a bill rushed through here creating the office of County Controller in counties containing 100,000 to 150,000 inhabitants. Now, the impression that was prevalent at that time was that the newly created office of Controller not only abolished the old county auditors, but also took the place of the special auditor appointed annually in counties to audit the books of the prothonotary's office, orphans' court, court of quarter sessions, and recorder of deeds. But, in examining the act of 1895, I find that the controller does not audit those accounts. They are still audited by the old special auditor. That special auditor, under the act of 1846, is allowed a dollar and a half a day for his services. Now, it is ridiculous to think that the county controller, the newly created officer, shall be allowed $2,500 annually for his services for doing practically the same work, while this special auditor, whose work is just as serious, just as important, if properly performed, is allowed only one dollar and a half a day. Now, this bill which I ask to be placed upon the calendar is nothing more than, insofar as the salary is concerned, that it places it within the power of the court to fix the salary of the special auditor. My idea was to make the salary $5 per day, but, at the suggestion of members of the Judiciary General Committee, that salary was made optional with each county court. It was made optional in the second bill which was introduced, and that second bill came into the hands of the Committee on Counties and Townships, and went to the Committee on Judiciary General, and it was negatived by the latter committee. I am asking that this bill be placed upon the calendar. There seems to be a lot of merit and justice in it.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, if bills that have been negatived are to be placed upon the calendar, I think we ought to have some word from the Chairman of the Committee that negatived the bill, so that we can act intelligently. We have here but one request made to put the bill on the calendar. It is really making a farce of a reform rule that this House has made, and which this House ought to stand by. Now this bill, whatever it be, came here negatived after full deliberations It has been negatived after possibly a sub-committee has passed upon it, and we have no benefit here in the House of their deliberations. We ought to hear from the Chairman of the Committee who had charge of the bill, or any bill—I am not referring particularly to the gentleman's bill, because I am not familiar with the bill he is asking to be placed on the calendar. After it has been negatived, I feel that we ought to hear from the Chairman of the Committee, or from the Chairman of the Sub-Committee on this bill, of the consideration given to it in the committee.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, having had in my possession as Chairman of the Judiciary General Committee about three hundred bills, practically two hundred of them we have acted on, I do not exactly recall the provisions of this bill, sought to be placed upon the calendar, but as I do recall it, it is this: Under the present law the State requires a tax of fifty cents each on deeds, mortgages and judgments, and that a special auditor is appointed by the court to audit the accounts of the prothonotary, of the register of wills and the recorder of deeds. My recollection does not harmonize with that of the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Miller. My recollection of this act is that the auditor gets two dollars a day and the general experience is that he only spends about an hour in the office and calls it a day, and before he gets through he figures up a pretty big bill, as big as though he were getting five dollars a day, and it was under this knowledge, that the committee, as I recall it, negatived this bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, the section of the act of 1846 is section 10, which says that "The judges thereof shall appoint one competent person as auditor, who, after being sworn or affirmed to perform the duties of his office with fidelity and correctness, shall immediately after the first of January succeeding his appointment, proceed to examine the accounts and dockets of the prothonotary, register nad recorder, and clerks of the several courts of the county for which his appointment was made, and generally shall perform, with as much dispatch as possible, all the duties heretofore imposed by law on the county auditors, respecting the fees of said officers and the tax of judicial proceedings; and shall further ascertain the whole amount of fees charged, as well as the whole amount of fees received by each of said officers during the preceding year, and make return thereof in his account to the Auditor General; and the person appointed shall, as soon as his duties are performed, receive for his service, out of the proper county treasury, one dollar and fifty cents for each day necessarily spent in the performance of his duties."

Now, I repeat that the act of 1895, which creates this office accepts the accounts which are gone over by the special auditor. The acceptance is contained in these words:

"That all duties devolved on the county auditors by the act of April fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, and all powers conferred on them by said act shall be performed and exercised by the county controller so far as regards county accounts and State taxes for which the county is or may be liable, and all other accounts with the treasurer with the Commonwealth shall be audited by the auditor of the accounts of prothonotaries, clerks, et cetera, appointed by the court of common pleas under the act of twenty-first of April, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six and its supplements."

Now, to refresh the memory of the gentleman from Tioga, I wish to say that an act was introduced early in the session changing this fee from one dollar and a half to five dollars. At the suggestion of the gentleman on the Committee of Judiciary General, another act was introduced making the fee optional with the court, that is, leaving it to the discretion of the court, because it was felt in some counties the work was negligently and inefficiently done; consequently, there was another act introduced. That act fell into the hands of the Committee on Counties and Townships and was the act which was negatived and which I ask to be placed on the calendar. Now, I repeat that this work is very important, and if the controller is allowed annually for the performance of his work $2,500, surely the work of a man which is just as important—the auditing of the books of the several offices I have referred to—should be allowed more than one dollar and a half a day.

On the question recurring,

The SPEAKER. Seventy gentlemen, or more than the number required by the rule, having voted in the affirmative, the bill will be placed on the calendar.

BILL PLACED ON CALENDAR.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 1107, entitled:

An act relating to inns and hotels regulating certain rights and liabilities of hotelkeepers and innkeepers and providing penalties for fruad against innkeepers and hotelkeepers.

which was reported from the Judiciary Special Committee with a negative recommendation, be placed upon the calendar, notwithstanding the negative recommendation of said committee.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, in connection with this motion I desire to say just a word, that the members of the House may understand what they are voting upon. The bill, as prepared and submitted to that Committee, was the same general bill that has passed and is now upon the statute books of twenty-seven or twenty-eight different States in the Union. It is a bill which limits the liability of the hotel keeper for packages entrusted to his care. The bill is fair in every particular. I think and feel, and have felt and did feel at the time I introduced the bill, that it was inflicting no hardship upon any one, but was a bill that ought to stand and ought to be passed by this House. I believe if the members of this House were to see the bill in print, that when the bill came up for passage there would be little if any question as to its ultimate passage. I would ask that the members support this motion and place it on the calendar, so that we may see what the bill is. The bill was reported out with a negative recommendation and was not printed.

The SPEAKER. The bill is 1107 on the pink calendar.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, this bill was referred to the Judiciary Special Committee. The Judiciary Special Committee referred it to a sub-committee. The subcommittee, I believe, the gentleman from Allegheny was chairman of. I am not quite sure whether Mr. Bigger of Allegheny was chairman. The bill was in the hands of the sub-committee for a week and was given full consideration and then it was subsequently reported back by the subcommittee to the general committee with a negative recommendation and the general committee, being an open committee, as all of our committee meetings are, gave it full discussion, and the consensus of opinion of that committee was that the bill was bad legislation. They refused to comply with the recommendation of the subcommittee and referred this bill to the House with a negative recommendation. It was not a bill that was illy considered. It was a bill that was fully considered. It was a bill that had the expression of the opinion of the members of the sub-committee and that was fully discussed by the committee in general.

Now, for the benefit of the members of the House who are to vote on this, I want to say that the committee thought that the bill was not proper legislation, because it was legislation that took from the innkeeper a responsibility that he ought to assume. I do not remember fully the details of the bill, but as I remember the bill now it was that for no greater sum than three hundred dollars could the innkeeper be held responsible for and that he had to enter into, if I remember rightly, a written stipulation for the amount of jewelry or amount of valuables that were placed in the safe of the innkeeper. Having such a multiplicity of bills in the committee, I have not a full recollection of the details of the bill and I might be mistaken, but I ask the gentleman to correct me if I am mistaken; but it is not a bill that the House should simply place upon the calendar without giving it full consideration. When the bill was sent to the Judiciary Special Committee that bill, as every bill, was heard publicly, discussed publicly and the vote taken and the record made of it by the stenographer in charge of the committee. Now, it is a bill that has been given full consideration by the committee. While I have no opposition to the gentleman from Allegheny having the bill placed upon the calendar, I merely state my position in reference to this bill, as I do with respect to the great number of bills that are now placed upon the calendar after a negative recommendation without giving them a full consideration. At the beginning of this session, Mr. Speaker, there was passed a reform in the rules. One of them was the rule that allowed sixty members to put the bill on the calendar after it was negatived. It was a rule that was passed for the purpose of stopping the pernicious practice of stifling good legislation in the committees. It was never meant that that rule was to be used for the purpose of making committee work a farce. This bill, as all bills coming from the committee that I have the honor to be the chairman of, was given full and complete consideration. While we are very liable to make errors in the recommendation of our bill, I do not think that this House should place a bill on the calendar until they have been convinced by the sponsor of the bill that the action of the committee was not proper nor logical and the result was not the result that this House desires to abide by.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to correct my friend from Philadelphia in just a few particulars. In relation to the provisions of the bill, he is almost correct. The limitation placed upon the liability of the hotel or innkeeper toward his guests for that which is left, as suggested, was three hundred dollars, provided that they were left with him after the vaults had been closed to which he might have access. The other provisions of the bill were practically told you by the Chairman of the Judiciary Special Committee, whose committee handled this bill. In relation to the proceedings which were taken by that committee, Mr. Speaker, upon this bill, I must challenge what the gentleman has said. If my recollection serves me rightly in connection with this bill, I was informed by the Chairman when I was at a meeting with that committee in relation to some other bills that I had then pending in the committee that the bill, with two other bills, was referred the same day to a special committee, a sub-committee, along with one of those other two bills. Some one of that sub-committee—I do not recollect who now—spoke to me here upon the floor of the House in relation to the bill. There was no hearing; not even the sponsor of the bill before the committee. There was no hearing before the committee of any one who was interested in the outcome of the bill, and I take it that the statement of the gentleman who is chairman of the committee might mislead the members of the House into thinking that this matter had been proposed and the points brought to the attention of the Committee on Judiciary Special. The next thing that I knew in relation to the bill, and that was some time afterwards—because it is impossible to follow these bills as reported here, especially if you have a number—the next thing I knew was when the pink calendar was printed some time later, and this was behind, as it is to-night, showing that the bill received a negative recommendation. Then it was that I in turn spoke to the chairman of the committee and some others in relation to it. We simply talked about it in a general way and, inasmuch as nothing has been done, I made this motion at this time. I have never yet at any time, and I feel the members of the House will bear me out in that, I have never asked the House to take a stand which I did not feel was justified by the matter. I believe that no harm can come from the placing of this bill on the calendar; I think it has taken more time to bring about this action than the time that will be consumed when the bill comes up on its merits. I believe if the members of this House would see this bill in print, as I said a moment ago, they will agree with me that there is merit in this bill and that it deserves fullest and sincerest consideration. If it had not merit in it, gentlemen, it seems strange to me that the same bill, identically the same bill, with perhaps a few words—not more than a half dozen—changed, now is written upon and in the statutes, as I said a moment ago, of 27 or 28 States at this time. I ask you to stand with me in this matter and place this bill on the calendar.

Mr. JOHN R .K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the gentleman from Allegheny will not misunderstand my position. I do not desire to oppose his piece of legislation. I merely feel that this being a bill which was passed upon by the Judiciary Special Committee, as chairman of the committee, I should make this statement. Personally, I think this bill is not good legislation. That was the opinion of the committee. I do not stand here and upon the floor of the House and ask any member of the body to vote against the motion of the gentleman from Allegheny, other than a question of principle that the committee has given full consideration to this bill and if that has not been overcome by any statement by the sponsor, whoever he might be, that the committee ought to be sustained in its action. I merely make my position plain, so that I stand by the rule, and this rule I believe to be a good rule and I believe on this particular piece of legislation the committee worked fully and it deserves to remain where it is, and the bill should never become a law.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

A rising vote was taken.

The SPEAKER. Sixty-seven, or more than the number required by the rule, having voted in the affirmative, the bill will be placed upon the calendar.

REPORT FROM THE COMMITTEE ON RULES.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I presume we ought to call up the report that was offered by the Committee on Rules last Wednesday and laid over until to-night.

The SPEAKER. A report from the Committee on Rules may be called up at any time under any order of business.

Mr. ALLEN. I call up the report of the Committee on Rules offered on Wednesday of last week.

The SPEAKER. The report of the Committee on Rules will be read by the Clerk.

The report of the Committee on Rules was read by the Clerk as follows:

That beginning with Tuesday, April 1st, the regular sessions of the House shall begin at one o'clock p. m. and that a recess shall be taken each day from six o'clock to eight eight o'clock P. M.

Messrs. ALLEN,
GANS, SASSAMAN,
COCHRAN,
ALTER,
EHRHARDT,
Committee on Rules.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the report.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend to read, "Morning sessions from ten to one o'clock; afternoon sessions from two to six; night sessions when necessary."

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, it has been suggested that we make the afternoon session from three to six and I accept that suggestion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, my reason for offering this amendment is to call the attention of the House to the fact that the stenographers of this House, if the original report goes through, will not finish their work here in this House until probably 12 o'clock at night, or 11 o'clock, if that hour is fixed, and then it will be necessary after that hour of the night for the stenographers to transcribe all their work. It will mean that very frequently, and the next day this work will not be printed and placed upon the calendars of the House. If you acept the amendment that I have offered, it will mean that we will have a morning session and an afternoon session and the stenographers will be ready to begin their work of transcribing at six o'clock in the evening, and the amendment I offer will actually expedite the business of the House, and it will take into consideration the hardest worked branch of this legislative body. I do think the House ought to take into consideration that if they pass the original report it means that the stenographers of this body will have to work until three, four or five o'clock in the morning, in order to get that work out. I feel that we can just as well do the committee work in the evening and we will be more likely to get the members to come out at ten o'clock than if the sessions begin at one o'clock, and I am inclined to believe that we will get better committee work under this mode of procedure and that is my reason for offering the amendment.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, in relation to the amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Delaware, I will say that the rule as it stands practically is as the amendment would make this resolution, if I follow it correctly. Our sessions now are of certain hours, morning and afternoon, and the only thing that the additional amendment would give, would be the evening session if necessary, and we have evening sessions when necessary, as the House sees the necessity of the thing. In relation to the work, the question which has been suggested, as to the matter of stenographic work, I believe it is a matter of small moment. We have running the greater portion of this session with the Legislative Journal behind, and the stenographic work is the work which goes into the Legislature Journal. I presume that there are a number of members on the floor of the House who have not examined the Journal since the House began its session, and surely not from day to day. Our Journal, I am informed, is not printed for the session of last Thursday, and is not before the members even at this time. That is not the fault of the stenographers, and they cannot be held accountable for any dereliction of duty somewhere along the line. After some investigation by the members of the committee in relation to the clerical work as required from the employees of the House, we believe that with the addition of an assistant to one department, that this work can be kept up, and not only kept up, but kept up to the hour. We have been going since the beginning of this session oftentimes with our morning sessions, and then a break in the afternoon in order to give the House over to some public hearing, and during which time no member could come into the House, get down to his desk and do any work. Committees have taken advantage of the afternoon to hold sessions, and the hours for those sessions, as you all know, are fixed by the Chairman of Committees, and conflict with the members, members sometimes being called upon to meet one, two or three committees at the same hour. Now the plan which was suggested by the Committee on Rules in the original resolution before this amendment was offered simply intended this, that the morning should be given over to the committee when no one would be tired out, when they would be absolutely free, when those interested in the committees' work could attend the committees and such hearings as might be set when the hearings would not be filled up with a mob in order to make a showing, because of the fact that those people who would come to hearings before the committees, public hearings, would be required to be here the night before in order to attend the public hearings the next morning, at least those people who come from any distance. Now it would cut down the great masses that come here to the public hearings, and it would simplify these matters so far as the committees are concerned. The mornings would be taken up with that kind of work, and if those members who were not tired down with that work, saw fit, they could prepare themselves on the bills that would be before them in the afternoon and evening sessions and know something of what was on the calendar instead of being taken off our guard as we are. Now in relation to the work at the desk, after some investigation, we concluded this; that by having an assistant to help make up the calendar and to prepare the bills for passage where amendments had been made, that the work could be handed down to the Clerk who was to prepare them, be sent down in sections just as the work was completed up here, and he, in turn, could send it to the printer so that every wheel which is of assistance to this House in the operation of getting legislation through here would be all working at the same time. As it is now, practically everything is clogged until the gavel falls at the close of the session and then the work is made up for the printer and goes to him, and he himself, in turn, prepares it and sends it back to the House. By the addition of one man, as I said a moment ago, we felt that a portion of the work could be sent down hour after hour and that one in charge below could in turn prepare it for the printer, and the printer could get it and be working on it within two hours after the session of the House is over. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the members of this House will agree with me that our night sessions during the week accomplish more than the day sessions. Of course, Monday night is given over to getting ready for the week, and very little as a rule is accomplished on Monday night. And this is an important matter, and we believe it is such an important matter that the House will appreciate the benefits of it the moment it is put into effect. We think that the time is coming now when the evenings are much more pleasant than the entire hot portion of the day. When we are going to adjourn in the afternoon for the purpose of allowing the committees to work, we sit here and work until two, half-past two and even three o'clock, which simply puts the committee out of harmony with itself, and sometimes puts a little disgruntled spirit into the personality of some of the members of this House. We feel that the rule suggested would be a rule which would expedite business, that the members of the House would appreciate those hours better than other hours. Not only that, but it keeps the members here at the time when with the work before us we can attend to it and get away from here and go to our homes and rest and be refreshed and be ready for committee work in the morning, and for the general work in the afternoon, having had the benefit of the morning hours to prepare ourselves for the work which is on the calendar. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that the amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Delaware should be defeated at this time, and a trial made, at least, upon the suggestion of the committee.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the amendment. I fear that the sessions as suggested by the Committee on Rules will simply result in the loss of our mornings. I think the time is soon coming when we ought to have morning, afternoon and evening sessions, and if we establish the custom of having no morning sessions, it will be hard to go back to it, and I am afraid we will lose those mornings.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I don't want to take the time of the House, but my experience has taught me that members are very liable to get tired in the afternoon if we begin the work on committee work as the resolution first called for. When it comes toward evenings, members go out and go home, and you sometimes reach the point where you want them and there are not enough members present to risk the passage of a bill. I do not believe you will expedite matters, I believe you will retard matters. May be some of the members misunderstand just what the original resolution is. It means, as I understand it, that we are to have an afternoon and a night session. The amendment means that we are to have a morning and an afternoon session, and in my judgment under the amendment we will expedite matters because we will have the members here fresh when important propositions are reported to the House. All committee work is subject to revision, the work of the House is not, unless it is a reconsideration of a vote by which a bill is lost. In my judgment, the amendment is the better propostition to try first.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I believe that we should sustain the report of the committee and defeat this amendment, for the reason that we are here to do the work before us, and there should be a definite period when we should do that work, and leave nothing indefinite. The gentleman from Delaware suggests that we should work evenings when it is necessary. It will be necessary to work day time and evenings both, with doubt, but who is the judge? Let us come here at one o'clock and work until six, which means five hours, and from eight o'clock until eleven, which is three hours more, or eight hour per day. On Monday evenings, we work three hours, and let us work four days each week, being thirty-two hours, plus three hours, or thirty-five hours each week, and get the large amount of work out of the way before the time of adjournment.

Mr. MOSES. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the amendment, and I believe the House will make a mistake if they do not accept the amendment offered by the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. STONE. I am in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Delaware. Now we have a large number of bills before this House. There has been a propostion that we fix a time for adjournment. I would not agree to that. We are elected here by the people of this Commonwealth to attend to the business before the House and I do not believe in fixing any time for adjournment of the House until the business has been entirely completed, and the proposition of the gentleman from Delaware certainly would accelerate the business of the House, and we will be able to accomplish a third more business by having a morning and afternoon session, and an evening session when necessary. We can do it without hurting anybody by having the two sessions a day and for that reason I am in favor of the amendment.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the adoption of the report as amended?

It was agreed to.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1526, entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the fourteenth day of June one thousand nine hundred eleven entitled "An Act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Executive Judiciary and Legislative Departments of the Commonwealth interest on the public debt and the support of the public schools for the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred and eleven and for the payment of bills incurred and remaining unpaid at the close of the fiscal year ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and eleven."

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the first reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1272, entitled:

An Act providing for the taxing of traction engines for local purposes and repealing a certain act relating to the taxation of traction engines was defeated on final passage, be reconsidered.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, when the vote was taken on this bill, the membership of the House was very light, and a large number of the members apparently did not vote. In explanation of this vote, I simply wish to say this: That in 1911 the General Assembly passed a law providing that heavy traction engines shold be taxed—that is, that local authorities should be allowed to collect a certain amount of the tax out of them for the damage did to the public roads. The Attorney General construed that act as not making a local taxation, but as a state tax, and only held that they were taxable four mills on the dollars. This bill was up a few days ago, and another bill, a reperaler, to change this bill, if enacted into law. The one which is sought to be reconsidered here will provide that these heavy machines, weighing upwards of several tons, damaging the roads, shall be taxed for road purposes,—county, township and road purposes. It seems to me tht it is only a proper measure for the House to consider that and that these big machines should pay their part of the tax. Now they pay no tax at all except four mills to the State, the same as money at interest, and if this bill becomes a law it will repeal that, and these machines ought to pay taxes for local purposes for the benefit of the roads that they damage.

Mr. REESER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Tioga.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Tioga permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROCKWELL. Certainly, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. REESER. Mr. Speaker, is there anything in this bill stating that they should pay a road tax assessed against traction engines?

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, the bill provides that they shall be taxed for road purposes—county, city, borough and township—and the township tax is the road tax.

Mr. REESER. Mr. Speaker, the way I read the bill, it says county, school and poor tax—nothing said about road tax.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, it does not mention the road tax specifically, but it says "township tax." The only township tax is for road purposes.

Mr. REESER. Mr. Speaker, I only have this to say, as I said the other night, that the tax on traction engines for county, school and poor purposes is outrageous. I stated that the other night. I do not think it is necessary to go over this again. If you want to put a road tax on traction engines, put on a road tax, not a county, borough, school and poor tax. I don't think it is fair.

Mr. E. G. M. KUHNS. Mr. Speaker, the objection throughout the agricultural regions to this bill is simply this: You will find that forty-eight out of every fifty farmers have a gasoline engine to do their threshing, their sowing, and their power work, until you meet one farmer with a traction engine. Now, did it never occur to anyone's mind that the gasoline engine, the self-binder, the mower, the plow, or anyone of those farming implements are to be taxed? You can plainly see that if one farmer out of every fifty should accidentally have a traction engine to do the same kind of work as all the other forty-nine do with the gasoline engine, you do not need to wonder why this one farmer objects to having the machine taxed, used for the same purposes that the other forty-nine use their gasoline engines without tax. That is the objection to this bill throughout the agricultural regions of the Commonwealth.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I wish to state that the gentleman seems to be under a misapprehension. The portable engine which the farmer uses is not a traction engine. A traction engine is a big, powerful machine, running on its own power over the public roads. I have seen them drawing four to six and eight loads of stone, ties and lumber behind them. We have them up in our County drawing two to three heavy wagonloads of milk, and doing great damage to some township roads, more than the whole thing is worth. The gentleman's objection with reference to a portable engine does not apply to this bill. My thought was, Mr. Speaker, that if this bill were reconsidered, that I would move to have it put on the postponed Calendar, and await the action on the bill coming from the Senate, which as I understand it provides that traction engines shall be licensed the same as automobiles. If that bill goes through, it will probably take the place of this, and if the bill is reconsidered and placed on the Calendar I will move to have it postponed and await action on the other.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of H. R. bill No. 1032, entitled:

An Act providing for the taxing of traction engines for local purposes and repealing a certain act relating to the taxation of traction engines

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. WALTON. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Private Secretary of the Governor being introduced, presented the following communication from the Governor which was read as follows:

VETO OF HOUSE BILL NO. 300.

Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, March, 27, 1913.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:—I return herewith, without my approval, House Bill No. 300, entitled:

"An Act to amend an act approved the fifteenth day of March one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled 'An Act regulating in criminal trials the cross-examination of a defendant when testifying in his own behalf.'"

The subject of the act approved in 1911, which act it is now proposed to amend by this bill, is the cross-examination of defendants in criminal trials, whereas the subject of the proposed amendment is the introduction in evidence, by the Commonwealth, in chief or in rebuttal, of the record of a prior conviction of a defendant. It is, therefore, at least questionable, whether the proposed amendment is germane to the subject matter of the prior act, as expressed in the title thereof, namely, cross-examination. Apart from this question of constitutionality, however, the approval of the amendment might tend to defeat the proper administration of the criminal law, especially in the trial of defendants charged with second offences.

For these reasons the bill is not approved.

(Signed) JOHN K. TENER.

On the question,

Shall the bill become a law, the objections of the Governor to the contrary, notwithstanding?

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the roll call be postponed for the time being and that the veto message be laid upon the table.

Mr. SPEISER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which House Bill No. 218, File Folio 1919, entitled:

An Act for the better protection of wild birds and game within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania requiring citizens of the United States residing within this State to procure a license before using guns for the purpose of hunting for any wild birds or animals protected by the laws of this Commonwealth and providing penalties for violation of its several provisions and the manner of proceeding to enforce compliance therewith and providing for the disposition of the license fees fines and penalties received was defeated on Tuesday, March 25, 1913, be reconsidered.

Mr. SEMMENS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. LOWERS. Mr. Speaker, I think that it is only fair that this action be reconsidered, inasmuch as the sponsor of the bill, at the time at which action was taken by this House, was not given an opportunity to be heard on this measure. The previous question was moved while he was on his feet, seeking to secure recognition of the Chair, and for that reason, if for no other, I think the House ought to reconsider their action at this time.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The house resumed the consideration on final passage of H. R. bill No. 218, entitled:

An Act for the better protection of wild birds and game within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania requiring citizens of the United States residing within this State to procure a license before using guns for the purpose of hunting for any wild birds or animals protected by the laws of this Commonwealth and providing penalties for violation of its several provisions and the manner of proceeding to enforce compliance therewith and providing for the disposition of the license fees fines and penalties received

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. RUNK. Mr. Speaker I will promise to delay you but a few moments on this bill. If you will look over the vote that was cast, you will find there were one hundred and thirty members outside of the cities in this House. Out of that number only thirty-three voted for the bill. There are sixty-two votes in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. You certainly have no hunting in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh—not for rabbits, anyhow. The country people have outside, in the first thirty-one counties where game is to be found, fifty-two members in this House. On last Tuesday night fifty-one of these voted against this license and one voted for it. Mr. Keeport is the only man in those thirty-one counties that voted for the license. Now, that is true. In the next twelve counties, where there are thirty-two representatives, fourteen voted for it and fourteen against it, and four did not vote. In the city of Philadelphia, twenty-four voted for it and twenty-four in Pittsburgh: In Erie, Harrisburg, Allentown, Newcastle and Scranton, altogether, are sixty-one votes out of the ninety-seven votes cast for this bill. Sixty-one of them were from the cities. Now, gentlemen, I think that the country people that take care of the game, feed it and care for it and are glad to have the city people come out and hunt with them, ought to settle this question. For that reason, I am opposed to this license. I will take any member of this House coming to Franklin County, I will promise to take him out, but I will not promise that he will get to hunt there. I will take him out if I can. The people in my county are unanimously against this bill, because it is class legislation. There is no question about the fact that Section one, Article 9, of the Constitution says "all taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects". Now, if you can license me and not license a farmer, then you are not certain to pass a constitutional bill. It cannot exist under the Constitution. I do not care for the dollar; I can pay that; but when you look over the vote cast last Tuesday night, you will find, as I told you, that out of thirty-one of the best hunting counties of this State there was but one vote for it, and fifty-one against it. In the next twelve counties, fourteen were for it and fourteen against it—four did not vote, which I presume is eighteen against it. These are facts that were laid upon your table to-night, which you can read. You cannot deny it. The Harrisburg Star-Independent is opposing this bill hard, and so does the Mountain and Stream, and other sportmen's papers of this county are opposed to this bill, if you have read them. I oppose this license. It rests upon the country people to protect the game. If you pass this bill, the boys in the country will kill the birds; they will shoot the quail in bunches. For that reason I am opposed to this bill and think it ought not to pass.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to create revenue whereby the game shall be protected and also propagated. The people who are willing to pay this revenue are the sportsman. They number thousands in this State and the only opposition to this bill comes from the rural districts and I think they are unfair. I have in my hands a letter which I received from a farmer, which I will read:

"The only opposition arising to this Bill appears to come through a misunderstanding of its provisions. It is plainly a Bill that is fair to the interests of the land owners, because it does not permit gunning or trespassing, where hunters are not wanted. One of the important favorable features is that the gunner is to wear a number corresponding with the number of his license, which also gives his name, and thus he is readily identified.

The reputable sportsman has been greatly injured by the hoodlum hunter, who has not cared for reputation, and has not only been careless with property, but has been actually destructive. Farmers are frequently requesting the Game Commission to arrest hunters who have shot and stolen their poultry and other produce. This is not within the province of the Game Commission, and it brings hunters into disrepute with the farming people. Such a Bill as this would provide better protection against poachers and destructive trespassers, and at the same time would make more game for the legitimate hunter. It would also provide funds for further game protection and the operations of our Game Commission, and also for the payment of such bounties as the Legislature sees fit to pay. Above all else it would give needed protection to country life and property, and if this is not done, it must be understood that the 97 per cent. of our agricultural population who do not hunt will arise and demand legislation absolutely prohibiting that form of trespass on their premises which is popularly termed "hunting," and which is too often but the guise to turn hoodlums loose on farm property.

In the interests of the agriculturists of this Commonwealth, who when they understand it, universally support this measure, I urge united favorable action in its behalf."

This comes from a farmer in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. RUNK. Please give the name, Mr. Davis.

Mr. DAVIS. I do not want to take the liberty of doing so.

Mr. BAYLE. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, it has been stated time and time again during the discussion of this bill that the farmers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania were against it. I can point you to a section of this old Commonwealth, second to but few in the strength of its agriculture, in its resources, from the farmers view, where almost every man is for this bill. Yes, gentleman, that is right, and gentlemen it was stated the other night that the farmer's boy could not afford to pay a dollar license. Show me a farmer's boy with the right grit, with the right strength that will grow into an American citizen, who can neither borrow a gun or buy one, that cannot raise a dollar to pay his license. I was a farmer's boy and so were some of you and I never lacked long, and neither did you, but a dollar.

Now, gentlemen, let us look at this. There is too much carelessness in the handling of guns. May I point you to a little personal matter? Last summer when campaigning for this high office that I now hold, when working for this seat, right up here, this one, number two, gentlemen, on the old country road in Erie County, we met a careless sportsman from the City of Erie carrying his gun. We said to him "What luck?" "Bad luck, gentlemen, we just shot a man." That case is pending in the Erie Courts to-day. His dog had been run over and he had shot the man. He was not under the dollar license. If they had asked a dollar from him he never would have had it. He would never had his gun. He would never have shot the man. Tell me that in the old Commonwealth of Pennsylvania there is a man, that is, if he handles a gun and goes across our fields to hunt the game that nests there, that is not able to pay one pauper dollar to the revenues of the State of Pennsylvania and we Pennsylvanians. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I close, but I say to you in behalf of the Commonwealth and its revenues, and everything that pertains to the safety of the individual, make that man that comes from the city or comes from the farm, or comes from the country hamlet, pay his dollar for the handling of his gun.

Mr. SPANGLER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill for the reason that it discriminates against the occasional hunter, against the man who works in the factory and on the farm, who has an opportunity to hunt probably not oftener than once or twice during the course of the hunting season, and if you impose upon that man a license of one dollar and compel that man to take out a license in the prothonotary's office, which requires considerable time, it will mean that you deprive a great number of the citizens of our Commonwealth, particularly the poorer classes of the citizens of our Commonwealth, from the right of free citizens of this Commonwealth, which is a right that has extended during all the years of existence of the Commonwealth, namely, the right to hunt the wild game of our State.

The mere fact that the license fees are to be devoted to the payment of bounties is a subretfuge. If the State at the present time pays bounties for killing noxious animals, it is the duty of the State of Pennsylvania to make an appropriation for the amount of money that is now due and which the State of Pennsylvania now owes for that purpose, but I do not think that this is the way to collect that money. We already have on our statute books ample laws for the protection of game and it seems to me that this is a superfluous act under the conditions. I therefore ask you, gentlemen, in the name of the poorer classes of citizens, both in the country and in the cities, to oppose this measure.

Mr. LOWERS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Franklin, Mr. Runk.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Franklin permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. RUNK. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. LOWERS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if it is not true that during the past ten years he has held a commission as deputy game warden in this State?

Mr. RUNK. Mr. Speaker, No sir, it is not.

Mr. LOWERS. Then you have not held a commission?

Mr. RUNK. I did not. Under Governor Stuart he appointed me as a Game Warden and I acted for a while and when I sent reports to the Game Commission they ignored them and when they did send men they generally sent men with bad women with them.

Mr. LOWERS. I desire to further interrogate the gentleman; I want to ask the gentleman how many arrests he made during the time he was a deputy game warden, of violators of the game law?

Mr. RUNK. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to you, I did not arrest anybody. I did not take it with any promise that I would arrest anybody, but that I would report to the Game Commission any violations that I heard of and they would send men there to make the arrests.

Mr. LOWERS. Mr. Speaker, my reasons for interrogating the gentleman along this line were simply these; that in a speech made here some few day ago, the statement was made that the men in authority who were elected by the people of this State to protect the game, were not doing their whole duty, and I am glad the gentleman himself has informed you that he knew of hunters who not only violated the game laws, the laws relating to wild animal life, but infringed upon the decency and morals of the community. This is a measure for the poor man as well as the rich man. At the present time, those who are familiar with the situation in this State, recognize the fact that the rich men, driven to the point where they must do something to preserve the wild animal life in order to enjoy the privilege of gunning, have bought up many thousands of acres of land in this State and they have fenced them and forbid hunting upon these preserves, everybody excepting themselves and their friends. The Game Commission at the present time has stocked a number of preserves throughout this State, one of which is located about two and one-half hours ride from the town in which I live. I want to say to you that the town is in the heart of the greatest manufacturing district in the world and that we have a great many men employed in these shops and these mills, who enjoy a day's hunting, and they are all willing and anxious to contribute the small sum of one dollar towards making it possible for them to enjoy their one day's hunt in the woods because they recognize that with a sufficient fund in the hands of the Game Commission, it will be possible for them in two and one-half hours' ride to reach a point where they will have a fair opportunity of shooting and bringing home a deer, something worth while to every hunter; and so I urge upon the members of this House to give this measure their vote to place it on the statute books.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The SPEAKER. The previous question has been called for.

The motion was seconded by the following members: Messrs. Steedle, Letzkus, W. A. Blair, Moses, Keeport, Lowers, Snyder, Whitman, Brosius, Missimer, Adam C. Schaeffer, H. B. Dunn, Forster, George A. Baldwin, Reese, Swift, Mitchell, Thomas, Heyburn, Schuck, Newton, Goss, Reuben Howard, Down, Sassaman, Caldwell, Rex and others.

The SPEAKER. More than twenty members having joined in moving the previous question.

On the question,

Shall the previous question now be put?

It was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question now before the House is shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to be recorded as voting aye on this bill.

Mr. GIBSON. Mr. Speaker, was the gentleman in his seat? Is the gentleman entitled to vote?

The SPEAKER. The Chair assumes that he is entitled to vote. What is the objection?

Mr. GIBSON. The gentleman from Philadelphia was not in his seat.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is not required to be in his seat.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know how any man can question whether I was in the hall of the House unless he was out of the hall himself?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is presumed to have been in the hall of the House unless the contrary appears.

Mr. GIBSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Piper.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PIPER. I will.

Mr. GIBSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if he was in the hall.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, when you started to call the roll I was in the lobby of the House talking to some of my friends.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will be recorded as voting aye.

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, not hearing my name called, I would like to be recorded as voting aye.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HOBBS. It is a question of information; whether a member is required to be within the halls of the House or within the lobby when he votes.

The SPEAKER. The rule is that when the gentleman is within the halls of the House when his name is called, he has the right to have his vote recorded.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, what constitutes the hall of the House?

The SPEAKER. Anywhere inside of the first doors—the first doors from this point.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. James A. Dunn.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DUNN. I will.

Mr. HOBBS. Were you within the hall of the House when the roll was called?

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. I would like to interrogate you? Were you within the hall of the House?

Mr. HOBBS. That does not answer my question?

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. I was within the hall of the House.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. FLYNN. In order to simplify this matter I would state that when an objection is raised to a member voting after his name has been passed on the roll, that under the rules he shall then not be permitted to vote. After his name has been passed on the roll call, under the rules, he cannot vote if there is objection, whether he is in the House or out of the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair rules that the point of order of the gentleman from Elk is not well taken, if the gentleman desiring to be recorded is within the hall of the House when the roll was called.

Mr. FLYNN. Well, Mr. Speaker, do I understand you to rule that after a member's name is passed he shall be permitted to be recorded, even if objections are raised?

The SPEAKER. The Chair so understands the rule, provided the member has been within the hall of the House at the time his name was called. The gentleman states that he didn't hear his name called.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I hestitate to take issue with the Chair, but it has been the custom of this House at all times that the time to record a vote is when the name is called, and if it is passed, the member shall not be permitted to vote if objections are raised.

The SPEAKER. Rule 49 provides that no member shall be permitted to vote on any question unless he be within the bar, and when the yeas and nays are called, he be present to answer to his name. The gentlemen have stated that they were within the bar of the House but did not hear their names called.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I do not think that that covers the point that I raised. A member must vote when his name is called, otherwise, if there is objection, he shall not be permitted to record his vote. I understand, Mr. Speaker, that that has been the ruling of the Chairmen of this House since I can remember. I would call your attention to Rule 56 which provides, that no member shall be permitted to record his vote who neglects to vote when his name is first called by the Clerk.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would not construe that a member so neglecting to vote when through disorder or any other cause he failed to hear his name called.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I would still maintain, with due respect to your opinion, that the time to make objection is during the roll call, not after the roll call has been completed. A member can certainly rise in his place and demand that the roll call proceed in its order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would consider that the interruption of the roll call in that way would tend to disorder, and calling attention to the fact immediately upon the completion of the roll call is a substantial compliance with the rule, and tends greatly to the good order of the proceedings of the House.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise for information—where is the bar of the House spoken of in rule 46?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that under the practice of the House, inside the three doors of the House is inside the bar.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I understand then that the whole House is inside the bar.

Mr. GIBSON. Mr. Speaker. I would like to call your attention to rule 56.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Elk has read the rule. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. James A. Dunn, desires to be recorded as voting "aye". Unless the vote is challenged it will be received.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I challenge the vote.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state the grounds in writing.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dunn, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, No, sir; it is too late.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, In the proceedings of this House it has always been the rule that when a vote has been challenged that shall be put in writing. If the gentleman from Lackawanna Mr. Hobbs, challenges the vote of the gentleman from Philadelphia, the grounds of his challenge should be submitted in writing.

The SPEAKER. A challenge must be in writing where the proceedings of the vote would effect the result as to the passage of the bill. The Chair is informed by the Clerk that the receiving of this vote would not effect the result as to the passage of the bill.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, if we can get down to a matter of fact in this proposition, it is all I care for. I desire to ascertain whether the gentleman had the right to vote or not and therefore, I want the decision positive whether the gentleman was within the bar of this House or not when the roll was called. I insist upon an answer from the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Did the Chair understand the gentleman from Philadelphia (Mr. James A. Dunn) to state that he was within the bar of the House at the time his name was called?

Mr. JAMES A. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, Yes sir; I so stated to the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The word of the gentleman from Philadelphia can not be questioned in this matter.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of H. R. bill No. 34, as follows:

An Act providing for the safety of persons from fire or panic in certain buildings not in cities of the first and second classes by providing proper exits fire escapes fire extinguishers and other preventives of fire by vesting jurisdiction for the enforcement of this act in a State Fire Marshal and by providing proper penalties for any violation of the same

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Bill No. 648, file folio 407, entitled:

An Act to provide for the erection and organization of new counties out of parts of two adjoining counties and prescribing the manner in which the same may be done on page 52 of to-day's calendar, bills on third reading postponed for the present.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 648, entitled:

An Act to provide for the erection and organization of new counties out of parts of two adjoining counties and prescribing the manner in which the same may be done

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, as the sponsor of this bill and servant of the people, I first want to impress on the minds of the members of the House the fact that this bill is merely an enabling act whereby the people of a rapidly increasing community can enjoy the privileges of conservation. Onward and onward is the language of creation, the stars whispered in their courses, a state without the means of some change is without the means of its conservation.

Courts and counties are created for the convenience of citizens in this twentieth century we find sixty-seven counties embraced by the boundary line of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and of the sixty-seven Luzerne stands third in area and population, and gentlemen of the House, we find in this great county 20,000 people under the shadow of the Court House dictating to 50,000 thirty or forty miles from where the justice of the county and of the Commonwealth is administered that they shall not go out and farm and establish a county for themselves, or in conjunction with others.

Does not this savor of selfishness? why should the sixty-seven counties of this State have been created if it were not to answer the necessities as they arise.

Following along this line in order to subserve the convenience of citizens, the territory now comprised within three townships of Schuylkill county, Union, North Union and East Union, were annexed to Schuylkill County in 1868, and part of this territory was severed from Luzerne County, nevertheless the dismemberment did not impair the integrity of that "Commonwealth within a Commonwealth."

At the county seat of Luzerne, on criminal court and license days the Court House corridors are packed with such a mass of people, that one is almost unable to get in or out of the court. The whole thing looking more like a riot than the orderly administration of the law. This fact being materially substantiated by the introduction in the House by my friend, the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Thomas on the seventeenth instant a bill providing for an additional law judge.

Now, Mr. Speaker, and Members of the House, the creation of this new county is not solely for the purpose of economy and convenience to the 84,000 people who will be included within the confines of its boundary but as a guaranty of the better administration of the law, no one would be harmed, but thousands materially benefited.

Luzerne county has an area of 926 square miles, with a population of 343,168. Schuylkill county's area is 840 square miles, with a population of 207,894. The Constitution of Pennsylvania provides for new counties having but four hundred square miles and 20,000 in habitants. Now, gentlemen of the House, would either Luzerne or Schuylkill county be seriously impaired in sovereignty?

I want to read you some of the inconveniences that the inhabitants of this district which will be included within the confines of the boundaries of the proposed new county are suffering.

Hazleton is the commercial center of forty thousand people located within a radius of one mile. It is thirty-four miles distant from its county seat by the nearest route and forty-nine miles by railroad. The time consumed en route by electric line to and from the county seat is two hours and forty minutes and by railroad four hours and twenty minutes

The Borough of Freeland is the commercial center of nearly fifteen thousand people located by the only available route forty-four miles from the county seat. The time consumed in travel to and from Wilkes-Barre is four hours and twenty minutes. Freeland is located but nine miles from Hazleton.

This great distance from the county seat inevitably means to the people of both communities:

1. Excessive mileage for every grand juror, petit juror, traverse juror, witness, election officer, road viewer, bridge viewer, subpoena server, assessor, and for every person concerned in any legal process.

2. Loss of time to any party interested in the prosecution and defense of any pending case, whether it be his own, or of the Commonwealth, or whether he be unfortunate enough to be a witness.

3. The incurring of other expense incident to travel, including hotel expense.

4. The impossibility of procuring medical witnesses to attend cases arising from violation of the law, or negligence cases (unless in cases of corporations who can afford to pay), with the prospect of loss of time and inconvenience of attending court.

5. Evasion by jurors and witnesses of attendance at court, thus defeating the ends of justice.

6. Abandonment of many civil suite involving amounts less than $150 and the absolute forfeiture of the rights of the parties, of which cases there are hundreds upon the dockets of the county.

7. The discouragement of prosecuting criminal suits and the punishment of offenders, thus placing a premimum upon the commission of crime.

8. Frequent continuance of cases, after parties and witnesses are in attendance, as for instance A. vs. B. No. 16, Feb. Term, 1900, Court of Common Pleas of Luzerne County, wherein the costs of witnesses and mileage upon one side only, aggregated over five hundred dollars, and wherein several continuances were suffered. This is but an illustration of the general rule.

9. The sacrifice of small estates to legal expense and fees and especially unnecessary costs and fees in matters pertaining to estates of minors.

10. Every case wherein the Sheriff receives process arising from the vicinity of Hazleton or Freeland necessitates the payments of sums ranging from $10.80 to $12.80 to be borne either by the party or by the county. This also necessarily multiplies the costs paid to officers mentioned in paragraph 1.

11. The denial of justice in cases wherein immediate relief is imperative.

12. Insecurity incident to the conveyance of titles because conveyances made may be preceded by liens of record filed after search made and before the record of the deed. This is due to the great distance from the county seat.

INCONVENIENCE TO UPPER SCHUYLKILL.

All of the foregoing inconveniences are common to both sections.

The principal town of North Union Township Nuremberg, is located by rail 41 miles from the county seat, Pottsville, and is only 12 miles from Hazleton.

The principal towns of East Union Township, Sheppton and Oneida, are located 40 miles from the county seat and only ten miles from Hazleton.

The people of these towns in reaching their county seat necessarily pass through Hazleton and travel thence beyond thirty miles to Pottsville, their county seat, thus traversing part of Luzerne, Carbon and Schuylkill counties.

None of these people having legal business as jurors, litigants or witnesses can attend court during one entire day unless they devote another in going to and returning from the county seat. These conditions affect four thousand people of Upper Schuylkill, nearly one-third of the entire population desired from Schuylkill county.

The borough of McAdoo and the township of Kline, embracing a population of 7,000 travel twenty-four miles to the county seat, with fare for return trip of $1,20 and are but six miles from Hazleton with trolley fare but twenty cents for the round trip. This embraces nearly one-third of the population desired from Schuylkill county.

None of the citizens within the most distant parts of the townships of Kline, Delano or Rush, other townships or Schuylkill county., is located nearer their present county seat than to Hazleton.

RELATIVE POSITION OF THE COUNTY.

The proposed new county would be larger than many other counties of the State and would be 23rd in population according to the last census. The population, 84,410 people (in 1910) would be greater than that of 45 other counties of the State of Pennsylvania. This can be accomplished without disturbing the relative position of Luzerne or Schuylkill counties in the point of population or wealth.

Experts of the coal companies have estimated that the coal measures in and around the City of Hazleton will not be exhausted for many generations.

Agricultural sections proposed to be embraced in the limits of the proposed new county, are especially rich and fertile and with the extension of transportation facilities within the past five years have taken on a permanent growth.

The introduction of electricity as a motive power has resulted in the establishment of an electrical power plant at the mouth of the mines at Harwood, two miles removed from Hazleton, with capacity sufficient to convey power a distance of one hundred and fifty miles, to and beyond the City of Philadelphia. It is estimated that the primary investment here will exceed $10,000,000.

The amount of money deposited in the banks of Hazleton is nearly ten million dollars, a larger per capita than in most communities of the State.

The following excerpts from an interview with the largest independent Anthracite coal operator in the United States are offered as proof of the permanency of Lower Luzerne.

"Bright, very bright. We are entering upon an era of unheard of prosperity. I have read your article in the "Plain Speaker" in regard to bright prospects ahead at No. 4 colliery on account of our opening up and operating the Mammoth seam in that slope. Your article was correct as far as it went, but you only told a partial truth. To-day operations are in such condition that we can employ four hundred extra men. For same years back we have been operating in the small seams and hold the Mammoth and thicker seams in reserve. We will now open up the Mammoth and it will give employment for years to a large number of men. We are going to erect additional breakers on our properties. My plans are not yet complete and I do not care to go into details at this time. Suffice to say that I intend to keep pace with all the modern improvements in the mining and preparation of coal and materially increase the present output of this property." "Electricity is the power of the future and its development here opens up great possibilities for this region. I mean Hazleton, Freeland, in fact this whole mountain top. Electricity makes it possible to develop the smaller coal veins throughout the region that have been unworked for years, because to develop them would prove a losing venture. I canot help but feel that both Hazleton and Freeland have a very bright future. There is no sign of diminuation of the coal mining output for many years to come."—John Markle in published interview Hazleton Plain Speaker, February, 1907.

The above facts are given to demonstrate the permanency of the community because it has been assailed by opponents of the bill; and because the latter have attempted to discredit the capacity of the people for self government.

It is respectfully submitted to the Legislature of Pennsylvania that the people affected, who have been carrying on this struggle for a period of 25 years, during which time the bill passed the House in the session of 1893 and the House and Senate in 1895, but unfortunately failed of Executive approval, should be relieved from the intolerable burdens and inconveniences from which they suffer.

LUZERNE COURTS THREE YEARS BEHIND.

An examination of the current Common Pleas trial list of Luzerne County demonstrates that three years are required to reach the ordinary civil suit. As a consequence a widespread agitation is had for a fifth Common Pleas Judge. If a new county be created, none will be necessary.

The following excerpt from the Wilkes-Barre Record of February 14, 1913, shows that the people of this community suffer for lack of court facilities:

Considerable discussion has been engaged in as to the probable indebtedness of the proposed new county. I would say that the indebtedness would be determined by a commission provided for in the bill. Furthermore, we have no extraordinary situations to incur extraordinary expenses as confront Luzerne and Schuylkill counties such as for example the building of bridges across rivers.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS.

The Constitutional Convention of 1873, after extensive and exhaustive debate, adopted the following provision governing the erection and construction of new counties:

New Counties.

(Constitution Article 13, Sec. 1).

No new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to less than four hundred square miles, or to less than twenty thousand inhabitants; nor shall any county be formed of less area, or containing a less population; nor shall any line thereof pass within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided.

If we apply all of the above tests we find that at present there are no other two counties in the Commonwealth that can be affected by the Act at the present time; nor at the rate of present development and growth of the larger counties is such contingency liable to occur within the next half century.

For example: The counties of Westmoreland and Fayette could combine the necessary population, but the ten mile limit from the county seat is an insurpèrable bar because the necessary territory could not thus be acquired, to wit, four hundred square miles.

As another example: The counties of Berks and Lancaster could probably combine sufficient population. But again the ten mile limit is an effectual bar because of the proximity of the City of Reading, the county seat of Berks County, to the county line of Lancaster County, the distance being less than ten miles.

In this manner illustrations could be multiplied and infinitum.

The above provision is conclusive of the fact that the Constitutional Convention contemplated that circumstances would arise that would make the creation of new counties necessary and desirable.

A perusal of the debates (too exhaustive for extensive quotation) shows that it was desired to recede from the position taken in the former provisions which were practically prohibitory of the creation of new counties.

In the course of the debates the several delegates to the Constiutional Convention whose views ultimately prevailed expressed themselves in the following language as it is reported from "Debates of the Constitutional Convention:"

"As the world moves new counties must be formed. For the speedy administration of justice it is necessary that it should be so."

Now, Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, as the servant of 84,000 appealing inhabitants of the proposed new county, I am knocking at the door of Justice, appealing to your enlightened judgment, to cast aside party affiliation, reciprocity, and friendly consideration for the opposition to this bill, by confirming my argument in behalf of my people and thereby eliminating the burden they have suffered to bear for nearly half a century.

This is not a drastic measure, "as the world moves new counties must be formed for the speedy administration of justice." This bill, gentlemen of the House, was favorably reported out of Committee on Counties and Townships, February twelfth, was recommitted and again favorably reported, does not this alone prove the merits of the bill.

In conclusion I again wish to impress on your minds gentlemen that this is merely an enabling act whereby the people can express their choice. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House we want a new county.

Where spades grow bright
And idle swords grow dull
Where jails are empty and where Bards are full
Where church paths are
With frequent feet outworn
Law court yards empty silent and folorn
Where the lawyers feet's it and the farmers ride
Where age abounds and youth is multiplied
Where these signs are they clearly indicate
A happy people and well governed State.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ADAMS. I will.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman to what counties this bill refers.

Mr. ADAMS. To Luzerne and Schuylkill Counties.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman whether under the terms of this bill this can refer to any other than Schuylkill or Luzerne counties.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, not at the present time.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, then I raise the point of order that this bill is unconstitutional, that it is special and local legislation prohibited by Article Three, Section Seven of the Constitution, which reads: "The General Assembly shall not pass any local or special law regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs, or school districts, and locating or changing county seats, erecting new counties, or changing county lines," for the reason that under the admission of the gentleman that it cannot apply to any other counties, it therefore excludes from its operation sixty-five counties of the State, and further, if that is not true, the terms of the bill exclude all counties having an area of less than eight hundred square miles.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is not debateable. It looks to the Chair like special legislation, but the Chair would like to hear the question debated, and it is a question which ought to be debated by the lawyers of the House. The only way in which the Chair can put the question in a way in which it can be debated is to submit the point of order to the House, which the Chair does.

On the question,

Shall the point of order be sustained?

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. I want to call the attention of the House to the title and section one of this act. The act provides that whenever two adjoining counties of this Commonwealth shall each contain eight hundred square miles or more and attain a population of one hundred and fifty thousand or more or that have already reached the same they may be divided and a new county erected from contiguous territory taken from each of such counties upon consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the proposed new county district voting at an election to be called for such purpose.

It excludes from its operation as is apparent from its term all counties having a territory of less than 800 square miles. There are sixty-seven counties in the State of Pennsylvania, and but twenty-four of those counties have an area of eight hundred square miles or more. There are ten groups of counties of two each which could meet the requirements of this bill, and the bill, therefore, excludes, from its operations four out of the twenty-four counties. It would therefore exclude forty-seven counties. An examination of the areas and population of the counties would show but twenty-four counties having an area of eight hundred square miles, and in support of my contention, I cite to the members of the House the case of the Commonwealth vs. Patten, 88 Pennsylvania, 258. This was a case that applied to Crawford County, in which the Supreme Court made the decision quoted in the before mentioned case. I shall read such portions of the decisions as in my judgment are best for the advisement of the House.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a statement, with the permission of the gentleman from Schuylkill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill yield the floor to the gentleman from Luzerne?

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I will.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Luzerne will proceed.

Mr. ADAMS. This bill being an enabling act gives to the people the right to vote on the measure, and it would necessarily have to be decided upon by the courts as to the Constitutionality of the bill before the people would be permitted to vote on the matter. It is a question of putting the bill to the vote of the people.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I submit that this is not pertinent to the question at issue here.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Schuylkill will proceed.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I shall read in the first part of the syllabus of the case, and will later refer to the decision of the Court.

The case referred to Crawford county, and the Court said:

"The Act of 1874 classifies cities by their population. The Act of 18th of April 1878, can hardly be said to be a classification of counties. It is true it speaks of all counties of more than sixty thousand inhabitants. But it goes on to say: 'And in which there shall be any city incorporated at the time of the passage of this act with a population exceeding eight thousand inhabitants situate at the distance from the county seat of more than twenty seven miles by the usually traveled road.' This is classification run mad. Why not say all counties named Crawford, with a population not exceeding sixty thousand, that a certain city called Titusville, with a population of over eight thousand, and situate twenty-seven miles from the county seat? Or all counties with a population of over sixty thousand watered by a certain river or bounded by a certain mountain. There can be no proper classification of cities except by population. The moment we respect to geographical distinctions, we enter the domain of special legislation, for the reason that such classification operates upon certain cities or counties to the perputual exclusion of all others."

But to show to the House that the Court regards it so, I quote in 212 Pennsylvania, the case of Sample vs. Pittsburgh, a case with which no doubt the members from Allegheny County, and particularly attorneys, are familiar. The terms of the act are as follows:

"An Act providing that where two cities are contiguous, and in the same county, the smaller may be annexed to the larger; prescribing the method of proceeding and the effect of annexation; providing for the division of such enlarged cities into wards, for the apportionment of common council, and for the indebtedness of such cities," approved April 20, 1905, P. L. 221.

You will notice in the title of this act that the word "contiguous" is used.

I call attention to the fact in the title of this bill and in section one where it refers to "two adjoining counties and prescribing the manner in which the same may be done." They must be adjoining counties; they must be contiguous. On page 537 of the Pennsylvania Laws of that decision, the Supreme Court ruled on this section of the Constitution referring to section 7, article 3, in plain terms as follows:

"This section of the constitution has frequently been the subject of interpretation by this court. Commonwealth vs. Patton, 88 Pa. 258, involved the constitutionality of an act of Assembly entitled: 'An Act to provide for the holding of courts in certain cities of this Commonwealth.' The act required that in all counties containing a certain population and having a city with a certain population, situate at a certain distance from the county seat, the judge of the courts of the county should hold a session of court in such city after every regular term of court for the county. This court held the act to be special legislation and in conflict with article III, sec. 7 of the Constitution. The trial judge in that case found that Crawford county was the only county to which the act could apply at that time. Mr. Justice Paxson delivering the opinion says (p. 260): "This is classification run mad. Why not say all counties name Crawford, with a population exceeding sixty thousand, that contain a city called Titusville, with a population of over eight thousand, and situated twenty-seven miles from the county seat? Or all counties with a population of over sixty thousand, watered by a certain river or bounded by a certain mountain There can be no proper classification of cities or counties except by population. The moment we resort to geographical distinctions we enter the domain of special legislation, for the reason that such classification operates on certain cities or counties to the perpetual exclusion of all others.....That is not classification which merely designates one county in the Commonwealth, and contains no provision by which any other county may, by reason of its increase of population in the future, come within the class."

I shall not go into that any further but I wish to cite another case on page 540, Pennsylvania Laws where you have an absolute confirmation of the decision I have just quoted, as follows:

"It was not then a general act, applicable to every part of the Commonwealth. It did apply to a great number of counties; but there is no dividing line between a local and a general statute. It must be either the one or the other. If it apply to the whole State it is general. If to a part only, it is local. As a legal principle it is as effectually local when it applies to sixty-five counties out of the sixty-seven, as if it applied to the one county only. The exclusion of a single county from the operation of the act make it local."

I shall not go over the whole list of cases. I might go on in support of what I have already submitted with other cases, but I wish to state to this House that it has been decided absolutely by the Supreme Court of this State, on an act of Assembly that any act which excludes from its operation other counties is unconstitutional. It states when that point is raised they will declare it to be unconstitutional.

I will read the following:

"The court will look at the substance and not the form of legislation in determining the question, and a local or special act, repugnant to the fundamental law, will be declared void though it may be disguished as a general act. Classification of cities may be used as a basis for legislation which relates to municipal affairs, but if the legislation concern subjects of general as distinguished from a municipal character it passes into the realm of local or special legislation forbidden by the Constitution. However disguished, classification can never be successfully invoked for the purpose of evading the Constitutional inhibition against local or special legislation."

I will also add:

"The act under consideration here not only affects the people of the two cities but concerns the two cities in their governmental and corporate capacities. It enlarges the territory and population of one, and deprives the other of its charter and government as a city It is apparent, we think, that the act is a "law regulating the affairs of" the cities within its operation."

Judge Paxson issued the following warning in the case of Morrison vs. Bachart in 112, Pa. 328 as follows:

"Prior to the adoption of the present Constitution there was hardly an approach to uniformity in the fees of public officers throughout the State. Local acts had been procured for many of the counties, in some instances through the influence of the officers themselves, fixing the fees more in harmony with their own greed than the interests of the people, who may fairly be presumed to have known nothing of it until they came to pay the fees. It was to cut this system up, root and branch, with other evils of like nature that the clause in question was inserted in the Constitution. It was a wise provision and will be sternly enforced. It is our purpose to adhere rigidly to that instrument, that the people may not be deprived of its benefits. It ought to be unnecessary for this court to make this judicial declaration, but it is proper to do so, in vew of the amount of legislation which is periodically placed upon the statute book in entire disregard of the fundamental law. Much of this legislation may remain unchallenged for years, only to be over-turned when it reaches this court. In the meantime, parties may have acted upon it, rights may have grown up, and the inconveniences and losses entailed thereby may not be inconsiderable. As we view it, this note of warning at this time is needed.

That the act in question is in direct conflict with the Constitution is too plain for argument. It is only necessary to read the title to this act to see this. It excludes perpetually from its operation all counties having a population of over one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants. This makes it a local law. If it can exclude Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, it may exclude every other county in the State but the one county seeking such special or local legislation.

I know very well that the members of the House are in the habit of saying "Let the Courts decide this." Mr. Speaker, I don't wish to take up your time further in discussion of this local proposition. It has been admitted by the sponsers of the bill and the language of it is plain, that this act cannot apply to any except those counties which have at least an area of eight hundred square miles. It excludes all but two counties, Schuylkill and Luzerne; that is sixty-five out of sixty-seven counties. The question is this, whether or not you are going to pass a law which you know is purely special and local and then take it to a higher court to determine whether it is constitutional or not. I submit to you, gentlemen of the House, that I have established that it is in direct contradiction of article 3, section 7 of the Constitution of this State.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, This bill was framed by eminent attorneys in Luzerne and all that the gentleman has said in opposition to it was brought forward and considered. This bill passed the House and Senate and was vetoed by Governor Hastings in the nineties. All the points were considered, and argued and debated at that time before the vote was taken on the bill. There was nothing stated as to the unconstitutionality of the bill. It then passed the House and Senate. Furthermore, I wish to say that there is nothing in the arguments as regards the population of the proposed new counties. That matter can be very well amended as to the territory in the event of the bill passing the House.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, having been a member of the Bar for some twenty-two years and during all this time, I like any other attorney, knew and do know that these constitutional questions are almost every day arising in practice. This certainly is an interesting question raised for us to decide tonight. It seems to me that the point of order that the gentleman from Schuylkill raises is very well taken. From a local and constitutional point of view, I can see no escaping from it. If you will examine line four, five and six, under file folio 407, it specifically says that this can only apply whenever two—he uses the word two—adjoining counties are involved and now I want to call your attention in addition to the constitutional requirements, cited to you by the gentleman from Schuylkill as to any special or local legislation that the rules of this House, which are the parliamentary law of this body, cover. On page four of the Rules, under the title of "Bills" article three of section seven, of the Constitution, is quoted, and made a part of the rules of this House, in which it is distinctly stated that we are absolutely prohibited from passing any special or local legislation and in it it quotes the same wording cited by the gentleman who has just spoken about counties or changing county lines and when you have a bill which generally and specifically limits itself to two counties, can their be any other conclusion and whether you are of the legal fraternity or of the laity you can see that is special legislation for special purposes and intended for a special case and only one case. There is not other view or conclusion arises in my mind when I read that bill. Go on down to line five, in which the qualification is that each of these counties shall contain eight hundred square miles or more, thus making another classification which I will state as I understand the judicial construction of the Constitution and absolutely prohibits unless you classify these counties according to the population. You cannot classify them by anything but population; you cannot classify them according to the decisions of this Commonwealth and this bill seeks to undertake to classify them not only by limiting to but two but by limiting it to counties containing eight hundred square miles and then it does go on and specify that it shall classify them according to population. Then, I say the feasible objection are these two points. It seems to me that either one of these two objections—limiting the bill to any two counties or classifying it by eight hundred square miles are absolutely vital to the bill and that we, as members of this House, having in mind the Constitution and the absolute rules of this House should vote to sustain the point of order raised by the gentleman from Schuylkill.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that the present area of Luzerne County is 926 square miles and the present area of Schuylkill is 840 square miles. The proposed new county, the area taken from Luzerne County for the purpose of forming the new county, would be 258 square miles, leaving 668 square miles in Luzerne and 689 square miles in Schuylkill county.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the objections that have been raised by the gentleman from Schuylkill and the gentleman from Tioga overlook the fact that from the very requirement of the Constitution, an enabling act of creation of a new county cannot be general in its character. The Constitution requires that a new county shall not reduce an old county below 400 square miles, nor below 20,000 in population, and likewise that the new county shall not have less than 400 square miles or below 20,000 population. From that requirement alone, it is quite apparent that there can be no act here which will apply equally to all counties; that is, that not every county in Pennsylvania can fulfill the requirements. I mean to say that the classification as to population, to my mind is that ultimately the counties may by population reach a certain class, but I want to point out also the classifications that have been made in other respects in the Constitution by classification of cities that are contiguous with counties, in the matter of territory, is a classification of population. As I read this act, it can apply to other counties in Pennsylvania. There are a number of counties,—just hastily glancing over the population of the counties, I find that Tioga and Potter, which have over 8,000 population and are contiguous, and Lycoming, Bradford, Bedford and Somerset, each of them posisbly might be included within this act. It is an enabling act, which the gentleman from Luzerne has said at present might apply to only one particular section of Pennsylvania, yet there is a possibility and a likelihood that it may affect other territory and other counties lying contiguous. I say therefore, in the very nature of things, you cannot have an enabling act or an act creating new counties which will apply equally to every county in the State of Pennsylvania, and to my mind this bill is not unconstitutional.

Mr. JOSEPH GRAY.. Mr. Speaker, I want to confine myself to the point of order that is before the House, and not make any speech upon matters not applicable to the act. We have general legislation under Articlae 3 of the Constitution, quoted by the gentleman from Schuylkill, in which it is provided that "the General Assembly shall not pass any local or special law erecting new counties or changing county lines." Now, we all know that when there is a special provision in a bill or any legislation different from a general provision, that it is special legislation or a special act which controls. Now, under the Constitution—as all State Constitutions are simply limitations of power—there is a separate article for the erection of counties, a separate article, and it says "New Counties—Restrictions in Forming." Now, if this act providing for the erection of this new county does not violate the provisions of Article 13, which is a special article, if it does not violate the restrictions of that article, then I do not see how it can be called unconstitutional, because it provides the very restrictions which shall be observed in the forming of counties. It is specific and of course, being specific, it will control any general enactment or general provision of the Constitution. Further than that, I think probably there is a great deal of doubt as to the constitutionality of this act. I don't think this act ought to pass on the constitutionality of it.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I ask the forbearance of the House to answer some of the very interesting arguments I have heard in regard to the constitutionality of this act. It is because it is an important question, and it is because it affects my county that I am more deeply interested than some about it. I do not want to discuss the merits of this bill, or rather the demerits, now. I have heard some very queer law this evening from certain members of this House. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Miller.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. Yes, sir, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman whether, under the terms of this bill, it could possibly apply to Lehigh County.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, no, sir.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. It could not? I would ask the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, whether or not he is willing to take a declaration of the law of this State from Chief Justice Mercur, as declared in Davis versus Clark, 106 Pennsylvania, page 384.

Mr. MILLER. If you will give me the facts, I will tell you whether I am willing.

Mr. JOHN ROBERT JONES. Mr. Speaker, the facts are these: The gentleman has just admitted that it could not, under any circumstances, affect Lehigh County. Justice Mercur, in Davis versus Clark, 106 Pennsylvania, 384, declared:

"It was not, then, a general Act, applicable to every part of the Commonwealth. It did apply to a great number of counties; but there is no dividing line between a local, and a general, statute. It must be either the one or the other. If it apply to the whole state it is general. If to a part, it is local. As a legal principle it is as effectually local when it aplies to sixty-five counties out of the sixty-seven, as if it applied to one county only. The exclusion of a single county from the operation of the Act makes it local."

The gentleman from Lehigh has stated, for the information of the House that, in the making of counties, it must necessarily be local. That is absolutely not true. Lackawanna County as established under the act of 1878, which was repealed in 1895, and which the very interesting pamphlet spread about this House by the gentleman from Luzerne declares was not fair to Luzerne County. When a county contains 150,000 population or more, then a division should take place, and that is absolutely constitutional. The Court has declared that the moment you leave the domain of population and go to a restriction of geography, it becomes local, because geographical conditions cannot be changed except by legislation subsequent to the act under discusssion. Thus, the creating of all counties having a population of 150,000 or more is constitutional and general, on the theory that it permits all over to come in under its terms. Now, it seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that is absolutely unanswerable. Here you have the decision of the court. There is no question about it. Not a single person here has disputed it. I have not heard of anyone having the temerity to say that the Supreme Court does not know what it is talking about.

Mr. MILLER. I still repeat the point that I raised before and that is this: Under the very terms of the Constitution an act creating new counties cannot apply to every county in Pennsylvania. The Constitution is plain upon that point. In order to put that section of the Constitution in it, you must have an enabling act. This enabling act says that the counties must have 800 square miles and be contiguous. I say that there are more counties than Schuylkill and Lackawanna which lie continguous and which have 400 square miles. It is a general act applying to all counties which comply with that condition, and for that reason I again repeat, this act to my mind is not unconstitutional. If we are going to say that an act must be general and apply to every county, you can never have an enabling act which will divide counties or create counties as the Constitution contemplates.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to state the necessity for the enabling act. While the Constitution contemplates that such occasions would arise there is no enabling Act upon the Statute Books. The people of Hazleton and vicinity affected could have availed themselves of the Act of 1878 by taking 400 square miles from the county of Luzerne. This act was in force and effect until 1895; yet, the people knowing the burdens and inconveniences from which they suffered rather continued to bear them than to impose like burdens on people in remote sections of Luzerne County from the city of Hazleton. This observation should be sufficient answer to the charge of selfish interests.

On the question recurring,

Shall the point of order be sustained?

A division was called for, 71 voting in the affirmative and 65 in the negative.

And the point of order was sustained.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker. I offer the following motion.

The SPEAKER. The motion will be read by the Clerk.

The motion was read by the Clerk as follows:

Moved by H. W. Bergey that the vote by which House Bill No. 1010, file folio 4249, passed finally, be reconsidered.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, my reason for asking reconsideration of this vote is because I believe a large number of men voted on that bill not knowing its contents. The bill provides that the Secretary of the State Livestock Board shall be raised in his salary one hundred per cent. It also provides that his assistant shall be raised one hundred per cent. Having voted in the affirmative, I therefore ask that this bill be reconsidered and that the members of this House may vote upon it intelligently.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery (Mr. Bergey).

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman how he voted on this bill.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, I voted aye.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that when we come to reconsider a vote that has been fairly taken, over and over again to take up the time of the House, it ought to be set down on by the members of the House, otherwise we never will finish the legislation which we have at hand, and that is my only reason for asking the members of the House to vote down this motion at this time to reconsider.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I think the sponsor of this bill ought not to insist on his opposition to this motion at this time, in fairness to the members of this House and especially in fairness to all the members who desire to be heard on the bill, and who did not realize that the bill was being called up until the roll was being called. There are a number of the members who feel that in fairness to the House that we should have the matter again considered and the vote retaken and the members have a full opportunity to understand the subject matter of the bill and the subject confronting the House and I think the sponsor of the bill ought to withdraw all opposition to the consideration of the bill under the circumstances, and I would ask him if he will not do that.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, this bill was called up in regular order and it had been voted upon at the call of the roll and I insist that it would be unfair and improper for this House to reconsider after the bill had been voted upon in regular order. Not only that, but there are a number of members who voted on this bill when the vote was taken, who are not here. It would be an unfair proposition to bring up the bill now.

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Kuhn.

Mr. FAHEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. SPEISER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lehigh has been recognized and was given the floor before the motion to adjourn was made and the motion will have to wait until he concludes.

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, this bill has been called up in regular order, that is true, and you gentlemen saw me standing on the floor of this House and I was just waiting for the Speaker to conclude his remarks, when I addressed him and on it went.

Now, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, the concensus of opinion of this House is not to pass this bill, I am satisfied, and I ask you to support this motion and let us have a fair chance at this bill.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. FAHEY. Mr. Speaker. I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. SPEISER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER declared the yeas seemed to have it.

Whereupon a division was called for, 89 voting in the affirmative and 64 in the negative.

And the question was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon (at 11.55 P. M.) the House adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10.00 o'clock.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I rise at this time on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Salus, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, last evening I was interrogated by the Senator from Washington County, Mr. Judson, as to the manner in which certain bills were reported from the Committee on Law and Order, and in answer to the interrogation of the Senator at that time, I stated how these bills were reported from this committee. At that time I stated that the Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Sensenich, had agreed that these bill be reported out, and in fairness to Senator Sensenich and in order that he may not be misunderstood at home among his constituents, I want to say that when he agreed that these bills should be reported out, he said at that time that he did it on the theory that he thought all bills should be reported out of all committees at all times. I make this statement in fairness to the Senator from Westmoreland County, Mr. Sensenich.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE PENNSYLVANIA MEN'S LEAGUE FOR WOMEN SUFFRAGE.

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate a communication, which was read as follows and referred to the Committee on Judiciary General:

Philadelphia, Pa., March 31, 1913.

Lieutenant Governor Reynolds,
Senate Chamber, Harrisburg, Pa.

The Pennsylvania Men's League for Women Suffrage assembled in annual meeting earnestly asks the Senate to redeem the pledges made by all political parties in their platforms during the last election by submitting to the voters of the State the question of equal suffrage for women.

DIMNER BEEBER, President.
HENRY JUSTICE, Secretary.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED AT THE CONFERENCE AND EXHIBIT ON MENTAL HYGIENE HELD IN PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 15 TO 22, 1913.

He also laid before the Senate communication, which was read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation:

Conference and Exhibit on Mental Hygiene
At City Hall, Philadelphia, between March 15th and 22nd, 1913
Under the Auspices of The Civil Club of Philadelphia
The Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania and Other Co-Operating Organizations.

March 28, 1913.

Honorable John M. Reynolds,
President of the Senate, Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:—Permit me to hand you herewith a series of resolutions adopted at the Conference and Exhibit on Mental Hygiene, which was recently held in this city.

These resolutions emphasize the possibilities of preventive and curative measures for checking the present marked increase in the numbers of the insane and feeble-minded requiring State care. Any reduction in this rate of increase means a corresponding saving to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth.

It was the hope of the members of the Conference that the members of the Legislature would make careful inquiry into the possibilities of preventive work for the insane and feeble-minded as shown by experience in this and other countries and that a reasonable fraction of the States appropriations for charitable work might be devoted to prevention.

Very truly yours,
JOS. SNEFF,
Chairman.

Resolutions adopted at the Conference and Exhibit on Mental Hygiene held in Philadelphia March 15 to 22, 1913.

I.

Whereas, The facts brought out at the Conference and Exhibit on Mental Hygiene show that the State is in need of more diversified and more adequate care for the insane and the mentally defective, and

Whereas, The State is spending large sums of money to support privately managed charities of local scope whose work is not generally accepted as a State function or responsibility, and

Whereas, This money is greatly needed to support the charities owned and managed by the State, more especially those for the feeble-minded and insane; therefore,

Be It Resolved, That the members of the Conference on Mental Hygiene here assembled heartily endorse the recommendation of the Board of Public Charities urging that State institutions should receive first consideration from the Legislature and we hereby urge the State of Pennsylvania through its representatives in the Legislature to assume the responsibility for the full and adequate care of the insane and feeble-minded before extending aid to local charities under private control.

II.

Whereas, There are a large number of feeble-minded women, conservatively estimated at eight thousand, at large in Pennsylvania, and

Whereas, There is practically no provision for this class of unfortunates in Pennsylvania, and

Whereas, The feeble-minded women is a menace to the community and liable to be the prey of immoral men, and

Whereas, It has been shown that feeble-minded women have an average of five feeble-minded children for whom the State will be called upon to care; therefore

Be It Resolved, That the members of the Conference on Mental Hygiene here assembled urge upon the Legislature the passage of the Ambler bill providing for the creation of a Colony for Feeble-Minded Women.

III.

Whereas, There is serious overcrowding in the insane department of the Philadelphia General Hospital and at the Norristown Hospital, and

Whereas, The problem of care and treatment of the insane should rightly belong to the State; therefore,

Be It Resolved, That the members of the Conference on Mental Hygiene here assembled urge upon the members of the Legislature the creation of a new State Hospital for the Insane in the Southeastern district of Pennsylvania.

IV.

Whereas, The data submitted at the Conference and Exhibit on Mental Hygiene has shown clearly the need of social service for persons suffering from insanity, and

Whereas, "After-care" for discharged patients has proved beneficial in making permanent the results of hospital care, and

Whereas, The care of those dependent upon persons suffering from mental disease is a definite part of the problem of care and treatment of the insane; therefore,

Be It Resolved, That the members of the Conference on Mental Hygiene here assembled urge upon the Legislature the appropriation of sufficient funds to permit the employment of a social service agent in connection with each of the State Hospitals for the insane

V.

Whereas, There is need for further knowledge on the subjects of the causes, onset, effects and treatment of insanity and feeble-mindedness, and

Whereas, Some of our sister States are studying these subjects by means of research departments attached to the State Hospitals; therefore.

Be It Resolved, That the members of the Conference on Mental Hygiene favor the creation of a department of research attached to one or more State Hospitals and Homes, so that further knowledge of insanity and feeble-mindedness may be collected and placed at the service of the Legislature and the public.

Be It Further Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be transmitted to his Excellency, the Governor, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and to the State Board of Public Charities.

Be It Also Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be transmitted to the President of the Senate and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly and that they be asked to transmit these resolutions to the members of the respective bodies of the General Assembly.

BILL ON FIRST READING.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 231 (House No. 185), entitled:

A joint resolution proposing an amendment to Section one Article eight of the Constitution of Pennsylvania

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, I move that the question, together with the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present, and in regard to that motion I would say that an identical bill is my bill, Senate No. 88, and I therefore feel that I am entitled to the courtesy of the Senate to have this bill postponed, being the sponsor for the bill in the Senate and having the identical resolution in my charge.

Mr. JARRETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HERBST. Mr. President, if this is the identical bill of the Senator, and the Senator is here present, I do not see why senatorial courtesy should be extended to him to postpone this bill. This, in the famous language used by a famous man in this country, is an irrepressible conflict. We are up against it. We either have to show our colors or not show them, and I do not believe in postponing the inevitable. I believe we have as full a Senate here as we will ever get here during the remainder of the session, and I see no reason whatever why we should not be able to face this question and take a vote upon it.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, it seems to me that the Senator from Allegheny is not consistent in his views in moving to postpone further action on this bill. Last night he stood upon the floor of this Senate and urged that the postponed calendar was getting so large and thought that in the absence of one of the members of the Senate we should act on a bill that was introduced by the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. Snyder, and if he wants to be consistent in his proposition of last night, then, Mr. Speaker, he should not ask for the postponement of this bill on the ground of senatorial courtesy.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, if the Senator from Dauphin will remember, last night on an appeal to me on the ground of senatorial courtesy I withdrew my motion, and therefore I feel I am entitled to it now, and am absolutely consistent in offering this motion. In support of it, I want to say that the President Pro Tem. of this Senate came to me and asked me to have this bill postponed at the request of some Senators who were absent, particularly at the request of his colleague, Senator Homsher of Lancaster. There are also absent from this Senate chamber a number of other Senators who want and feel that they have a right to be recorded on this measure. Now, there is not any question at all and it has always been the rule in this Senate that a Senator shall have control of his own legislation so long as he does not desire to prevent a vote upon it, and I am not desiring to prevent a vote upon this question, but only to place this bill on the postponed calendar. Senator Hoke, just a minute ago, was extended the courtesy of this Senate and his bill was placed upon the postponed calendar, and last night on an appeal on the ground of courtesy I withdrew my amendment and allowed the bill of Senator Snyder to be put upon the postponed calendar.

When this bill came out of the Committee of Judiciary General, the understanding in that Comimttee was that I should be allowed the privilege of postponing the bill if there were any considerable number of the Senators absent, and members of that Committee will bear me out in that statement. Now, of course, if there is not going to be any senatorial courtesy on Tuesdays and there is to be courtesy on Mondays, then we want to know it. If Tuesday is to be an open day and hereafter senatorial courtesy does not apply on Tuesdays, then I will go along on that assumption. My understanding was that senatorial courtesy worked on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that it works both from the Senator from Dauphin county to me and from me to the Senator from Dauphin county.

If it does not, why then we will know after the vote is taken upon this question.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from Allegheny forgets that last night when he withdrew his motion to postpone action upon the bill introduced by the Senator from Schuylkill, that he did not make the suggestion that it was on the ground of senatorial courtesy which was due himself, but that he would ask it to-day on the ground of the absence of the Senator from Cambria, Mr. Stineman. He has evidently thought over it over night and this morning he comes in and suggests continuance and postponement on the ground of the senatorial courtesy due himself. I desire to call attention of the Senate to the fact that this is not Senator Powell's bill. This is a House bill, passed the House and introduced in that body by Mr. Rockwell. This is not a matter of whether or not the Senate is extending senatorial courtesy to the gentleman from Allegheny, but it is action of the Senate on a House bill and we have never established the precedent of senatorial courtesy on the passage of a House bill, especially when the Senator who may be interested in the subject is present in the Senate at the time that the bill come up in its regular order, and if the Senator from Allegheny will be consistent with his statement made on the floor of the Senate last night, he will not ask in good faith that this Senate postponed action on this bill this morning.

Mr. NULTY. Mr. President, I want to add my word of approval here for the purpose of postponing this bill for the present. It is simply asked for and is due the absent members of this Senate, and I trust the absent members of this Senate will be considered and the bill postponed for the present.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, I want to say one word. If the Senator will look at the pink calendar, at Senate Bill 88, they will find introduced on January 28, by Mr. Powell, a joint resolution proposing an amendment to Section 1, Article 8, of the Constitution, which was referred to the Committee on Judiciary General, which is this identical bill.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Powell, permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, with pleasure.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, I want to ask if the Senator from Allegheny was interested in the bill when it was in the committee, why he did not ask for a favorable recommendation, in order that his resolution might have come into the Senate and gone through as his measure.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, the only reason I did not was because I did not want to have two bills crossing themselves and wanted to save the Senators the time.

Mr. McILHENNY. Mr. President, I would like to state that any vote I may cast on this motion shall not be construed in any way to be on the merits of the question neither by implication or otherwise.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. POWELL and Mr. NULTY and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—21.

Alexander,	Hilton,	Martin,	Morgan,
DeWitt,	Hoke,	McIlhenny,	Nulty,

Pending the announcement of the vote.

Mr. HUFFMAN. Mr. President, at a time like this I do not feel that a question as important as this should be squeezed out and not give these people an opportunity to poll their vote, and I would like to have the privilege of changing my vote to the affirmative.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, I object.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Dauphin permit himself to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. There is nothing in order during the calling of the roll.

Mr. HERBST. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. HERBST. Mr. President, my point of order is that there is nothing in order but the announcement of the vote.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair decides the point of order well taken.

The PRESIDENT. On this motion the ayes are 21 and the nays are 21. The Senate being equally divided, under the provisions of Article four, Section four, of the Constitution the President is entitled to a vote. The Clerk will record the President as voting "aye", and the question, together with the further consideration of the bill, will be postponed for the present.

Agreeably to order,

An Act relating to the classification of school districts and the time for levying school tax in school districts of the second class

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. President, I regret that I find it necessary to oppose a bill relating to our school system, and the bill, if passed, will utterly destroy the school system, the splendid system we now have, in the City of Pittsburgh, as it throws us from one district into another. In other words from a first to a second class district. Now the impression has been given out here by those who are advocating this bill, and from Pittsburgh I find that there are about two people, that the whole purpose of this bill was to provide an elective instead of an appointive board. As we are aware, some six years ago there was a commission appointed composed of the most able and expert educators in the State of Pennsylvania. They made a report, and a bill was introduced in the session of 1909 which failed of passage, and in 1911, after continuing their work, they reported a measure which was in response to the demand representing the best thought of the people, not only of Pittsburgh but of Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania Legislature enacted that code, providing a system of school government adapted to existing needs and providing for the different classes of school districts, modes of school administration conformable to their extent and their requirements. The necessity for the enactment of this code was undisputable inasmuch as previously the schools of the Commonwealth had been administered under patchwork legislation, enacted at various times, lacking homogeneity, and, for the most part, failing to meet the requirements of the present generation.

Nowhere was the need of the reform thus afforded more keenly felt than in Pittsburgh, where the control of the schools in many instances led to abuses of the grossest kind. The magnitude of those abuses has been amply demonstrated since the new Board of Education has had to perform the duty of uncovering them and making atonement. The investigations and audits made by that body have revealed mismanagement so vicious as to leave no alternative but the prosecution in the Courts of those responsible for it.

Is it any wonder that under such government the schools of Pittsburgh should have been pillaged and otherwise victimized? Is it any wonder that to get away from such infamies the good citizens of Pittsburgh should have approached the Legislature two years ago and begged that body to relieve their schools from the curse of political domination and to provide instead a system of school government conducted by men and women of known honesty and fitness? It was a godsend to the City of Pittsburgh that this prayer was granted.

The State Legislature conferred upon the judges of the Allegheny County courts the right of choosing the Board of Education for the city of Pittsburgh.

Has its confidence in the wisdom of those judges been justified?

I answer Yes.

I answer—and the testimony of nearly every man and woman in Pittsburgh who is capable of bearing honest witness in this matter will confirm my words—that in making up our Board of Education, our judges have given to us an administrative body which, in character, in capacity and in fidelity to the trust committed to it, stands upon the very highest plane and compels the respect and the admiration of the community to which it renders service.

The work of that Board speaks for itself. In a very short time it has brought order out of chaos. It has repaired the mischief wrought by generations of disorderlies and incompetents. It has established a system of school management that is logical, finances of the school are not involved because of negligence and dishonestly. It has weeded out the unfit element among the teachers; and broadened the opportunities of the fit. It has made provision for school buildings well-equipped, adequate to their purpose and convenient of location. It has brought in up-to-date methods. It has, in short, replaced a rotten system with a sound one and placed the new structure on a foundation so substantial that no power can shake it unless it be the power of hostile legislation.

That such legislation should be sought seems, under the circumstances, anomalous and unthinkable. Yet here we have a proposed enactment, the purpose of which is not only to undo the good which has been accomplished for our schools under the new code, but actually to punish us for accomplishing it by reducing the Pittsburgh school district to a lower grade and depriving it of the means of carrying on the work of progress in conformity with the needs of our half-million of people and our 78,000 school children.

This, sir, is distinctly a penal enactment and it is doubly penal inasmuch as it is designed at once to punish Pittsburgh for the offense of establishing a decent school system and to make the Legislature of this Commonwealth try, convict and sentence itself on the charge of having enacted reform legislation that is a failure.

If this legislation should go through; if Pittsburgh is to be penalized and the Legislature is to stultify itself, the misfortune will be felt alike by city and Commonwealth, and the reproach formerly cast on the Pennsylvania school system, ruined by rotten politics and incompetency, will be renewed and intensified.

The advocates of this bill endeavor to make one believe that the purpose of this bill is merely to substitute an elective for an appointive Board of Education. Were this true then the matter would be easy of adjustment, and I am of the opinion that many members of the Senate are of the opinion that only the question of election or appointment are involved, and in order that the minds of the Senators may be clear concerning this question, I desire to call their attention to a few points, making comparison between the first and second class school districts.

Some reasons why this bill should not pass:

The following is a brief discussion of the school code, especially as to the distinctions between school management in first and second class districts. The sections discussed are given by numbers so that they can be referred to in connection with this statement.

Section 103. Second class districts include cities with the population between 30,000 and 500,000. This would give Pittsburgh a school management fitted especially for small cities instead of a large metropolitan district.

Section 203. In school districts of the second class the board is composed of nine members elected at large instead of fifteen directors appointed by the judges of the Common Pleas court.

Sections 214-15. In second calss districts the board of directors fill vacancies. In first class districts such vacancies are filled by the court.

Section 301. The school year of first class districts begins January first, while for all second class districts it begins the first Monday of July. This difference will be discussed at length later.

Section 303. In first class districts the city treasurer is made the treasurer of the school board. In second class districts the directors select annually by election any treasurer they desire, so long as he is not a member of the board.

Section 312. In first class districts the board may delegate any other member or officer beside the president to approve school orders or warrants. In second class districts this duty must be preformed by the president himself, no matter how much work or time it might require in a large city.

Section 324. In first class districts no school orders can be paid unless approved by the school controller. Now, mark you, that controller in one instance is an official elected by the people, and no orders are paid unless approved by him. In second class districts this safeguard is removed as there is no school controller.

Section 325. In districts of the first class the treasurer is required to submit a finacial report monthly to the controller. This additional check is lost in second class districts for there is no controller.

Section 329. In districts of the second class a maximum compensation for the treasurer is fixed, not to exceed two per centum of the amuont of funds paid out on school orders. The fact that such compensation is suggested in the act would likely influence the board to fix the treasurer's compensation on a fee basis. In Pittsburgh, with annual expenditures amounting to upwards of $5,000,000, the commission could be as high as $100,000.

Section 510. Banks, acting as depositories are required in first class districts to make a financial report monthly to the controller as well as to the treasurer and directors. In second class districts, there being no controller, this additional safeguard is lost.

Article 5. Read carefully Sections 523 to 535 for first class districts and Sections 536 to 566 for second class districts to get comparisons of financial and tax methods. A number of changes are radical.

Section 523. The school year for the first class districts begins in January, while in section 536, the school year of second class districts begins in July. Section 524. The tax levy for first class districts is made not later than the first Monday of December and in section 537, for the second class districts, taxes are levied and assessed in April or May. This would bring about endless confusion and expense in the levy and collection of taxes. It would likely mean a second levy and collection of taxes for school purposes. In Pittsburgh both city and school taxes fall due the first of March but are payable during the months of March, April and May, after which time there is imposed a penalty of three per cent. with one-half per cent. for each additional month. In third class cities for which second class school distrits are adapted city taxes do not fall due until June and school taxes until July. As the school code with reference to second class school districts, section 537, states plainly that taxes are to be levied and assessed in April or May, it is evident that a special assessment would have to be made and a separate time set apart later for the collection of these revenues. If the school tax were assessed in April, as is possible under the act, a notice sent out immediately then would permit the taxpayer to pay his city and school taxes at the same time during the month of May. However, it would be an incentive for every large taxpayer to delay payment of his city taxes until his statement of school taxes had been received. As a result if the notice of school assessment were received late there would be a large percentage of delinquents in city taxes. In addition, it would undoubtedly cause a tremendous rush at the office of the collector during the month of May, so that the work could scarcely be handled. This, of course, is based on the supposition that school taxes would be levied in April, the first month permissible in second class districts. However, if the levy were delayed until May it would then be impossible for the taxpayer to settle his obligations with the city and the school district at the same time. This, as can readily be seen, would be a severe hardship upon the taxpayers of Pittsburgh. The fact that the school year at present begins in January and under the other system begins in July would likely leave the city of Pittsburgh for six months without any moneys or appropriations to maintain the schools. Under the code, it is my guess, that it would be impossible for the board to borrow enough money to carry it over the six months. The code permits a board to make temporary loans in addition to bonds of two-tenths of one per cent. Under present valuations this would amount to about $1,536,000 in Pittsburgh. For six months school operation practically twice that amount is required. It is evident therefore that it would be necessary to run the schools either on half time for six months or to close them entirely three months. You can take your choice.

Section 529. In first class districts the treasurer or collector of taxes must report such collection each month to the controller. In second class districts this safeguard is lost.

Section 537. Second class districts are permitted to levy a tax not exceeding 20 mills which would permit a total levy in Pittsburgh, based on the present valuation, of nearly $15,000,000. Now, we do not pretend to say that any school board would levy such an amount but it is possible for them to do so under this second class district act.

Section 538. In second class districts "the school taxes shall be levied and assessed on the real estate and personal property therein," while in first class districts (Section 525), "school taxes shall be levied and assessed upon the same property as that upon which the municipal taxes of the municipality comprising such school district of the first class are levied and assessed." I find that in McKeesport, a city of the third class operating under second class school district provisions, that the board has been advised that it is required to collect and assess a tax under section 538 on personal property. While the city, as in Pittsburgh, does not assess personal property, an effort has been made to do so for school purposes in McKeesport. A few mules and horses were assessed, but it was found that they had died when the time came to collect the tax. The board, however, was advised that it must at least collect, under section 542, not less than one dollar as an occupation tax, Such an attempt has been made with little success as will be shown later.

Section 539. For second class districts the city clerk or other official is required to furnish each school district the certified duplicate of the last adjusted valuation on all real estate, personal property and occupations. In Pittsburgh neither the personal property nor occupation valuations are available or could be gotten except by special investigation for the purpose.

Section 542. "Each male resident or inhabitant over twenty-one years of age" in second class districts is required to pay an occupation tax of at least one dollar, which under section 537 must be collected. It is ridiculous to imagine that this tax could be levied or collected in Pittsburgh. It would mean that this tax instead of being paid by non-property holders, as is contemplated under the act, would be collected only from the property holders who are to-day paying all the taxes they can bear. In McKeesport, a city with not more than 15,000 taxables, an effort has been made to collect this occupation tax. It was found almost impossible to reach a majority of the non-property holders and especially the foreign residents. Many of them rather than pay a tax changed their names and sometimes got new jobs in order to hide their identity. I am told by the school authorities in McKeesport that this occupation tax, just as I supposed, is collected chiefly from the citizens now paying directly the entire cost of government through a property tax. It has added the additional load of one dollar to his tax burdens.

Section 531. In second class districts notice of the tax levied must be sent by mail to every taxable, which expense is paid by the district. This expense and effort would be considerable with probably 200,000 taxables.

Section 543 requires each male resident or inhabitant in second class districts to be assessed with an occupation tax. Under Sections 547 to 552 the board could create an office of school tax collector or district collectors with a large staff of assistants at an enormous expense to the district.

Section 553. The collectors in districts of the second class are required to turn over to the treasurer money collected only monthly, which gives them personal use of large sums.

Section 557. In second class districts in case of resident's neglect to pay occupation tax, this can be collected from the employer. Such procedure in Pittsburgh would mean endless confusion and trouble for our large manufacturing concerns.

Section 615. No buildings can be constructed or reconstructed by the local board in second class districts without the consent of the State Board of Education.

Section 622. First class districts are safeguarded by fire proof construction of buildings two stories high, while in second class districts the building to require fire proof construction must be more than two stories high.

Section 702. Districts of the second class are not permitted to change any text books oftener than once in five years.

Section 1153. There seems to be no provision in districts of second class to continue in office to the end of the term former superintendents. Section 1307. In the school districts of the second class the district superintendent has the power by endorsing to make valid a professional certificate of a teacher which has been issued by another school district. This gives the superintendent too much authority and might tend to again lower the standard of the teachers in Pittsburgh as under the old system.

Section 1707. For first class districts physical training shall be carried on as part of the regular course of study. In other districts the requirements are not so rigid.

Section 2201 to 2233. Districts of the first class have broad powers placed in the board of education which are not given to districts of the second class. There is also established a school controller necessary for a city the size of Pittsburgh, but not found in second class districts.

Section 2203. Provides school visitors for cities of the first class. Districts of the second class have no school visitors.

Section 2209. The school controller is established and his duties outlined. In second class districts there being no school controller, two auditors are appointed by the courts (section 2603) to audit accounts beginning in the month of July. This means simply an annual audit at the end of the school year. It would be impossible under the act to have any careful or thorogh audit made because by section 2623 the auditor's compensation is limited to $5.00 a day. Any discussion as to the type of auditors who could be hired at this rate is unnecessary.

Section 2223. Districts of the first class are given a superintendent of buildings and a superintendent of supplies, which districts of the second class do not have. All the superintendents of buildings in the districts of the first class under section 2230, must be an engineer or architect and under section 2231 he is given broad duties.

Section 2224. Cities of the first class are given associate and district superintendents. I am not certain that cities of the second class have the same officers with the same powers and duties.

Section 2225. In districts of the first class the board of public education is given power to fix absolutely the qualifications of all principals and teachers. In cities of the second class such qualifications are fixed rigidly by the code and cannot be changed by the local board. Such districts are forced to accept certain teacher's certificates issued by schools in other districts. This is not required in Pittsburgh where the standard has been placed very high.

Section 2819. It is here provided that union prices of labor must be paid on all contracts in first class districts. I do not find that it applies to second class districts.

These statements will, I believe, convince you that in this bill the election of the Board of Education is a subterfuge, used only for the purpose of hoodwinking this body, and should the bill be enacted into a law then our splendid educational system will have been destroyed.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. President, I will try to be a little briefer than the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Hunter. The Senator is quite right when he says that the meat of this proposition is whether or not the school board of the City of Pittsburgh shall be elected by the people. That is the intent and purpose of this bill. He says that the result of this bill will be that we will have nine school directors elected by the people instead of fifteen appointed by the court of common pleas. That is true. I am for the bill for that reason and for the very reason stated by the Senator in his speech, all of which are proper reasons for the support of this bill by every Senator on this floor. We are running the City of Pittsburgh by nine councilmen elected by the people. That act of Assembly was passed by the Legislature two years ago. I am for the bill for the reason that if nine councilmen can run all the various departments of the city government, certainly nine men elected by the people can run the school system of the City of Pittsburgh. I am for the bill for the reason that the courts of common pleas have no business in the school business. Judges are the last people that ought to be asked to pass upon the appointment of school directors or to have anything to do with the schools, with the exception possibly of a law school. Judges may be all right in having something to do with the faculty of a law school, but they know no more about the common schools, no, not half so much, as to the common schools, as the man who is on the street, and whose children go to the schools and whose daughter possibly is teaching in the schools. There is only one question before the Senate, and that is whether the City of Pittsburgh shall under this bill have the right to elect its own school directors. The board of school directors of the City of Pittsburgh at present assess about four million dollars' worth of taxes each year and provides for its expenditure, and if this Senate in this year of 1913, and in this progressive age, is going to say that the people of the City of Pittsburgh shall be taxed four millions of dollars per year by an appointive board then I misinterpret the meaning of this Senate and the intention of the Senators here upon this floor. The people have the right to elect the men who tax them and have had it since the foundation of this government. Our whole country is founded upon the principle that taxation without representation is a vicious principle, and this is a vicious principle. It is vicious to have the court appoint fifteen men to assess four million of dollars upon the citizens of Pittsburgh and spend it as they see fit thereafter. I will admit that the present board of directors of the City of Pittsburgh are opposed to this bill. I will admit that many political influences are opposed to this bill. The brother of one of the United States Senators is the president of this board. The people of the City of Pittsburgh are for this bill. The people of the City of Pittsburgh believe that they have a right to elect their school directors, and they believe that this Senate is a progressive enough body, and is a fair enough body, to give them that right, that they shall have the right to say at the ballot box who shall assess their taxes and that they have the right to call these men to account if that assessment is illegal.

That is the principle upon which this bill is founded, and we can give only one answer to the City of Pittsburgh to the question which they put before us, "Shall we have the right to elect our school directors? Shall we have the right to say at the ballot box who shall assess four millions of dollars of taxes upon us each year, and who shall spend that money?" The Senator from Allegheny, if he has been listening to the views of his own constituents, well knows that the people of his district, the plain people who cast the votes and pay the taxes, when everything else is said or done, are for this bill. I claim the time of the Senate for just a minute.

"We, Messrs. Buechler, Haering, Dorsch, Melvin, Schondelmeyer, Crossman, Davis, Stewart, Ross, Fritsch, Schoenerger and Rea wired you Forty-second Senatorial District is for elective board. Second class citizenship better than first class disfranchisement."

Could anybody put this whole question in better words than that? "Second class citizenship is better than first class disfranchisement." I am not for government by the courts. I am a member of the bar of Allegheny County and nobody has a higher respect for the judiciary than I have, but I fear when you bring the judges into politics and ask them to appoint the school directors of the City of Pittsburgh and ask them to appoint a board that has the right to assess and levy the taxes you are besmirching the courts of Allegheny County, and for two main reasons I am heartily in favor of this bill. Keep the courts out of politics and let the courts decide what is their duty to decide. Do not make them an appointive board. You might as well provide that the court of Dauphin County shall have the right to appoint the Senator from the district. What is the difference? You might as well provide that the common pleas court of Dauphin County should appoint the assessors of taxes and the collectors of taxes and the controller and all the rest of the officers. Are we to come down to government purely by courts, or are we to have a government by the people who pay the taxes?

Mr. JARRETT. Mr. President, I do not come from the City of Pittsburgh and I have no interest at all in this bill; I come from one of the rural counties, but as we recall the judges of the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania, of the Superior Court of the State of Pennsylvania, the Governor, members of the legislature, county commissioners and all these officers are elected by the people, and being an advocate of popular government, I do not see how I can vote against this bill. I claim that by depriving the people of the City of Pittsburgh of the right to decide who shall be their school directors at a popular election, is depriving them, you might say, of the right of liberty, and therefore, Mr. President, I will cast my vote in favor of this measure.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. President, I believe that the members of this body will now agree with me that my remarks are absolutely correct. You have not heard a single word except that concerning what I claim to be a subterfuge in this case and that is the electice or appointive principle, and as I said before, I am not objecting to that feature. Let the men who are so anxious to have the board elected by the people, sit and await the coming of the Stein bill, which is now on third reading in the House and which will no doubt pass that body and be messaged over to the Senate. That bill affects the very thing desired or as indicated by the Senator from Allegheny and the Senator from Mercer, namely, the election of these boards of education, and does not in any other particular destroy the school system of the City of Pittsburgh. So that I contend that inasmuch as they do not combat any other feature, possibly two dozen of which I referred to, all they are after is to strike down this school code, and I sincerely trust they will fail in their efforts

Section 3 That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WILLIAM F. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Humes, on this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Humes, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. WILLIAM F. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know if this bill should become a law, whether it would not work a hardship to any one going to the State Department to get information?

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the inquiry of the gentleman, I would say that this bill is patterned after the Federal Statute, covering the same question. There is a practice in this State to-day by which attorneys, employed in various departments of the State Government, under the pay of the State, go into the Auditor General's office as attorney for corporations of this State and render service in an effort to keep down the corporation taxes that the State is undertaking to collect. I believe that no man can serve two masters and that when a man is in the employ of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, his time and efforts belong to the Commonwealth. I believe that he has no right to go into the Auditor General's office for the purpose of assisting a corporation to escape its share of taxation. That is the abuse that this bill is aimed at and it will accomplish that and without imposing a hardship on any man. I would urge every member of the House who is opposed to this iniquity and this abuse that has been going on in the State for years, to vote for this bill.

Mr. WILLIAM F. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. WILLIAM F. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, I want to know if it would not be a disadvantage when a man comes here not learned in the law for information at the Auditors' Generals office, or in order to get what he wants, if he would not have to hire an attorney to come here in his behalf.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, positively no. The getting of information and the getting of facts in the offices of the different departments does not involve the practice of law and this bill simply prohibits men from appearing as professional men for private clients while receiving salary from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for services. He has no right to keep information from any one appearing at the department for himself or any one else and he has no right to practice law or to get information for a friend or neighbor or a corporation and what is in involved is not practice of the law in any sense of the word in the getting of information at the office of the State Department.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Crawford.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Crawford permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, I notice that the bill refers to "on or under any of the boards or commissions of the State Government". Does that extend, for instance, to members of the many commissions which have been appointed by the House, for instance, members of the commission for the revision of the corporation and revenue laws, the Chestnut Tree Blight Commission or the many other commissions appointed by the House? I merely wish this for the information of the House.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, it applies to the member of no commission unless he is a salaried employee of the commission, or ordinarily any salaried position. It applies simply to salaried officers of the State Government, and not to the honorary commissioners, of which we have so many.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Mr. GANS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Bill No. 210, file folio 2005, on page 52 of the calendar, bills on third reading postponed for the present.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 210, as follows:

An Act to amend title and sections three and four and five and six and nine and eleven of an act entitled "An Act relating to the right to practice medicine and surgery in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and providing a Bureau of Medical Education and Licensure as a bureau of the Department of Public Instruction and means and methods whereby the right to practice medicine and surgery and any of its minor branches may be obtained and exemptions therefrom and providing for an appropriation to carry out the provisions of said act and providing for revocation and suspension of licenses given by said bureau and providing penalties for violation thereof and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith" approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have an explanation of this bill.

Mr. GANS. Mr. Speaker, I would refer you to Mr. Newbaker.

Mr. NEWBAKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill is an amendment to an act establishing a bureau of Medical Education and Licensure, and for the following reasons should pass: First, The Medical Schools of Pennsylvania have all adopted higher educational qualifications, both for entrance into the Medical School and to terminate medical course. The amendment for this advance is in order that the State may protect its own schools from loss of students by their being enticed into other States by low grade schools and then come back into Pennsylvania through the State examination. Second, At present written examinations only are given. The Bureau of Education wishes in justice to the applicant to be able to give pracitcal examination at the bedside. Third, At present the time of examination is inconvenient to all the schools. The Bureau wishes therefore to use its discretion as to time. Fourth, At present if another State declares any given school in its own State is of the first grade, Pennsylvania must accept this dictum. The Bureau wishes to amend the bill so that Pennsylvania shall pass on this point for herself. Fifth, All medical schools in Pennsylvania have been consulted in regard to these amendments and are without exception in favor of them. Sixth, All State Societies have been consulted through their Legislative Committees. Seventh, The Bureau of Medical Education, composed of members of all schools, are unanimously in favor of them.

And, further, this furnishes its own revenue and costs the State nothing. All unused balance goes into the State Treasury. The increase asked for is for the purpose of establishing practical examinations instead of written. They consist of examinations at the bedside and in laboratories. It means the renting of laboratories and employing of assistants, and demonstrates in a practical way the knowledge of the applicant. Between 500 and 600 applicants present themselves annually and are examined over a course lasting two to three days. This is in the interest of furthering the standing of the medical profession in Pennsylvania and is asked for practically by all the schools in the State.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gans, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GANS. I introduced this bill by request.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that the effect of this bill is to increase in effect the course of one studying to become a doctor from four years to five years. It is also my understanding that this bill is a companion piece to the bill that we had up for consideration a few weeks ago, with reference to the practice of midwifery. My attention was called at that time, by the father of that bill, or rather by the author of it, that the purpose in mind in securing the passage of that bill was to make it possible to extend the course of one studying to become a doctor from four years to five, and you will notice that, under the amendment to the fourth section of this bill, an additional year is required before a young man can enter upon the practice of medicine. I think, in light of the fact that the other schools of medicine are putting men into the field in a year or two years in medicine, perhaps osteopathy or the other allied professions, that it is not fair to the medical profession, nor to the people who believe in the old schools of medicine, to discourage students from entering into that particular line of the practice. I think that the requirements at present are plenty stringent. I have talked with a dozen doctors about this bill since it has been up, and they are all of the opinion that the present requirements are sufficient, and it is not fair to the young man who wants to enter upon the practice of medicine to pass this bill and to extend the time of study for another year.

Mr. NEWBAKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill does not increase the requirements at all. The requirements are already established under the law as it exists, and as far as the examinations of all these subsidiary so-called schools of medicine are concerned, they are placed under the operation of this law under the examination given by this Board and can all appear before it and all schools are subject to the same examination and the same requirements. This additional year merely extends the period required which the student must pass as an interne in a hospital before coming up for examination, thereby better qualifying him before beginning practice on the public. This bill is in the interest of the public and makes no discrimination. The bill referred to by the gentleman from Crawford is not germane to this question at all. It is a very small matter. I hope that this bill will pass because it will protect the legislation enacted at the last session, 1911. The additional year, of course, costs nothing except it makes the student enter upon his practice better qualified by having one year's experience as an interne in a hospital, and all old practitioners know something of that matter, because when I entered practice it was only necessary to read medicine with an old practitioner two years and attend sessions for two winters, when a man became a full fledged doctor. This has been greatly changed as to requirements until at the present time when a young man enters the practice of medicine the public knows that he is qualified to undertake the profession which he proposes to practice.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Montour.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. NEWBAKER. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman, is it not a fact that under this bill the medical students who are now undergoing their course would be delayed one additional year before they could become practicing physicians if this bill should become a law?

Mr. NEWBAKER. Mr. Speaker, that additional year is a great advantage to that student and does not cost him anything under the provisions of this bill, as he becomes an interne in the hospital, and his expenses are paid and he acquires a great deal of information which will be of greater value to him than the previous four years course in the medical school. He will then get practical knowledge and will be able to diagnose cases as he sees them. He does not have to practice on the public a while before he knows what he meets in general practice. He will not be in the position of that eminent oculist in Paris who was complimented on his great skill as an oculist. He acknowledged that he acquired a great deal of knowledge in the course of his practice, but he said he had spoiled a whole hatful of eyes before he learned how to operate. We want to obviate that in the case of the young man who enters the practice of medicine. This bill is designed for that purpose and I hope the bill will pass.

Mr. W. A. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Crawford does not apparently understand the purpose of this bill. The colleges of Pennsylvania have already accepted certain standards of education—all of them. This bill has absolutely nothing to do with that. It merely provides for the enforcement of that provision. Every college in the State of Pennsylvania has it today, outside of the University of Pennsylvania which has still a higher standard than what the other colleges have provided for. This bill merely protects the colleges from having people of lesser knowledge coming from other states and coming in here and taking out State Board examination. As I have said, the colleges already have accepted or have fixed this standard of education. This bill has nothing to do with that; it merely protects our colleges from inferior classes of schools in other States.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. W. A. BLAIR. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, in as much as the purpose of the bill, as the gentleman says, may be meritorious, I would like to inquire as to whether or not the effect of the bill will not be that the students in the medical colleges of Pennsylvania who could become practicing physicians after four years, would not under this bill have to wait for five years before they could become practicing physicians.

Mr. W. A. BLAIR. They will have to take one year as an interne in a medical college or hospital of practical work.

Mr. HUMES. That is in addition to the four years?

Mr. W. A. BLAIR. That is absolutely essential for graduates of medical schools.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker there seems to be some misunderstanding on this bill, especially with reference to the gentleman from Crawford, who is trying to mislead this House. There is no question at all about the merit of this bill. It is a high standard that has been accepted now by the various medical schools of our State and as the genleman from Cambria has informed you, this is a permission to make that qualification a standard by this body. Now any man who has ever gone to a medical school or visited one, and especially to-day, understands that medical research has become such a great question in the study that the boy going to school is deprived of practical knowledge which he in prior years has ascertained in his study. Now this extra year is not a hardship on the boy. He only goes to school four years, but after his four years are completed and he has taken his examination before the State Board, he applies then to the Hospital and they provide a hospital for him one year's practical work, and gentlemen, I believe that you will agree with me that a man who is deprived in the school of that practical knowledge must surely get it some way and this is the only way in which the Medical Board has provided for his practical education. Therefore, gentlemen, I ask you to kindly give this bill favorable consideration and vote for its passage.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The title was read and agreed to as follows:

An Act regulating the sale or distribution of vinous spirituous malt or brewed liquors by any club society or organization formed for certain purposes and imposing penalties for violation of this act

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on second reading as amended?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, there seems to be a strong disposition to defeat this bill on second reading. We might as well meet the issue now. It gives me great pleasure for once in this session to find myself in entire harmony with our Governor. This is the bill which was recommended in his message. This is the bill which was drafted under his direction and was introduced by me instead of the bill which had been drawn up by other officers in order that it might be understood that there was no desire to get any individual credit and that there was no desire to quibble or haggle about details but a sincere desire to have this thing done and to have it done right. There have been certain amendments placed in this bill by the committee, the general intent of which was to reduce the license fee oriignally proposed to a fee which is merely nominal. being on the average of about fifty cents per member per year, because there is no proposition in this bill to make it impossible for clubs to get a license. Neither is it the desire of this bill to raise revenue, but it is simply to put the whole dispensing of liquor of this Commonwealth under one single set of regulations, so there may be no discrimination. It has always been a subject of complaint against the Brooks High License Law that the poor man's saloon was taxed heavily, while the rich man could go to his club and get liquor on Sunday or on election day or on any other day and pay no license for it whatsoever. Now there is no doubt about it but that in the past there has been unfair discrimination against the man who did not join a club or who was not able to support one. That is one of the reasons why this discrimination should be removed and why the clubs should be placed under restrictions similar to the saloons. There is a great reason why this measure should become a law. That is the primary purpose of the bill to bring the dispensation of liquor by clubs under court regulation. As it is now, the club license is a great gap in the system of statutory regulation of liquor sales, and that is one of the reasons why clubs even more than saloons, should be under regulations because there are of a private nature and not public, and are not subjected to the same kind of police supervision and observation as is the ordinary saloon. The keeper of an ordinary saloon has a considerable sum of money invested in his business, and it is necessary for him to live up strictly to all rules and regulations in order that he may preserve his license, and thereby becomes a very definite measure of protection to the body politic in the licensing of saloons which does not now exist in the dispensation of liquor in clubs. It is possible for a man addicted to the use of liquor to enter his club on Saturday night and all Saturday night, and all day Sunday and all Sunday night he may be constantly supplied with liquor, at least he has the opportunity to do so, and he is not subject to police regulation which would be the case in a saloon. Now, it is peculiarly difficult to prevent a large number of clubs—remember I do not say all of them, but it is peculiarly difficult to prevent a great many clubs from degenerating into merely liquor dispensing organizations. It matters not with what bona fide intentions the clubs may have been originally organized or chartered, there is a constant temptation since liquor can be dispensed under this charter, if people desire to get liquor on Sundays. election days, or other times, to turn that club into a liquor dispensing organization, even if the club was organized for entirely bona fide reasons in the first place. There are regions in this State where it has been judicially determined by the Court that no licenses were necessary for the accommodation of the public, and in these regions there is a tremendous opportunity and a tremendous temptation to organize clubs in those districts for the mere purpose of evading the order of the Court in refusing to grant licenses. In other words, just as far as the sentiment of the community becomes available for the restriction of the sale of liquor, just so far then the temptation increases to organize clubs, which if it is not their sole purpose, it is at least a large purpose for the dispensation of liquor.

Our laws on the sbject on the control of the liquor bills never will become complete until the method of dispensing liquor for money shall be under State regulation and we ought not to allow chartered clubs to set themselves up as special organizations and not subject to all methods for the selling of liquor. They all ought to be alike under the rules of the Quarter Sessions Court, and be treated alike. For this reason, I think we ought to have here the same measure of regulation. It is not a prohibition measure; it is not a local option measure; it is simply a slight enlargement of our present Brook's License Law intended to make the subject uniform and to stop up the holes of evasion. It is a measure which ought not be opposed by and bona fide club. They can afford to pay a nominal license fee. They can afford to do that. They can afford to pay this license. I can see no reason why any club should object to this measure. I received no protests from the large Social Clubs.

I have received pleading letters from people whose husbands and brothers have been lured into speakeasies under the disguise of clubs, to push this measure and to help this bill so there may be a protection against people being lured into clubs and other places where liquor is sold under the disguise of clubs.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, I am extremely sorry that the House is harangued with oratory of this kind and I trust that in this little Legislative Club of ours, you will enjoy your cigars while we are debating this subject on the question of its merits. It becomes necessary in questions of this great importance that both friends and enemies of a bill of this kind should debate the mbatter fully so that the members of this House who have not had time to study the merits or demerits may know at this time just what is the purpose and intention of the proposed measure and the passage of this bill. That is the object of the debate. It comes about, Mr. Speaker, that in politics and in religion and in social organizations, that clubs and societies must be formed. From the earliest days of American Politics, we have had political clubs, from the days of the Church, we have had Epworth League and those orders that are formulating and promulgating those principles for which the several societies stand. So, also, there are other orders like the social clubs, which are also formed for their special purpose. It seems to me that it would be laughed to scorn to submit the idea of a political club having for its object the furtherance of religion. We also would laugh to scorn, the religious club having any other object in view, except that for which they are organized, yet, we are called upon to-day in this bill to call it a social side of the problem in Pennsylvania in a most peculiar manner. If the history of the formations of nearly all of the clubs is thoroughly gone into, you will readily see that they are the corner-stones of Society, founded entirely upon authority and a good many of the large clubs such as the Elks and those other big orders like the German-American Alliance and lots of the other orders. Take for instance the Masonic order; they have no direct club but they have clubs to which they belong. They go quietly about their work and desires. It has been argued with some energy that the purpose will be or is to regulate the rich man's club and that that poor man has his club in a saloon. I take issue with that phase of this arguement. I say this bill should be defeated for the very reason that the rich man of the Commonwealth is entitled to his social privilege. I would like to sepak about the number of thousands and millions of dollars tied up in clubs or saloons of this Commonwealth. Let me call your attention to the fact that to-day there is invested several hundred million dollars in clubs that don't mean that all of these are of the rich man's clubs. The amount of money which is invested covers association and societies like those known as Elks, including the German-American Alliance and such orders as these which run down through the history of social society in this State. The good the clubs accomplish among their members in extending the soothing hand of sympathy to the widow in her time of sickness and carrying on this work of benevolence among the members far outstrips, in my mind, any evils, if there are any evils, that are brought about by a sideboard, if such evils exist. Think of an order in a town of the size of Harrisburg, for instance, or York getting up one single parade resulting in an amount of two thousand dollars, turning the same over quietly to charity at Chirstmas time. Where can you find any other institution that will do that? Clubs have done this and assisted in charitable institutions for the last twenty years more than any other one institution. They are back of every charitable movement and everything that helps for chairty and the whole argument comes down to the point that it is the rich man and the man given over to habitual drunkenness who come into these wealthy clubs and stays there to be taken away from police power. What are you going to do with the poor man who has his little club? I fail to see where this argument comes in. I have visited many clubs and I belong to a good many and have never seen any drunkenness in any club. It seems to me that everybody in the club is sober and as a rule drunkenness is the exception. It is argued and perhaps will be by the friends of this law that the Governor in his wisdom saw fit to recommend to the General Assembly of this Commonwealth the passage of a Club License Bill. I cannot in my mind's eye, contemplate a Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in his wisdom, recommending out to the floor of this House a bill so drastic in its purpose and so narrow in its principle. If the sponsor of this bill had in mind the utter extermination of the club instead of its regulation he most admirably suceeded in drawing the bill. The bill does not tend to regulate. We are simply coming out on a financial license basis. There is not a club in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, if you will take the trouble to interview them or their club officers or their members, who would refuse to pay into the Treasury the license demanded, if they want this to come. That is not the argument against this bill. Allow me to explain to you for you information some of the glaring defects in the drawing of this measure. In the first place, they move the argument on the license proposition and we come down to this proposition; who is back of the bill and what assurance do the clubs have of the judicial power and what does it amount to? The matter is too far in the hands of the Judiciary to take advantage of. We maintain that the longer we keep out of the hands of the Judiciary of this Commonwealth with the liquor question in any way, the better it will be. The corrupt political machines will use this as a club for selfish purposes and I maintain that the longer we keep it out of the hands of the Judiciary of this Commonwealth, the liquor question need not either suffer or be abused. The sooner we make a house-cleaning of the political corruption in this State, the better it will be. I believe also that a club which purports in advance to make a contract with a court or with any one who is designated to take out a license will have to fall short. I believe the bill in its inception is unconstitutional

Imagine a club or any man to apply for a license, designate John Smith to go to court and apply for a license and filing, for violation of any kind, an indemnity bond and be responsible for all the ills under his direction or control or under the application which is made and the violation of any of the conditions under any judiciary grounds whatever or the license violated by a servant or a steward or anybody in the Club or any one not even in the jurisdiction. He must go into court and shoulder this penalty. For that reason, I say that if this bill is passed, and becomes a law, it will entirely legislate out of our society the clubs of Pennsylvania. It seems to me it is a delicate position perhaps to call up a bill which was recommended in the Governor's Message but I have no knowledge, Mr. Speaker, other than the word of my friend, Mr. S. B. Scott, whom I have respected in all matters, that his bill emanated in its original form from His Excellency, Governor Tener, Yet, if I were convinced that Governor Tener recommended this bill out as it now stands on the calendar or as it stands in his message, notwithstanding the fact that I have as much respect as any citizen of Pennsylvania for the wisdom of our Executive Officer, yet I must take issue at this time against this bill; notwithstanding the fact, that it was given out from the Executive Chamber. I question that this bill in its present form came from that department. There have been other bills introduced in this House and there are other bills resting in the file folios of Committees and this happens to be the first one that has been called up. There might be a law passed perhaps to put clubs under legal license. That would be a good thing for the clubs and good for the State. If this bill is introduced merely to regulate the clubs and the purpose is foreign to any other object, then they can vote on the matter of exterminating them. We don't need any more revenue on this matter. They are not asking for additional revenue. Don't miunderstand the opponents of this bill that the clubs simply are taking a stand to avoid the payment of revenue. That is not a one hundredth part of the argument on the bill. I think that speaking on the subject or discussing it will not change one vote; probably be like the old country squire when he heard one side of a law suit and the defendant had his witnesses on the stand and the old justice said, "Now, you shut up. You're getting me all mixed up." I suppose you didn't come here with your minds entirely made up. There are some of the opponents that would like to call the attention of the House to some of the glaring possibilities for an act of legislation of this kind.

Mr. STEIN. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The motion was seconded by Messrs. Letzkus, Moulthrop, John H. Young, Currier, Ulman, Caldwell, Kitts, Kern, Charles A. Shaffer, Donahue, Mannion, Eichenberger, Arthur, Aron, McArdle, Wiltbank, Ulerich, Neel, Heyburn, Ramsey, Rhodes, Rockwell and others.

So the question was determined in the negative.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer the following reasons for vote on Bill No. 709, file folio 2599:

I believe in club regulation. The measure before us, however, goes farther. There has been introduced into this House another bill which in its provisions does regulate; and in it there are abundant means provided for the extermination of the so-called "one-man clubs," the speakeasy and the glaring evils attached to club life. I believe that this bill, which was investigated by the Committee of Law and Order, would be far fairer and would meet the evils complained of.

Mr. HUMES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to file the following reasons for vote on House Bill No. 709:

In recording my vote against this bill (H. R. 709) I desire to declare myself in favor of a reasonable club license bill. I favor an act prohibiting clubs from dispensing liquor on Sundays, election days and all other prohibited days, and believe that many of our national holidays should be made prohibited days by law. I believe, however, that the Brooks license law has done more to bring the judiciary of this State into disrepute than any other law that was ever enacted. This bill would give further extra judicial power to our courts and would have an even more disastrous effect upon the reputation and integrity of the judiciary than the Brooks license law. By it unscrupulous judges could build up political machines more dangerous than any existing political machines.

To maintain the integrity of our courts, their duties must be judicial in their nature and by extending their extra judicial duties as this bill would do, we would sacrifice the standing and reputation of the one branch of our government that needs, more than any other, the respect and confidence of the people.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER VOTE.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, I renew my motion to complete action on House Bill No. 1010, entitled:

An Act relating to domestic animals and poultry providing methods of improving the quality thereof and of preventing controlling and eradicating diseases thereof imposing certain duties upon practitioners of veterinary medicine in Pennsylvania regulating the sale of tuberculin mallein and other biological products for use in testing domestic animals and providing penalties for the violation of this act made last night.

The SPEAKER. Bill No. 1010 was under consideration last night when the House adjourned.

The question being,

Will the House reconsider the vote on which the bill passed finally?

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, a number of the gentlemen of the House voted for this bill yesterday who were not familiar with the contents thereof. I invite your attention to section five, which provides that the State Veterinarian has the power to appoint such agents as he sees necessary. Under the present laws the agents receive a salary of $1800.00 a year and it provides for ten such agents. If you pass this bill you will give the State Veterinarian the right to appoint as many agents as he sees fit, one hundred, five hundred or one thousand. It also provides that he shall have the power to fix their compensation, which has never been done in any bill that has passed this House, and I am sure that the members of this House were not familiar with the contents of this bill. It also provides that the salary of the State Veterinary Secretary shall be raised from twenty-five hundred dollars to five thousand dollars. It provides for his assistant's salary, which is today one thousand dollars, to be raised to four thousand dollars a year; and as a member of this House I object to this gum-shoe method of attempting to raise the salaries of any Departments of this State. I, thertfore, ask that the members of this House will vote to reconsider the vote by which this bill passed third reading.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to put myself squarely with the members of the House and make no statement on false pretense under which this bill will be passed. The bill does raise the salary of the State Veterinary Surgeon and likewise of his assistant, but not until the expiration of the term of office of the Governor. It therefore does not apply to any of those who are holding offices and will not be effective for a period of two years or thereabouts. The bill was not drawn in the interest of the present State Sanitary Board excepting as to those matters which it was believed were for the best interests of the people who would be interested in having a good Board of Supervision over the livestock of the Commonwealth. The present salary of the Secretary is $2500.00 a year and has existed for two years and this bill raises the salary to $5000.00 a year. Now the State Veterinarian was receiving before he entered upon the duties of this office to which he was appointed, from his private office, his private employment in Philadelphia, a little more than forty-eight hundred dollars per year. He entered upon this service because of the love he had for the livestock, because of a moving desire which he had to better the conditions of affairs in the Commonwealth and has worked through the years that he has been employed in this Department at a great sacrifice to himself. In this bill he asks nothing now for himself, but for the future interests of the Board. Along in January of last year there was a resolution offered in this House requiring the Department to furnish to the House a detailed statement of the business. That was furnished and you all remember well the smile upon the House when the books were presented—two large volumes. They covered in detail in a most particular manner, the best record that I ever saw, of all the business of this Department since the present State Veterinarian has been in its employ. Since that time, Mr. Speaker, not one word has been raised, not a word of criticism has been raised against that Department.

Now the statement of the gentleman who made the motion that this raises the salary of the employees is not true. Under the present law the salaries range from seventy-five dollars a month to eighteen hundred dollars a year. Many of them are under the rule of the Department and are so fixed that they need not employ under the present bill any more than is necessary to carry out the provisions of the State Sanitary bill which is now before you.

I might in just a word state something in regard to what this work has been. If you will look over the reports, and I have no doubt you have, you will find that the State Veterinarian in his special reports states that during his administration he has examined 42,723 head of cattle, which have been tested for tuberculosis. 4,724 have been condemned and killed. Of these, 3,973 were grades which were appraised at an average of $30.74. The pure breds were appraised at an average of $57.54. Thus the owners realized from the State and from the counties an average of $47.47 for grade and $75.77 for pure breds.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to call the House's attention to two other bills presented and which will in a few days come before this House. The bill as presented is fathered by one of my good friends upon the other side of the House from Lehigh county and that provides for an increase of the pay for the cattle which are condemned of about $20.00 a head, making the average for pure breds almost $100.00 per head and of the others, the grades, about $70.00. Well now, it is not the business of this Department to make money for the farmers by condemning their cattle. It is the business of this Department that they shall see that they are condemned if they are affected with tuberculosis or any other disease which is dangerous to the community and to pay the farmers,—although the State is not bound to pay one dollar,—to pay them such reasonable sum as will be for the interests of the farmer. Now, Mr. Speaker, this bill was regularly upon the calendar. On last Wednesday night I, in perfect kindness to the House, stated that I desired to have it taken up and put upon the postponed calendar for the purpose of introducing an amendment. At my first opportunity I did make my word good by placing that amendment before the House, which was adopted.

Now every member in the House when be voted on this bill yesterday knew exactly what was in it. He knew, if he consulted his own conscience and his own indulgence, that it was a proper bill, that it was for the best interests of the Sanitary Board, not only, but for the best interests of every farmer who is interested in his horses and his cattle that they may be taken care of. Somethings have been added, a week ago, as I stated, to the bill, which are material for your consideration. They found in this appraisal under the old law that if the party whose cattle were condemned refused to submit to an appraisel there was no provision by which he could be compelled to have his cattle appraised at a fair valuation. This bill provides that if he does refuse, all it requires is for an affidavit before a magistrate to that effect and of his refusal and the magistrate will appoint some disinterested party as the third appraiser and that takes care of the deal.

There is another new provision and that is in regard to skim milk. Every farmer knows the importance of feeding skim milk to the calves and hogs absolutely pure from infection. Everybody knows who has looked into the question scientifically, and when their calves have died as well as when their hogs have died, they have found that the infection has come from tuberculosis of the milk or some infection of the milk. This bill provides that the skim milk shall be heated to 175 degrees Fahrenheit and that only costs $100.00 to do that. I have talked to the creamery men in my county and they told me it is a proper provision. It will only cost them $100.00 and the farmer will only have to wait a period of ten minutes longer for the purpose of getting the milk and then when he takes the heated milk to the calves and hogs he is absolutely sure they are immune from any disease by reason of infection of the milk. Now, Gentlemen of the House, you have had fair notice—

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, the point of order is that the gentleman is not stating the points at issue.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is not sustained.

Mr. STONE. It has been a fair proposition before this House. Everybody had fair notice at the time of the amendment. Every man was wide awake and alive as to what it would be and they read over the bill and I challenge every member of this House if this is not one of the best sanitary bills that any Department ever had, and I challenge any member of the House to say that the salary of the man who now is compelled in this bill to give his whole time, where heretofore he had only given part of his time, that five thousand dollars is not an inadequate salary for that service and I ask the Gentlemen of the House to vote down this motion.

Mr. REESE. Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen, I am in favor of this bill for two reasons: First, coming from a thickly settled population where a large number of the inhabitants are foreigners keeping cattle, they do not take care of their sanitary condition. It has been necessary in some parts of our county to take drastic measures and I know the people of this department have been doing that at their own expense. I know of one case in what we call the Schuylkill Haven Valley where there were no less than eight cases of glanders, and through the heroic efforts of this Department they stopped the spread of that disease.

We are also shipping into that section milk from the different counties—Berks, and I guess some down as far as Lancaster County. We have no milk inspector or anything of that character and this Department has helped us out in that particular.

Now, I have traveled around this State and in other States and have seen the number of cases we have in these hospitals brought about largely I judge by impure milk and impure food and so it has come to my mind, wouldn't it be better for the State to pay a certain per centage of the money that they appropriate to taking care of these inmates to the prevention of the disease and the spread of the disease. As I stated before, I could state three cases at this time where they put some of the dairies out of business because of the impure milk. When it was traced back, one physician, who had eight cases of the one kind of disease, attributed it to that milk and I do not think that this House should hestitate to vote for something that is going to benefit the condition of the infant and let us save them from going to these hospitals. I am heartily in favor of doing anything that is going to promote the welfare of the people and save the infant.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House, I do not think that any member of this House is against the sanitary features of this bill, but we have at the present time a law which covers every provisions in this bill which now pertains to the inspection etc. of cattle, dogs, cats, etc. This bill is not for the purpose of increasing the powers of the Sanitary Board but to increase their salaries. The objection I have to this bill is giving to the State Veterinary the power of naming as many agents as he may see fit and determining their wages. This bill is beyond comprehension for this reason. It simply places in the hands of the State Veterinary the power to build up around him one of the greatest political organizations in the State. Are you going to give one man that power? I do not believe that the members of this House will stand for any measure of that kind.

Mr. E. G. M. KUHNS. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to repeat what I said a few days ago in reference to a few articles in this bill but I wish to call your attention to page twenty of the bill, section thirty-four, the new amendment spoken of, where it says: "Milk produced by a cow which has reached to a tuberculin test." It has been proven and proves itself to the general public that the test is not yet quite perfect. I am not going to blame anybody for making mistakes as long as the people do not have any one test that always proves exactly true, but I do not wish to stand for the mistakes that the test here very often make. The reports show and tell us that there is no question of a doubt that a large majority of the cows put to this test show reaction, and a great many of them are killed and the beef therefrom passed for food. Certainly there was no tuberculosis there, or else they would not have passed for beef. Here under this bill any cow that has reacted to this test, the milk therefrom is to be heated to a temperature of 170 degrees at least. Take the stockman's standpoint on that question? How is he going to heat the milk to that temperature? How is he provided for that. What are the effects of milk heated to that degree Fahrenheit so far as food is concerned. How does it affect it? Is it not a fact that the calf that those men are talking about in getting this dangerous milk, if it is dangerous, is it not a fact that the calf wants that milk from the cow, not after it has been heated to a temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit or over, but that that calf wants that milk just as it comes from the cow. Now when you go further down, you find in section thirty-five, "every owner, operator and manager of a creamery." How about our creameries throughout the Commonwealth? Are they all fixed up with pasteurizing machines, or are they all in shape? Or, are we when we are passing this bill, particularly sections thirty-four and thirty-five, are we simply creating an act on the statutes that is advertising some manufactured article that is to be sold and used. Now, gentlemen and Mr. Speaker, are we here on the floor of the House to advertise some certain manufactured article, or are we here to take care of the interests of the general public. I appeal to you, gentlemen, on this question. You are not keeping stock. I appeal to you city brothers for your vote to protect us who are in the business. I want to call your attention to section thirty-three where it says: "any domestic animal affected with advanced or generalized tuberculosis." That would be all right, but if you read on further, you read in line three, "any animal which has reacted to the tuberculin test," and the test has proven that the cow in many times during the year shows reaction although she has no tuberculosis at all. It has been proven many times that she has no tuberculosis although she has reacted, and the stamp on the head and neck the letter "T" as defined in that section. Suppose you owned a herd of cattle, and they are inspected. Some show some little reaction, which has been proven in many cases that the cow is not sick, but still reacts. You get a letter "T" stamped on them by the Sanitary Board. What are your chances to sell that animal. Would you, or would I, or would any one want to buy it. Why not leave the law as it is at the present time until some accurate and thorough test is presented. When the cow is sick, we are willing to have it killed and willing to have it put out of the way. The test is not accurate and I would ask you gentlemen to vote aye on this matter.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I not only think that it would be a mistake, but it would be a blunder for this House to pass this bill. In other words it would be a blunder to reconsider this vote. Independent of the fact that we appear here—I don't know how we appear to the public—but one day we defeat a bill and the argument is that the House did not know what it was voting on. Now one day we pass a bill, and the argument is that the House did not know what it was and we called it up again to reconsider it. But independent of that, certainly the members of this House appreciate what this department means to the State. It means to the animal side what the Department of Health means to the human side. One is as essential as the other. The veterinary side of this proposition means the prevention of disease and the regulation of all of those things which lead up to the disease, while the other is the curing and also the prevention of disease. To undertake to discuss in this House the technique of this bill, to my mind, on the part of those not educated in medicine or the veterinary profession, would be almost foolish, but I think the question is covered in this way. Here is a bill from a department which my friend in the rear of the House says contains nothing but an offer to increase the salary. So far as the salaries are concerned, the only mistake that I can see in it is that it does not immediately go into operation, and the gentleman who heads that Department would be relieved of his duties at the University of Pennsylvania. He receives part of his salary from the University and spends part of his time there, and the other part of his salary he gets from the State, and devotes the other part of his time to State work. It is almost silly and foolish to think that a professional man, such as is required by this department of the State, should work for $2,500.00 per year. There is not intelligent member of this House who would vote against a proposition to make that five thousand dollars. My friend stated that it contained no good, nor no new features. My gracious alive. This bill contains the best thought of the men and the experience of that department for the necessary legislation of putting into operation for the benfit of the people the very thing for which this department was created for. This bill contains a provision that instead of the State being mulcted out of the money paid for condemned cattle that are brought into the State from foreign States, that door is now closed under this bill. It contains the feature that my friend Mr. Stone stated to you. That one feature of sterilizing the milk that goes to the animal as food is one of the greatest provisions for the prevention of that dangerous disease, tuberculosis, that could be placed upon our statute books. No person who has gone into this subject, and there are others here who know much better than I do, that it was demonstrated by the German Government that the feeding of the milk of the tubercular cows to any of the human kind meant the contagion of that human with tuberculosis. It was tested by the Germans in this way beyond a question of contradiction. That experiment consisted of this proposition: They took the milk from a contaminated animal and gave to it immediately the milk from the contaminated animal, and there was not a single instance of tuberculosis. They took the offspring of a perfectly healthy animal and feed it with the milk of a diseased animal, and a large percentage in the next five or six weeks showed contamination. Now this bill simply provides a method for the State Veterinary Department to control all animal diseases. The present laws are piecemeal laws, and came as the result of suggestions of persons not well versed in the proposition with which they were dealing. Our statute books are filled with contradictory propositions and powers. This bill eliminates all of them, and makes it all come under one act. I think that this House ought to take this proposition coming from a man of experience and education and versed in the science rather than from those who are likely to be mistaken on the proposition, like my friends who oppose this bill. Let the bill go to the Senate. If there are some weaknesses in the bill that should be eliminated, I think they will be able to convince the Senate committee that such weaknesses exist and have them modified in this particular, after careful consideration. I would, therefore, ask you to send it over to the Senate.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware.

The Speaker. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. I will.

Mr. BERGEY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Delaware desire the House to understand that he favors a measure that places in the hands of the State Veterinary the power to employ as many men as he sees fit and to fix their wages?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. As a general proposition, of course, the Legislature should as far as is practicaly regulate the various departments of this State in so far as the employes are concerned, the number of them, and their wages, and there is no member of this House, who stops to think for one moment, who does not know that so far as the health and agricultural and veterinary departments of the State are concerned that a statute of that character would probably defeat the very intent of the bill. We have no way of telling when any epidemic among the animals of our State may break out. Under ordinary conditions this Department would know definitely how many employees it should have to deal with a proposition and make it practical to do so. Who knows when a certain disease may break out among the cattle of this State, and who can tell how many will be necessary to ascertain and trace where this disease came from. Why, you would be but wasting the money of the State and defeating the very purpose of the act. Certainly, I will stand for it because I know no other law would be practical, and it gives the proper power to an institution that you have created.

The question recurring,

Will the House reconsider the vote by which the bill passed finally?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BERGEY and Mr. JOSEPH GRAY.
